Flier Prolongs Flight Time by Doing Stunts Over His Home City

Official Greeting Put Over Until Today Because of Drenching Rains

ST. LOUIS, June 17. (AP)—A graceful, silver monoplane, trailed by a workmanlike biplane of the United State air service, hummed suddenly out of the gray haze hanging over Lambert-St. Louis field at 3:22 o'clock this afternoon, and five minutes later Col. Charles A. Lindbergh was home.

Not all the plans up to meet the flier had been here only that pilot-hero of a hosts of the air-mail service with which the young history-maker once was able to find him in the murky atmosphere fifteen miles from the flying field and St. Louis. It was flown by Philip Love.

But hundreds of thousands of St. Louis-ans massed on roofs, river banks and open spaces had cheered Lindbergh as an echo, perhaps inaudible to him for twenty minutes before he entered the flights of St. Louis' skyscrapers and residence districts, circling in sweeps and swirls over by at being again over his home town.

RECEPTION PUT OVER

It remained for Love to be the first to greet the king of the air and take to Lambert-St. Louis Field the rain-drenched men and women, including the world-famed flier's mother, Mrs. Evangeline Lindbergh, Dwight F. Davis, Secretary of War, and to greet him.

The crowd, which might well have numbered 200,000, was held to the comparative handful by strict insistence of the arrangements committee to keep away from the flying field.

Official public acclaim for the flier was slated for tomorrow and Mayor Kiel announced that a parade in the city and thanks once bestowed upon those which already showered upon him would be obviated.

HOME FOR ORDEAL

Lindbergh is to rest in the home of Dwight Davis, who with a half-dozen others flocked in with him to the transatlantic flight.

There is nothing on his program, it is said, but a visit to his mother, a brief dinner and rest against the strenuous days immediately ahead.

Lindbergh left New York for St. Louis at 6:17 o'clock St. Louis time this morning, and, as if to make up for lost time, prolonged the hop he had been in the air.

Amours of Fleas Also Help Student to Write His Winning Thesis

TOKIO, June 17. (AP)—As a reward for spending several years in studying the love affairs of lice and the philanderings of fleas, Tooru Toda of the municipal health experiment station at Osaka has been granted a doctor's degree by the Kyoto Imperial University.

Toda's thesis, which won the degree, deals with the propagation of various forms of vermin, although his principal studies were concerned with lice and fleas, which are particularly vicious in Japan. He found that these pests are greatly on the increase and believes that the growth of modern cities and aided in their propagation.

GERMAN TO TRY OCEAN PLANE TRIP

Famed Pilot Says He Will Carry Mail from Berlin to United States in July

[Copyright, 1927, by Chicago Tribune]

BERLIN, June 17. (Exclusive)—The most famous pilot of the German Lufthansa, Herr Koennecke, is preparing to fly mail from Berlin to the United States across the continent and to San Francisco in July, tomorrow's Berliner Tageblatt will say. A twelve-passenger airplane is being reconstructed to enable the pilot to take the gas he needs, as well as a wireless expert and two brothers, who are financing the venture across the Atlantic.

The airplane has three motors, including two Wright motors. The room built originally for eight other passengers will be occupied with tanks holding enough gas for a flight of seventy hours and a complete wireless receiving and transmitting station. The German flyers announce that they will try the southern route over the Azores and start between July 15 and 25.

BACK BROKEN, POLOIST GIVEN CHANCE TO LIVE

BURLINGAME, June 17. (AP)—Though he suffered a broken vertebra and crushed pelvis, Angel Elmalde, wealthy sportsman of Burlingame and son of a wealthy plantation owner near Manila, P. I., was reported resting "comfortably" in a hospital here today. He received his injuries during a polo game at San Mateo yesterday when his horse slipped and fell on him. He was given an "even chance" for recovery.

Pershing Almost Outtalks Sphinx on Coming Home

NEW YORK, June 17. (Exclusive) Gen. Pershing arrived here today on the United States liner President Harding and quite properly lived up to his office of vice-president of the Sphinx Club. At the conclusion of what purported to be an interview he had delivered not one opinion and had revealed nothing concerning his two months' stay in Paris.

The lone opinion he was willing to voice was that Col. Lindbergh has "a great career ahead of him."

Immediately after landing he left for Washington.

Closer Bonds Between Farm and Industry Urged to Promote Welfare

SAN FRANCISCO, June 17. (Exclusive)—Industry and industrial workers alike benefit from the workings of the American plan or "open-shop system, the eleventh semiannual American plan-open shop conference was told today by Colbert Coldwell, president of the Industrial Association of San Francisco.

"The American plan movement in industry," he declared, "not only does not involve exploitation of labor but in fact is for the benefit of both employer and employee."

Coldwell's exposition was the high light of discussions concerning the unquestioned growth of community interest in industry and legislation between business men and farmers. In the latter connection, an appeal was made for a farmer-industrial round table to promote greater mutual prosperity.

IDEAL SET UP

The discussions today were held at the Palace Hotel and at a luncheon in honor of the conferees by San Francisco business men at the St. Francis, at which Frederick J. Koster, president of the California Barrel Company, and A. C. Rees, chairman of the conference, were the principal speakers.

Greater devotion on the part of business men to political problems and civic affairs was held by Mr. Koster to be essential to comprehensive and intelligent administration of industry in general.

"The business men of San Francisco already are showing a willingness to serve as wheel horses in the work-ing out of our civic problems, rather than quarter horses which the average American likes to be," Koster said.

Speaking of the American plan and the committment of San Francisco's industrial business leaders to it, he told his hearers "our fight for the American plan is a fight for the maintenance of our basic American grant of freedom to human initiative and enterprise. Our whole prosperity rests upon this grant which springs from the Constitution of the United States and which means the intelligent use and development of our natural resources. Organized business in America today is getting cleaner and cleaner and more devoted to public service."

APATHY RECALLED

Chairman Rees declared that San Francisco's industrial troubles in the past were brought on by apathy born of a natural hospitality to all comers, no matter what they represented.

"Apathy is an open invitation," he said, "to those who would destroy your industrial life. In your hospitality you were blind to their intentions and you suffered. However, you have raised up a new leadership and it is up to you whether this leadership shall continue to carry the country forward to even greater prosperity or whether San Francisco shall relapse into the old apathy and pay the penalty for it again. You must not break bread with those who break faith unless you want to pay the cost."

Healthy conditions of industry and mutual confidence between employer and employee can be found without trouble, it was stated during the discussions, in adequate wages, modern sanitary and safety conditions, continuity of employment, group insurance, stock ownership and leadership for employees.

A review was presented by Attorney H. H. Phleger of this city, covering the history of Supreme Court decisions as they apply to the relationship between capital and labor under the Sherman Antitrust Act.

NEW CLARIFICATION

"The Supreme Court," said Phleger, "is reaching into what has been a twilight zone in these decisions and is laying down clarifying principles by which capital and labor will be guided in the future."

Discussion of the modern boy and the advantages offered to him by expert instruction in trade schools as conducted under the guidance of the Industrial Association here, was presented by Harold Pierce, director of the association's schools. More than 3000 apprentices, he said, have been

HYPNOTISM FOUND BOON TO DENTIST

CHICAGO, June 17. (Exclusive)—Hypnotism has obliterated the horrors of the dentist's chair and is hailed as a substitute for laughing gas. This was shown at a demonstration attended by newspaper representatives.

Zeeca G. Bumzahen, a slender, swarthy hypnotist from Brazil, made a few passes before the eyes of Mrs. Nellie Hazdt, who had four molars that defied dental treatment. After the hypnotist had commended her to sleep she settled back in the chair and did not blink an eye or utter a moan while Dr. R. J. Cox extracted three tough molar roots and drilled a fourth. For ten minutes or more he drilled steadily upon a tooth that nobody had been able to touch heretofore.

Despite her sleep, she obeyed every suggestion by the dentist, opening her mouth when directed and awakening immediately when so ordered. She said she had not felt the slightest pain, and was amazed when shown the three great roots that have been the bane of her existence for years.

Windy City Pioneer Cites Adage Concerning Age on Wedding Landlady

CHICAGO, June 17. (Exclusive)—"A man is as old as he feels," said William M. Chackman, 94 years of age, who tonight married his landlady, Annie Myers, 37.

Chackman is a pioneer of Chicago. He was born on what was once a prairie, now covered with tall buildings. On the day Fort Sumter was fired upon he enlisted in the Union forces and served throughout the Civil War, being wounded and engaging in many battles.

During the Chicago fire he was one of the group that hanged four anarchists who were cutting hose and interfering with the firemen.

"I used to shoot ducks around where some of these twenty-story buildings now stand," he said today. "That was more than sixty years ago."

BYRD WAITS 'TIL SUNDAY FOR HOP-OFF

NEW YORK, June 17. (AP)—Unfavorable weather caused Richard E. Byrd to postpone his trans-Atlantic flight today, at least until Sunday night. That is the first moment he believes conditions can possibly be sufficiently improved to permit a hop-off.

With Charles Lindbergh's New York reception completed the last obstacle besides the weather has been removed from the Byrd flight. When Lindbergh made his flight to France Byrd announced that he would not take off until Lindbergh got back and later said he would not start until "the first flush" of the Lindbergh welcome was over.

Lindbergh left for St. Louis this morning and so the weather man was left standing alone in the path of Byrd's tri-motored Fokker.

Byrd, Bert Acosta and George Noville, the three who will fly together in the Fokker, were all at Roosevelt Field today inspecting their plane and bewailing the condition of the weather charts.

Commander Byrd said today he might take a fourth person in his monoplane America for the proposed trans-Atlantic flight, but denied this person would be a woman.

"We are carrying 1300 gallons of gasoline, sufficient to take four to Paris and beyond," he stated, "but the fourth, if there is one, will be a man."

It was reported the fourth might be Lieut. Bernt Balchen, former Norwegian naval officer, who aided Byrd on his North Pole flight. It had been suggested Byrd might take the first woman trans-Atlantic passenger in the America.

SECRET NOTE BY POLAND BIDS RUSSIA TO BEWARE

European Leaders Strive to Keep Public Unaware of Serious Stage Clash Has Reached

LONDON, June 17. (Exclusive)—Great secrecy is being preserved in the diplomatic chancelleries over the text of Poland's reply to the latest Russian note, handed in two days ago and communicated also confidentially to the leading powers of Europe. The Polish reply, according to information leaking out here, is firm. The soviets are informed that the tone of their latest note, with the demands contained therein, is inadmissible in intercourse between sovereign states. The Polish government, therefore, refrains from answering the points or taking up the implications.

The Polish Minister has been instructed to warn Moscow that if the latter persists in its attitude, Poland will be compelled to cease its attitude of strict neutrality which has been preserved until the present.

It is persistently reported in London that the soviets have called up two classes of reserves to reinforce the divisions near the Polish borders, ostensibly to meet any internal outbreak.

RUSSIAN INTERNAL TREND TO DECIDE WAR

[Copyright, 1927, by the New York World.]

BERLIN, June 17. (Exclusive)—The internal political fight now going on in Russia will have more bearing on soviet foreign policy and more to do with deciding whether war shall follow the difficulties with England and Poland than the negotiations of Russian and foreign diplomats.

This is plain from information reaching here from a quarter fully conversant with the Russian situation.

The Stalin government—or dictatorship—is trying to pursue a moderate policy since the break with Great Britain. This policy is opposed to the offensive tactics urged by Leon Trotsky and other Russian opposition leaders.

It is understood the soviet Foreign Minister, Georges Tchitcherin, stressed this in his talks with German and French statesmen, bankers and business leaders during his visits to Berlin and Paris.

He is said to have made the point that the soviet government, in order to combat the political opposition at home, must have something more tangible than arguments to fling in the faces of its foes. The tangible something, M. Tchitcherin impressed upon those with whom he talked here, must be credits to Russia.

Only in this way, he intimated, could the Bolshevik die-hards be held in check.

So far as can be learned here the force of his arguments may have been appreciated but he made little headway with the money powers in either country. There is reason to believe the political and financial authorities here have agreed with him in principle but made it clear Germany is unable to extend further credits to Russia now.

There is equally good reason to believe these same supporters of a pro-Russia policy for Germany now hope the United States will assume the part in supplying money to Russia that was played by Great Britain before the break.

TWO ASSERTED POLISH SPIES EXECUTED

MOSCOW, June 17. (AP)—Two asserted Polish spies, Andrew Pnipsnaki and Tadeush Vorsbovitch, said to have been commissioned by the Polish military intelligence service to assassinate three of the highest Ukrainian officials, have been executed at Kharkov.

The men were arrested by the state political police and were taken before the Kharkov Supreme Court, where they were sentenced to death.

A third accused spy, whose name is Melnik, also was arrested, but escaped. Melnik was said to have been the leader of the group.

UNEASINESS IN LEAGUE

Relations Between Russia and Poland Also Cause Worry; War Not Expected

GENEVA, June 17. (AP)—The forty-fifth session of the Council of the League of Nations came to an end today in an atmosphere of uneasiness despite its success in settling a number of questions possessing importance in European relations.

The feeling of unrest accompanying the adjournment was due chiefly to the unconcealed bitterness of the German delegation over their failure to obtain a definite reduction of the number of occupational troops in the Rhineland, and also to apprehensions over relations between Russia and Poland, which vitally concern France as an ally of Poland.

In connection with the Rhineland question, Marshal Foch is represented as opposing any reduction of the number of occupational troops until Germany has fulfilled the letter and the spirit of the military clauses of the Treaty of Versailles.

WAR NOT EXPECTED

Officials here express belief that the condition of the Russian army will not permit Russia to start a war but, since Russia is not a member of the League and not subject to the provisions of the covenant, they are concerned over the operation of the covenant in the event that a Russo-Polish break should occur, although that is not considered likely. This apprehension explains the anxiety manifested by some of the powers to obtain a definite understanding on whether Allied troops would be permitted to cross Germany in case Russia attacked Poland. German's contention is that her demilitarized situation does not permit her to run the risk of complications with Russia.

Foreign Minister Stresemann of Germany and Foreign Secretary Chamberlain of Great Britain also were unable to agree on Poland's desire to maintain a munitions depot in the free city of Danzig. The matter went over to the next session.

The sudden departure yesterday of Foreign Minister Briand of France, who went to Paris on account of illness, broke off conversations which, it is thought, might have cleared the atmosphere of many of its doubts and fears.

Three steps to preserve the peace of Europe in the present troubled situation have been decided upon by the representatives of the

JOHN R. THOMPSON PASSES

Restaurateur Who Won Millions With 'Arm-chair Service Loses Long Battle With Death

CHICAGO, June 17. (Exclusive)—John R. Thompson, who rose to the heights by dining millions in his "one-arm chair" restaurants, is dead. A gallant battle against heart disease fought by the millionaire for six years ended in defeat today when he died without pain at the Highlands, his Lake Forest estate.

Many times in the last few years physicians have given up hope and wondered how he survived. Several times they summoned his family to the bedside, but each time their patient rallied. His wife and children were with him when he died.

In his struggle against the weakening of his heart, Mr. Thompson retired from active business and went to Europe to rest. He had been treated at Johns Hopkins Hospital, at Boston and in health resorts and at Palm Beach. Recently he came to Lake Forest.

Nickel cups of coffee—and good coffee—Mr. Thompson was wont to boast "started him from a most humble business beginning onto the path of affluence."

WORLD'S FAIR VISIT

The World's Fair attracted the young Thompson—he was then 28 years of age—to Chicago as a visitor. His young bride, who had been a young farm girl, came along.

After they had seen the great fair, the pair came to the downtown section and wandered into a restaurant on South State street. It was not a pretentious place that the young farmer selected, nor was the meal particularly delectable, but the coffee was bad, very bad.

"I can make a better cup of coffee than that myself," said Thompson, according to the story as he used to relate it.

"Maybe you want to try it," the proprietor rejoined with sarcasm.

"Maybe I do and I will," said Thompson.

"Buy the place and you can," came the next reply, this time in good nature. And before the young visitor went out he had agreed to make the purchase.

START OF ENTERPRISE

He had come with a bit of capital and was open to a business proposition, Mr. Thompson said, and there

ARMY WILL TRY FLIGHT OVER OCEAN TO HAWAII

Giant Fokker Monoplane Will be Used on Hazardous Journey Before Middle of July

SAN ANTONIO (Tex.) June 17. (AP)—The United States Army will attempt to make the first San Francisco-Hawaii non-stop flight not later than July 15, First Lieutenant Lester J. Maitland, pilot of a giant Fokker monoplane that will be used on the flight, said tonight on his arrival at Kelly Field.

The flight will be made by Lieut. Chamberlin and Byrd, each capable of 285 horsepower.

The C-2 is virtually a duplicate of the ship which Byrd plans to fly across the Atlantic and is much larger than the Lindbergh "Spirit of St. Louis," having a wing spread of seventy-one feet. It will have a gasoline capacity of 1100 gallons, sufficient, Mr. Davison said, to carry it nearly 1000 miles beyond the Hawiian Islands.

The Assistant Secretary declared that Lieut. Maitland had been planning the Hawaiian flight for "at least six years" and added that when the C-2 was ordered some months ago it was with this particular flight in view.

PURE COINCIDENCE

"That the plan may be realized at this time," he said, "when the Atlantic has been flown twice and when private citizens interested in aviation are offering rewards to stimulate a California-Hawaiian hop, is purely a coincidence."

Maitland, who has established a number of flight records, piloted a plane similar to the one he plans to fly to Honolulu for nearly 6000 miles with Mr. Davison as a passenger on his recent transcontinental flight of inspection of air stations.

He was born in Milwaukee in 1898 and enlisted in the aviation section of the signal corps a few days after the United States entered the World War.

Lieut. Hegenberger was born at Boston in 1896 and joined the aviation section of the signal corps in September, 1917. After a tour of duty in Hawaii he was stationed at McCook Field, his present station. For four years he has been chief of the instrument and navigation branch there.

BAY CITY BOARD MAY AID FLIGHT FUND

SAN FRANCISCO, June 17. (AP)—The airport committee of the Board of Supervisors voted a recommendation today that the board appropriate $10,000 as the city's official contribution to the proposed $50,000 prize fund for the San Francisco-Honolulu nonstop airplane flight. The board will meet Monday.

CINEMA AVIATOR SAYS HE'LL TRY FLIGHT

SAN FRANCISCO, June 17. (AP)—Richard Grace, motion-picture aviator from Los Angeles, left here today aboard the Matson liner Manukai for Honolulu, taking with him an airplane which, he announced, he intends to fly back to San Francisco.

Grace's plane has a Wright whirlwind motor, like that Lindbergh used. The plane is the same one tried out at San Diego by Lindbergh before he chose the Spirit of St. Louis for the flight from New York to Paris.

EQUIPMENT SECRET

The plane took off from Muskogee at 10:50 a.m., this morning, and stopped for a short time in Dallas. The flight of more than 900 miles from Dallas to Kelly Field was made in three hours and forty-five minutes.

Capt. Burdette S. Wright, operations officer at Kelly Field, was the only person allowed inside the cabin of the plane on its arrival here. Doors of the cabin were fastened and canvas curtains have been draped over the cabin windows to prevent the curious from seeing the interior.

Lieut. Maitland admitted that there was equipment on the plane that he was under orders to keep from the public. A few minutes later he said, "I'll be glad when the chief does talk," when asked if he had any comments to make on the trip.

WASHINGTON GIVES OUT PLANS FOR FLIGHT

WASHINGTON, June 17. (AP)—An attempt to span the Pacific Ocean between San Francisco and Honolulu will be made by the Army Air Corps if success marks final tests being given the giant Fokker transport plane selected for the hop.

The 2000-mile flight will be made late in July, with Lieuts. Lester Maitland, army racer, and Albert F. Hagenberger, piloting.

This was announced today by Assistant Secretary Davison in charge of the Army's air activities, when the Fokker plane, en route to the west coast from Dayton, O., to complete its tests, stirred up rumors that it would attempt a flight to the islands.

Plans for the hop, it was disclosed, have been held in secret for some months with the intention of keeping them confidential until everything was in readiness.

EVERY TEST PASSED

Mr Davison said the plane has met every test to date with complete success and he is convinced that the flight will be authorized and completed. He emphasized that it is an army project of long standing, without inspiration drawn from the trans-Atlantic flights of Lindbergh and Chamberlin and that it has no connection with prizes recently offered for a Hawaiian flight. If the hop is successful, he said, Maitland and Hagenberger will not be eligible to receive any prizes.

In contrast to the unsuccessful attempt of the late Commander John Rodgers of the Navy to make the same nonstop flight in 1925, the army flyers will not have the assistance of naval ships stationed along the line of passage. They will do their own navigating, employing the latest devices including the earth inductor compass used by Lindbergh, the magnetic and celestial compasses and the more recent radio beacon.

HAS THREE MOTORS

The plane which Maitland and Hegenberger plan to use also is in contrast to the one used by Commander Rodgers who piloted a flying boat with two water-cooled motors. The Fokker transport, known as C-2, is a land plane without provisions for making a water descent. It has three Wright air-cooled motors, like those in the planes of Lindbergh, Chamberlin and Byrd, each capable of 285 horsepower.

The C-2 is virtually a duplicate of the ship which Byrd plans to fly across the Atlantic and is much larger than the Lindbergh "Spirit of St. Louis," having a wing spread of seventy-one feet. It will have a gasoline capacity of 1100 gallons, sufficient, Mr. Davison said, to carry it nearly 1000 miles beyond the Hawiian Islands.

CINEMA AVIATOR SAYS HE'LL TRY FLIGHT

SAN FRANCISCO, June 17. (AP)—Richard Grace, motion-picture aviator from Los Angeles, left here today aboard the Matson liner Manukai for Honolulu, taking with him an airplane which, he announced, he intends to fly back to San Francisco.

Grace's plane has a Wright whirlwind motor, like that Lindbergh used. The plane is the same one tried out at San Diego by Lindbergh before he chose the Spirit of St. Louis for the flight from New York to Paris.

WASHINGTON GIVES OUT PLANS FOR FLIGHT

WASHINGTON, June 17. (AP)—An attempt to span the Pacific Ocean between San Francisco and Honolulu will be made by the Army Air Corps if success marks final tests being given the giant Fokker transport plane selected for the hop.

The 2000-mile flight will be made late in July, with Lieuts. Lester Maitland, army racer, and Albert F. Hagenberger, piloting.

This was announced today by Assistant Secretary Davison in charge of the Army's air activities, when the Fokker plane, en route to the west coast from Dayton, O., to complete its tests, stirred up rumors that it would attempt a flight to the islands.

Plans for the hop, it was disclosed, have been held in secret for some months with the intention of keeping them confidential until everything was in readiness.

EVERY TEST PASSED

Mr Davison said the plane has met every test to date with complete success and he is convinced that the flight will be authorized and completed. He emphasized that it is an army project of long standing, without inspiration drawn from the trans-Atlantic flights of Lindbergh and Chamberlin and that it has no connection with prizes recently offered for a Hawaiian flight. If the hop is successful, he said, Maitland and Hagenberger will not be eligible to receive any prizes.

In contrast to the unsuccessful attempt of the late Commander John Rodgers of the Navy to make the same nonstop flight in 1925, the army flyers will not have the assistance of naval ships stationed along the line of passage. They will do their own navigating, employing the latest devices including the earth inductor compass used by Lindbergh, the magnetic and celestial compasses and the more recent radio beacon.

HAS THREE MOTORS

The plane which Maitland and Hegenberger plan to use also is in contrast to the one used by Commander Rodgers who piloted a flying boat with two water-cooled motors. The Fokker transport, known as C-2, is a land plane without provisions for making a water descent. It has three Wright air-cooled motors, like those in the planes of Lindbergh,

DETECTIVES INVESTIGATE STOCK-SELLING CAMPAIGN

WILMINGTON (Del.) June 17. (AP) The Burns Detective Agency has been asked by the Wilmington Chamber of Commerce to investigate an asserted $10,000,000 stock-selling campaign of "Lindberg Aeronautic Corporation." The investigators are working in this city now, it was learned.

The headquarters of the corporation is in Cleveland, O. Oscar P. Lindberg, Cleveland, is president. The corporation has issued a prospectus claiming to have an office in the Equitable Building here. It was denied, however, that they have an office in that building.

REAPER CALLS J. R. THOMPSON was begun the business which in one year ending recently provided $5,000,000 meals to the people of American cities.

Not above slinging a napkin over his arm in those early days and ministering to the wants of the folk who came into his place, Thompson made a good business out of a restaurant which may times had been foreclosed out of the hands of previous owners. Neither was Mrs. Thompson afraid to help out in the kitchen when the occasion required.

In the next year, 1894, Thompson added two restaurants to his business and began the famous "string." Branching out as swiftly as his capital would permit, and employing a system by which he took small profits but with the quickest turnovers, it was not long before the Thompson houses began to dot other cities. He did not originate the self-service business ,but he made the most of it.

EARLY LIFE ON FARM

For sixteen years after his birth in 1865, in Vermilion county, Ill., Thompson had lived on his parents' farm. He attended normal school, and later opened a general store in Pithian, near his home.

He was married in 1891, sold out his business not long after, and was angling for a new opportunity when he decided to take on the Chicago World's Fair in 1893.

During the peak of his success, Mr. Thompson was fired with political ambitions. He became Republican county committeeman, and then was elected county treasurer, serving from 1907 to 1911. Then he aspired to the Mayoralty, but Fred Busse was the voters' choice. Then at Mrs. Thompson's request he withdrew from politics.

NOTE TO SOVIET SAYS "BEWARE"

tions of life are undisturbed in soviet Russia and that a state of war in Moscow and Leningrad has not been declared as was reported.

Izvestia, organ of the soviet Federal executive committee, joining the other newspapers in expressions of displeasure over the sentence passed on the assassin of the Russian envoy at Warsaw, says the sentence will provoke just indignation among the public of the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics.

Other newspapers described the sentence as a travesty on justice and as proof of England's guiding hand in the conduct of Poland's political affairs.

(The sentence imposed on Kowceda was life imprisonment, and the court recommended that it be commuted to fifteen years.)

AMERICA LINKED TO "SPY" FOR ENGLISH

MOSCOW, June 17. (AP)—Indications that Sydney Riley, who was arrested by soviet authorities on the Finnish border in September, 1925, as an English spy, indirectly furnished information to American authorities are contained in his assorted confessions.

The "confessions" made public by soviet authorities, say Riley visited America frequently during 1923 and 1924, where he gave information to influential persons. They further declare that "The English intilligence service hands over to the American intilligence service, information regarding Russia which interests Americans."

Riley is quoted as saying he left England for Russia, after a period of political inactivity, because he had learned of the existence of an anti-soviet group and desired to learn how seriously they should be considered and to what amount of encouragement and financial support they were entitled.

IRON HAND URGED

He is said to have talked with Winston Churchill, Chancellor of the Exchequer, and other prominent Englishmen before his departure.

A letter purportedly written by Riley declares that in combating Bolshevism it is essential to use terroristic methods, directed from a central organization and aimed at a prominent member of the soviet government.

"I am sure that terroristic acts on a large scale would make a great impression, arouse hope of the early fall of Bolshevism and create a wide interest in Russian affairs," says the document.

The British Foreign Office stated last Friday that a man named Riley, believed to be a British subject, was reported by soviet authorities to have been shot at the Russo-Finnish frontier about two years ago. It added that the circumstances of the affair were not known to the British government.

SCHRITZ STILL MISSING

SANTA ANA, June 17.—Blood hounds failed to find any trace of Carl Schritz, sometimes known as Schantz, 50-year-old junk dealer, who disappeared under suspicious circumstances Tuesday morning after another junk dealer living near him on the banks of the Santa Ana River had borrowed a shot gun to kill rabbits. The blood-stained hat of Schritz, his shoes, his empty purse and blood-stained socks were found near his home.

BELLANCA PARTY AT BERLIN

BERLIN, June 17. (Exclusive)—Clarence D. Chamberlin and Charles A. Levine, with their wives, arrived in Berlin exhausted by the celebrations in their honor in all parts of Germany. Half of the airplane which they brought to the German capital was filled with flowers they received throughout the day. The porters who trailed them into the Hotel Adlon were laden down with loving cups, boxes of silverware and candy.

In their rooms they found piles of newly arrived gifts. The Swiss government sent its best wrist watches for the flyers. Aluminum suitcases specially built for airplanes were sent as presents; silver fruit bowls, silver and crystal desk sets were on the desks of the men, while flowers and candy loaded the tables of the women in the royal suite given them by the Hotel Hadlon. The candy alone is sufficient to last them for months to come.

Magdeburg and Hamburg gave the flyers and their spouses the same rush as the other German towns. Their visit to Hamburg was punctuated with conferences with Director Cuno of the Hamburg-American Line on a new transoceanic line and its possible connections with the shipping lines.

The flyers' eleventh triumphal day began at Bremen this morning.

WIRES WELCOME

The Council of the Senate of the free city of Bremen formally received the flyers' wives this morning in the historic Rathsus, one of the architectural wonders of Germany, after their journey on the steamer Berlin. In the great oak-paneled reception hall the two American women lined up as if they were to be sentenced, and heard the address of welcome from Burgomaster Spitta, who spoke with tremendous good will, both in English and German. Behind him, also ranged in military order, wearing stiff choker collars and frock coats, stood six of the most influential members of the Senate, blinking dazedly at Mr. Chamberlain in his soiled jacket and the plus fours he has worn all over Germany. The ceremony included the presentation to both the flyers of huge silver medals with the coat of arms of the city, and to each of the wives a set of gold coffee spoons with the coat of arms of the city.

The wives of the flyers do not enjoy sailing through the clouds. They were in the air for three and a half hours today. They first flew from Bremen to Hamburg, a trip that took only forty minutes, but felt quite ill. After landing, Mrs. Chamberlin and Mrs. Levine determined to take a train for the rest of the journey, and it took all the persuasive powers of their husbands to induce them to climb back into the plane to go to Magdeburg after the ceremonies at Hamburg.

FLIGHT PROVES BUMPY

The flight was bumpy, and though the last lap, from Magdeburg to Berlin, was taken in perfect weather, there is no doubt that the wives of the transocean flyers disapprove of this form of transportation.

Thea Rascha, the German aviatrix, to whom Charles A. Levine promised a Bellanca plane for a flight to America if she could prove that she is strong enough to pilot it all the way, today flew Mr. Levine from Magdeburg to Berlin in the rickety little plane she used for the stunts that won her first prizes in German aviation meets.

"I think she will make it," provided she gets a good plane," Mr. Levine said.

Tomorrow Fraulein Rascha will perform air stunts before Clarence D. Chamberlin and Mr. Levine, and she hopes to "pass the examination."

HEUSTON LEADING IN VICTORIA GOLF PLAY

VICTORIA (B. C.) June 17. (AP)—It looks as though an American contest is going to lift the Pacific Northwest Golf Association open championship again this year. C. Hueston of Seattle turned in the lowest score at today's play, Hueston turned in a score of 150 strokes for the thirty-six holes, with M. F. Dutra second with a score of 151. Chick Fraser of San Francisco stands a good chance of winning the championship if he improves his game tomorrow. His score today was 163 and he has another thirty-six holes to play. L. Kelly of Los Angeles is also looked upon as a good contender for the trophy, his score being 159.

UNEASINESS AS LEAGUE QUITS

Locarno Treaty powers attending the sessions here, a spokesman for the German delegation declared. Great Britain, France, Germany, Belgium and Italy, he said, had decided:

(1.) T emake individual friendly representations to the soviet and Polish governments to do nothing to endanger the peace of their two countries.

(2.) That the powers should make individual representations to the soviet concerning the wholesale executions in Russia, pointing out that these were causing an unfortunate impression abroad.

(3.) To advise both Jugo-Slavia and Albania to adopt a conciliatory attitude and settle amicably the incident of the arrest of a Jugo-Slavian Legation dragoman which was followed by rupture of diplomatic relations.

The German spokesman denied that Foreign Minister Stresemann had been sounded by the British Foreign Secretary concerning the possibility of troops passing through German territory in case Russia attacked Poland. Germany, he added, was more anxious about Franco-German relations than about the Russo-Poland situation, believing the latter not dangerous.

The Germans, he continued, were going back to Berlin deeply disappointed because they had only been able to get vague promises that the French troops in the Rhineland will be reduced in number. The Berlin government, he said, wanted more than promises. It appeared that the population of the Rhineland would become incensed at the continued presence of a foreign army—hence the belief that Franco-German relations were more delicate than Russo-Polish.

The French, he charged, were raising questions about the actual legal fulfillment of minor treaty points, such as conversion of military barracks and demilitarization of the Prussian police. Germany would sell or convert the barracks as soon as possible, he asserted, and a bill concerning the police is now before the Reichstag.

As for dismantled military works on the Polish border, the spokesman said it had been suggested that an American officer be selected to verify the dismantling. The French, however, had refused this suggestion and the Germans, acting in the spirit of Locarno, would accept a French officer.

Under these circumstances, the spokesman went on, it would be a bad time to raise the question of using German soil for the passage of French troops to Russia in the event of possible though unlikely Russo-Polish hostilities, because it would mean that Germany, being overrun by French troops, would occupy the same position as did Belgium during the World War.

The British delegation likewise today repudiated the report that Foreign Secretary Chamberlain had sounded Dr. Stresemann regarding the passage of troops. However, it is deemed likely that there has been a general discussion concerning the operation of the League covenant and military or economic penalties in the event of any flare-up of war in Europe.

Military contributions by League states is left to individual members, but it is believed that the day will come when the jurists will be asked to study Germany's exact position in this respect as a League member and to determine whether the Locarno Pact really relieves her from permitting German territory to be used for the passage of troops which have the League's mandate to maintain peace.

PLAN TO SETTLE ARMENIANS TO BE STUDIED

GENEVA, June 17.(AP)—The Council of the League of Nations today pledged itself to examine with sympathy Dr. Fridtjof Nansen's plan to settle Armenian refugees in the Erivan republic on condition that the Erivan government gives satisfactory assurances concerning the projected irrigation of the district. This really means that the soviet Russian government in Moscow must give its consent, because of Erivan's political relations with the soviet.

WEEKLY LOSES PLEA TO CRUSH LIBEL SUIT

The magazine published on November 27, 1926, according to Sarazen's complaint, an article purporting to have been written by him entitled "Golf's Greatest Goat Getter." The text of this article, according to Sarazen's complaint, left him open to accusations of sensationalism and lack of golf ethics. He maintains the article was not written by him.

JAPAN ASKS NO UTOPIA

Won't Seek Much at Arms Meet

Questions of Panama Canal, Hawaiian and Singapore Bases to be Ignored

All She Wants is Enough Naval Tonnage to Defend Her Island Empire

GENEVA, June 17. (AP)—Japan has no intention of raising the questions of the internationalization of the Panama Canal or reduction in the strength of the naval bases at Hawaii and Singapore at the forthcoming naval conference, Admiral Kobayashi, one of Japan's chief naval delegates here, told the Associated Press tonight.

The admiral added that the Japanese representatives will confine their initiative to obtaining an agreement on warships not covered by the Washington treaty.

Admiral Kobayashi said the Japanese were greatly pleased with the decision of the United States not to strengthen the American fortifications in the Far East and would not think of asking for reductions near the shores of the United States. He admitted, however, that the Japanese were worried at the power of the British Singapore base.

RETICENT ABOUT RATIO

Admiral Kabayashi declined to say whether Japan would accept the 5-5-3 ratio for cruisers, destroyers and submarines. He did say, however, that Japan wants a total tonnage high enough to permit her to have a sufficient number of ships to defend her island empire and therefore gave more importance to a quantity of likable ships than to the question of their ratio.

The Japanese delegate said Japan had come to Geneva in a spirit of conciliation in an endeavor to reach a fair agreement. Admiral Saito and Viscount Ishii, the other Japanese delegates, called upon Hugh S. Gibson, chief of the American delegation, this afternoon and virtually gave him the same assurance officially.

Mr. Gibson today told newspaper correspondents that the American delegation will "explode no bombs" in the naval conference which opens here Monday. It is believed that he will propose a definite scheme of limitation as conceived by the United States in his opening address Monday.

"BOMBS" NOT WELCOME

It is understood that the American delegation will not welcome any "bombs" from the British and Japanese, such as an attempt to internationalize the Panama Canal, to establish naval base restrictions in Hawaii or reduce the tonnage of battleships or cruisers.

Meantime it is said in American circles the United States has so many age-worn cruisers which are declared worthless in modern warfare that the existing ratio on modern cruisers is five for Britain, against 2.7 for the United States. This ratio estimate includes six cruisers which attain the twenty-year limit in 1928, hence, it is declared, the actual American strength is but ten 7800-ton cruisers. With the eight 10,000-ton cruisers which are either building or contracted for there will be a total modern cruiser force of 155,000 tons.

HOPE FOR AVIATORS DIES HARD

QUEBEC (Que.) June 17. (AP)—Hope of finding Nungesser and Coli, missing French airmen, is dying hard here.

Despite the explanation that the "flares" reported seen in the Germain and Begin townships of the St. John district were merely the lights of the powerhouse at Chute Aux Galets, reports of unusual lights still are being received.

No explanation had been found today for the statements of Georges Rousseau, trapper, that he heard an airplane on the night of May 9 on the Ste. Marguerite River, near the Saguenay.

Price Brothers have decided to change the coloring of their lights at Chute Aux Galets, said advices today, to ascertain whether or not the signals reported for the last few nights were really flares or merely the reflection of the power lights at the Chute.

The Price Brothers townsmen, who have reported seeing what they believed to be distress signals coming from the general direction of Begin and St. Germain, did not sight any last night.

FLOOD HAVOC STILL DEFIES ATTEMPTS AT ESTIMATE

Divergence of Guesses as to Loss Gives Hint of Staggering and Incalculable Total

BY HARRIS DICKSON

VICKSBURG (Miss.) June 17. (Exclusive)—No human wisdom can yet estimate the havoc of this 1927 flood. I have seen it guessed at by cautious business men who are familiar with the country—$150,000,000—$1,500,000,000—$3,500,000,000. Note those figures. Yet they are not guesses. By their wide divergence they prove that our losses are staggering and incalculable. So many unknown quantities enter into computation—factors now hidden beneath a blanket of water—that no individual farmer has the vaguest notion of his own damage.

A levee country twice as big as the state of Massachusetts still lies submerged, while a second rise—the so-called "June rise"—is rolling down the Mississippi. Another down from the north.

The effect of these will probably be to cause new levee breaks, necessity to raise flood heights on levees inundated, but to prolong the period of overflow.

Additional water must pour through these crevasses, and require a long time to run off. The season has become too far advanced for growing cotton planting, and has put to the destruction already wrought an almost total loss of this year's crop.

The main source of revenue can be derived from those acres until the flood of 1928. Yet more than half the income of a 1927 crop has been spent and lost.

CROWDED RISE THREATENS

Along the Arkansas River and in other parts of our delta many levees have been "smearing" their way into the mud as rapidly as boats to shove. Much of this is still growing, only to sink as the new rim covers it. Seepage, too, that tenants who have returned to their homes from the refuge may be compelled to fight with mud.

In the Yazoo-Mississippi Delta between Vicksburg and Memphis, in an attempt to estimate the damage they are guided largely by what has followed previous inundations, and seem buoyed up by the hope in the marvelous recuperative power of the country.

In the 1922 situation is wholly different and far worse. Water this year will run seven to ten feet higher than in 1927. It did not then seem necessary for either the Italian or the Greek stock to be sent off. Spring could be cared for on the plantations, in gin houses, on the levees.

Against that, these past few days have witnessed a complete destruction of the same territory. Far more and swifter currents have undermined houses, drowned many additional animals, and, with heart-breaking losses of cattle and mules. Such of the people as were saved have suffered terribly; that perhaps 50 per cent are unfit to make a crop, and are unable to live throughout the year. Many that are yet tottering will die.

It is now said that these delta farmers who already struggling with debt, pressed cotton values and high prices for every commodity that they must buy, their credit strained to breaking and lands mortgaged more heavily than ever before.

Taxes are from two to four times greater, and their supply of labor depleted because of industrial demands in the north. On top of all that, this catastrophe overwhelms them.

In lower Louisiana the farmer's plight seems even more utterly tragic. A detail: For years their sugar has proved a losing proposition. Seed cane itself had deteriorated because of the fact that necessity forced them annually to sell the best for grinding. The cane therefore had run down, become less productive.

Meanwhile the Louisiana experiment station succeeded in developing a far more prolific variety, better suited to the climate. This is the first season that the new seed has become available to planters. Great results were expected from it, green, glistening, beautiful, the best crop in many seasons, when water poured into the "Sugar Bowl" and destroyed so much that little will be left to sell.

In another respect Louisiana has fared badly. It being farther south, the water will be tardier in surrendering its fields, at a time when every hour is precious.

Incalculable though the money loss may be through the wiping out of property that is physical and visible, another damage may be even greater, wrecking the very morale of our civilization.

Coming back to the Yazoo-Mississippi Delta: Before a real levee system began its slow upbuilding in 1882, none of that land could be cultivated except the very highest ridges. All else was swamp and forest and tangled bayous, the haunt of amphibious creatures.

MAGNIFICENT DOMAIN WON

Its miraculous fecundity tempted men; they fought the amphibious creatures, they combated the forces of nature, defied the Mississippi River, and conquered a magnificent domain for the use of mankind.

Better and surer levee protection followed. Railroads gridironed the marshes. Smooth hard highways were laid in place of mushy streaks called "roads." In a redeemed wilderness appeared the modern schoolhouse, equal to any in the United States. Well-built residences, screened, artesian water telephones on every plantation, with electric lights on most. Instead of a barbaric jungle, civilization flourished.

Immunity from overflow brought about these changes, and the genius of as brave a people as tread this globe. I have seen peasants tend their grapevines on the lava slopes of Vesuvius, and I've watched these farmers cultivate their lands while visualizing greater improvement—in spite of the fact that Vesuvius may again throw out its fiery death, and the Mississippi River may burst its barriers.

On April 21, last, the Mississippi River breaks loose, tremendous, awful, more devastating than was ever recorded by man. Our people are stunned, bewildered. They know not what to do. But this they do know, that if our national government gives them a fair assurance that the present calamity will not occur again they will set their undismayed hands to the giant task of rebuilding.

In this reconquest of a jungle they must begin where pioneer grandsires began, at the very bottom. Their grandsires built from the ground up, built with ax and rifle, the forest supplying their simple needs. But these no less stalwart grandsons have become accustomed to the refinements of modern life. It must go hard with them, very, very hard.

They begin flat, flat on their backs, prostrate as were the farmers of Picardy. They need everything and can buy nothing. Houses were destroyed; they require lumber. They are naked, and the law compels them to wear clothes; hungry, and they must have food.

With money or credit these submerged lands would at once become the world's best customers, in the market for every product of factory, field or loom.

Come back? Surely they will come back. But their regeneration cannot be solid until they know that never again can there happen such a disaster.

ADDITIONAL RELIEF FUNDS SORELY NEEDED

Although the Los Angeles quota of $350,000 as set in the drive for funds to aid in relief of the Mississippi flood victims has been reached, word from the Red Cross yesterday stated that the need is dire in the flooded area. Additional funds are desired by the Red Cross for further work and contributions may be sent either directly to the organization in the Transportation Building, Los Angeles, or to The Times, Los Angeles, and made payable to The Times' Relief Fund.

At 3 p.m. yesterday, The Times' fund had reached a total of $170,241.35. The prevailing need of the victims of America's greatest flood catastrophe should be the incentive for immediate mailing of additional funds by Times readers.

Reno Hunts for Rhinelander but Can't Find Him

RENO, June 17. (AP)—Half a dozen well-groomed new arrivals have been watched carefully for the last week by residents and newspaper correspondents under the belief that one of them might be Leonard Kip Rhinelander, but each has offered a complete alibi.

Suspicion finally centered on a man who drove a car with a Canadian license plate and he was the center of attention for two evenings at the restaurant he frequented. "Not guilty," he declared when asked, and acquaintances vouched for him.

Rhinelander, plaintiff in a divorce suit against his negress wife at White Plains, N. Y., which he lost, definitely has been stated in notes from New York to be in Reno and the correspondents continue to search for him.

OUSTED PASTOR BARS FLOCK FROM CHURCH

MISHAWAKA (Ind.) June 17. (Exclusive)—Baptists of this city are holding their services in a lodge hall for the reason that they are barred from their own church by Rev. S. O. Redacre, whom they are trying to oust. The congregation desires to have Rev. A. C. Aschanhart of Rochester, Ind., as pastor. Several months ago the faction opposed to Mr. Redacre carried its battle into court, where it was decided that the best solution was to take a vote of the membership. This resulted in a majority against Redacre, but he refused to vacate.

HAIL CHASES COOLIDGE

Office Damaged by Storm

President Races Away in Car to Escape Downpour That Strikes Rapid City

Mountain Home Described as Just Exactly What Executive Likes

RAPID CITY (S. D.) June 17. (AP)—President Coolidge today raced from Rapid City to the State game lodge, thirty-two miles away, in his automobile and escaped a severe hail and rainstorm which broke over Rapid City shortly after he had left the executive offices.

The storm crashed in windows in his private office in Rapid City but he had progressed far enough into the hills so that with speedy driving he was able to circumvent the hail and rain. The storm was confined to Rapid City territory and did not hit the summer White House.

The hail which was of large size, crashed through two windows of the President's private office in the high school building in which he had been standing a short time before. The President's room was flooded with water but otherwise no damage was done to files and furniture.

JUST WHAT HE LIKES

Describing his surroundings as "just exactly what I like," the President today settled down to the program of work and play which he hopes to follow during his vacation in the Black Hills.

He had given his mountain retreat this praise a few moments before the hail and rainstorm struck Rapid City.

Mr. Coolidge came down to the Executive offices in the high school building here from the lodge shortly after 9 a.m., and after disposing of routine affairs met the request of newspaper correspondents for the resumption of the regular bi-weekly conference. There it was learned:

He plans some automobile trips to near-by cities in the Black Hills, including one to Deadwood in August to attend a western celebration calls the "Days of '76," and probably the tri-State rodeo round-up in Belle-fourche next month. No trips farther west are planned.

He understands that Ambassador Sheffield is returning from Mexico to attend the Yale commencement and possibly will visit him here.

He is aware of no new developments in the negotiations between this country and France for a treaty outlawing war.

He is appreciative of the many hospitalities extended him and his party in his summer surroundings.

For the summer he has no definite plans for conferences but does expect to talk with representatives of industry, agriculture and commerce from time to time.

John R. Green, secretary of the Commercial Club here, was invited into the office by Mr. Coolidge to receive his thanks for the commodious accommodations.

Under the wing of Senator Norbeck of this State, a delegation from Deadwood, all wearing the broad-rimmed hats of the West, was escorted into the office.

They asked Mr. Coolidge to come there for a celebration in August and he indicated he will.

When he walked into a room near the office, the President came on State Senator Robbins of this city, and Francis Case, Hot Springs publisher. They introduced themselves and Mr. Robbins brought up the subject of the McNary-Haugen farm bill, which the President vetoed.

SURPRISE TOPIC

The subject was one which Mr. Coolidge did not expect to have broached in such an informal manner because he looked surprised and did not answer immediately when Mr. Robbins said:

"Mr. President, I want to congratulate you on your courage and wisdom in vetoing the Mc-MaryHaugen bill. Then, after a pause:

"And I say that as one of the largest ranch owners in this territory."

Mr. Coolidge looked from the hills which he was viewing through a window as the statement was put and looked at the rancher-Senator quizzically. Then lowering a cigar which he had fastened in an ivory holder, he replied that the veto should have been more important to ranchers and farmers than to anyone else.

Mr. Case is credited with originating the idea of offering the Black Hills as a summer White House site. Mr. Robbins informed the President of Mr. Case's part in his vacation and he told the hot springs man that he feels deeply indebted to him.

Up today at 6 a.m., the President hastened to a breakfast of brook trout which he caught in Squaw Creek almost in front of his door at twilight last night. Both he and Mrs. Coolidge were about the lawn for an early-morning stroll. She wandered over the road for a closer look at some elk in the game reserve which had come inquiringly to the fence and promised some sugar for them tomorrow.

Before entering his car for the thirty-two-mile ride to the office, Mr. Coolidge showed some concern about license tags. He has used none so far on the new car at his disposal. Obtaining some cardboard he penned out the letters "U.S.S.S.," the same tags as used by the secret service car which always follows him. The one tag was placed on front and he hastened on to the office before completing the other.

Going through Hermosa, twelve miles from the lodge, the President saw a church building designated "Hermosa Congregational Church." This is the faith of the church he attends in Washington and he decided he will attend it next Sunday.

SENATORS COMMENT ON PRESIDENT'S BAIT

WASHINGTON, June 17. (AP)—President Coolidge's reported accomplishment of catching trout with worm bait stirred Senatorial circles today to the extent of comment from a Republican—Borah of Idaho—and a Democrat—Reed of Missouri.

Declaring he had never heard of worm fishing for trout, Mr. Borah said he believed the President caught catfish and thought they were trout, "but if they were trout they must have been imbeciles."

From Mr. Reed came this observation: "Any trout that will lie at the bottom of a lake and bite a worm is a degenerate trout. As a matter of generosity and common fairness, however, I hope he used a whole worm."

NEW RIVER PACT SEEN

Hope Expressed at Conference

Another Seven-State Treaty Subject of Colorado Visit by Arizonans

Governors' Meeting Planned; Party on Way to Get Views of Utah

DENVER, June 17. (AP)—Hope that another seven-State conference looking toward an equitable agreement for development of the Colorado River will be held "in the near future" was expressed by members of both the Colorado and Arizona river commissions at the conclusion of their executive session late today.

Neither Gov. Adams of Colorado, nor H. S. McCluskey, head of the visiting commission, would commit himself as to what Governor would take the initiative in calling such a conference, similar to that held in Santa Fe, N. M., in 1922, but McCluskey pointed out that not only Colorado and Arizona, but Utah and New Mexico as well, have indicated a desire for such a meeting. These States comprise four of the seven drained by the Colorado River.

BOTH SIDES PLEASED

Called in an effort to "get acquainted" and to exchange views on the Colorado River situation, the meeting resolved itself into a discussion of physical facts relating to dams, reservoirs, the acreage of irrigable lands and power development. Senator Charles A. Waterman did much of the interrogating of the visiting Arizonans who set forth the aspects of the Arizona-California river controversy as it effects their State.

Both McCluskey and Gov. Adams expressed themselves as well pleased with the results of the visit. McCluskey stated that Arizona wanted the Santa Fe compact amended in such part as to erase those sections which, he declared, infringe upon the rights of his State.

COLORADO READY

"Colorado will do everything in its power to bring about a proper solution, which we have good reason to believe can be done to the satisfaction of all seven States," Gov. Adams said today. "We favor another seven-State conference, and will take up the matter in more detail when the Arizona commission returns to Denver early next week with Gov. Hunt of Arizona. We feel that it would be advisable to have a conference of governors first before calling a conference of river commissioners."

The Arizona commission was to leave tonight for Salt Lake City to confer with Gov. Dern. At Salt Lake City the Arizonans expect to be joined by Gov. Hunt and plan to stop off here for another conference before proceeding to Cheyenne for a conference with Wyoming officials.

DERN PLANS TO CALL RIVER CONFERENCE

SALT LAKE CITY (Utah) June 17. sue a call for a conference to issue a cal for a conference of the governors of the six other States in the original Colorado River seven-State compact, he told the Associated Press tonight, after dispatches from Denver in which the hope that such a conference would be called were read to him.

"I had that very thing in mind some time ago when I sent 'feeler' letters out to the other six governors," Gov. Dern said. "I have been awaiting the reaction from those letters to learn what the sentiment dangerous to attempt it would be very simply to attempt to negotiate another compact. I believe we should simply attempt to iron out any kinks that there may be in the way of a unanimous agreement under the term of the present compact."

Gov. Dern would not say how soon he would issue the formal call for the meeting, explaining that he is awaiting a report of the result of the conferences now being held by the members of the Arizona commission, which is expected here tomorrow.

With Gov. Hunt of Arizona, Gov. Dern held a long conference with Representative Don B. Colton tonight. Various phases of the Colorado River controversy were discussed.

RANGE CASE APPEALED

Legality of Arizona Grazing Law to be Tested in High Court

PHOENIX, June 17. (AP)—The constitutionality of the penal statute of Arizona which prohibits the herding and grazing of sheep on a cattle range, or a range previously occupied by cattle, is to be tested in the Supreme Court of the United States, according to a petition for a writ of error in the case of Will Hancock, filed in the high tribunal today.

The petition asks that the high court accept jurisdiction of the case and determine the legality of the Arizona statutes. The case is the first of its nature to be carried to the Supreme Court of the nation from Arizona.

Hancock was convicted in the Pinal County Justice Court of violating the statute. He appealed to the Superior Court of that county, who sustained the conviction, and finally went before the State Supreme Court, who handed down a decision upholding the constitutionality and affirming the judgment of conviction.

How many Awnings?

"YES, I have always wanted an awning over this window and over that one there," said a housewife to our exterior decorator, "but I never got them because I didn't feel I could afford to put awnings on all the other windows too."

This woman, like so many others, had been under the delusion that one or two awnings on a house would not look well. As a matter of fact it is decidedly poor taste to clutter a home exterior with awnings, even if you can afford it. Get a few, but the very best. You need not worry about the ultimate effect if they are Swanfeldt Awnings.

The services of a Swanfeldt exterior decorator are at your disposal without charge or obligation. Telephone TRinity 0851. Have him show you the beautiful Swanfeldt patterns, both in the stripes and in the new nationally-advertised scroll design. Have him determine the correct number of Swanfeldt Awnings for your home. It may require only a few to give the effect you desire.

BRITISH TO KEEP RUBBER SCHEME

Stevenson Restrictions Not be to Abolished

Secretary for Dominions Tells Intentions

LONDON, June 17. (AP)—Announcement that the government does not contemplate abolition of the Stevenson rubber restrictions was made in the House of Commons today by Lieut.-Col. L. C. N. Amery, Secretary for the Dominions. He was replying to a question whether he was aware that there had been a heavy fall in the price of raw rubber the last few days and whether the government contemplated abolition of the rubber restrictions.

The Stevenson scheme for the restriction of rubber exports from Ceylon and Malaya was extended last October by the Colonial Office until November, 1927, but under new regulations, the regulations follow:

REGULATIONS GIVEN

1. If the average price of rubber in London is under 21, but not under 15 pence per pound during any quarter, the exportable percentage of standard productions for the ensuing quarter at the minimum rate of duty will be reduced by 10. If, however, the reduction thus effected is a reduction from the figure of 100 per cent, the reduced percentage for the ensuing quarter will be 90.

2. If the average price of any quarter is not under 21, but less than 24 pence, there will be no change in the ensuing quarter. If, however, in each of the three consecutive quarters, the average price is not under 21, then the percentage for the ensuing quarter will be increased by 10.

3. If the average price for any quarter is 24 or over, the percentage will be increased by 10 for the ensuing quarter. If, however, the increase effectable under this regulation is an increase from 90 per cent, the increased percentage for the ensuing quarter will be 100.

AMERICA'S INTEREST AROUSED

4. If the average descends below 15 in any quarter, the percentage in the ensuing quarter will be reduced to 90.

5. If the average exceeds 36 in any quarter, the percentage in the ensuing quarter will be increased to 100.

6. In no case will the percentage be increased above 100 or decreased below 60.

The announcement of the rubber exportation regulations attracted much attention in the United States. It was followed by the announcement in Washington that the United States government had taken control of the production and marketing of nine important commodities which the United States must purchase abroad. Appeals also were made for longer use of rubber articles.

Son of Standard Oil's Founder Also Active in Politics and Red Cross

NEW YORK, June 17. (AP)—John Teele Pratt, internationally known financier, brother of Herbert L. Pratt, president of the Standard Oil Company of New York, died suddenly today in his private office in the Standard Oil Building, 26 Broadway. His death was attributed to an attack of acute indigestion. He was 54 years of age.

During the Harding administration, as chairman of the National Budget Commission, Mr. Pratt directed a campaign under the slogan, "more business in politics and less politics in business."

He leaves his widow, Ruth Sears Pratt, New York's first woman alderman, and five children. Mrs. Pratt was elected in 1926 to represent the Republican "Silk Stocking District" of Manhattan.

Mr. Pratt was the son of the late Charles Pratt, co-founder of the Standard Oil Company, and the Pratt Institute of Brooklyn. He was a heavy stockholder in the Standard Oil Company and a partner or director in many corporations. He began his career as a lawyer. He served with the Red Cross in Paris during the latter part of the war, having the rank of major.

JUSTICE UNSHEATHES BLADE

Survey of Year's Anticrime Laws Indicates Society Discarding Moral Suasion for Sword

NEW YORK, June 17. (AP)—Measures designed to check crime have been passed by nineteen State legislatures thus far in 1927, a survey reveals. Thirteen other States adopted measures, such as those altering the penal codes to make former misdemeanors felonies, which were considered general anticrime legislation, but not specific checks on crime.

The measures adopted in the nine-teen States generally tended toward an increase of sentence, with a tightening of the legal net about the habitual criminal, the gangster, gunman and hold-up man.

A significant feature of the anticrime legislation was the tendency to follow New York's pattern in curbing the activities of habitual criminals and the operations of bands of organized criminals. A number of States enacted laws comparable to New York's Baumes Act, a piece of anticrime legislation passed in 1926. It provides a mandatory life sentence for fourth offenders and generally tightens up the criminal code.

NEW OFFENSES

The measures enacted in thirteen States range from Montana's banning of the chewing of mescal nuts by Mexican laborers, a practice held necessary in certain religious rites, to Oregon's new measure making it unlawful to skin dead stock without the owner's consent. The last measure is a check on cattle rustling. Oregon was also one of the nineteen States adopting legislation to check crime.

A number of legislatures discussed the carrying and use of firearms. Many States had already provided themselves with checks against this practice and several followed suit in 1927. Measures providing for criminal identification were passed by several legislatures.

NEW YORK SETS PACE

New York's Legislature passed seventeen of forty-one anticrime bills submitted by the Baumes Crime Commission, headed by Senator Caleb H. Baumes, author of the Baumes Act. Those failing of passage were considered the most important by the Baumes Commission. Most of the seventeen laws enacted are virtually amendments to the penal law and code of criminal procedure. One provides that in all cases where appeal may be taken by the defendant, the prosecution also may appeal.

Iowa's Legislature passed a score of bills designed to make more thorny the path trod by the feet of criminals. Most of the measures vest greater authority in peace officers and increase the functional capacity of prosecutors. The machine gun and automatic rifle are outlawed, a criminal identification measure was adopted and there was a general tightening of laws regarding automobile thefts and jury commissions.

DAKOTA MODIFIES

An habitual criminal law patterned after New York's Baumes Act, was the outstanding anticrime measure in South Dakota. The measure deviates from its pattern, however, in that it makes discretionary instead of mandatory the imposition of life sentence on fourth offenders.

A bill permitting the prosecution to comment on a defendant's failure to testify also was passed.

North Dakota added nine bills to the anticrime legislation of the year. Three of these are considered of prime importance. They are the Habitual Criminal Act, comparable to the Baumes Act, the uniform Motor Vehicle Theft Act, and the law eliminating the affidavit of prejudice in criminal cases. Other laws speed up appeals and clarify and amend details of criminal procedure.

Minnesota passed legislation establishing a State bureau of criminal identification and record, passed a modified copy of the Baumes Act and raised to five years the penalty for use of firearms in commission of a felony. As was done in several other States, a law was enacted making it compulsory for the District Attorney to file reasons for dismissals.

CALIFORNIA'S GOOD WORK

The California Legislature, having completely revised the Penal Code, adopted measures for speedier trials, always considered a crime deterrent. Laws were passed abolishing the raising of the plea of insanity during trial, making it more hazardous to use firearms in the commission of crimes, and adopting a habitual-criminal act with life sentence for fourth offenders. Third offenders are to get twelve years without parole. Insanity must be a part of the initial plea, else separate trial will be made of this issue, subsequent to trial for offense.

Nebraska adopted a law much like New York's Baumes law. New Jersey provided for life sentences for fourth offenders. Indiana's General Assembly passed bills providing for establishment of a bureau of criminal identification, codification of its penal code, and measures expected to speed up trials. Wyoming's legislators passed two bills to check the still-prevalent cattle thieft and New Mexico's lawmakers adopted measures to speed up trials and raise the penalty for embezzlement.

KANSAS LAW STIFF

Kansas, going most States one better, will now impose life sentence on third offenders. A second sentence for felony will be twice the length of the first, the legislators decided. Embezzlements by bank officers will bring them a fifty instead of a fifteen-year sentence under one new law. In Texas the embezzlement sentence was reduced from a minimum of five years to two years because of a general belief that the failure to obtain conviction was due to a too harsh sentence such conviction entailed.

Washington solons passed a bill making it a gross misdemeanor to throw tear bombs or similar devices. Oregon legislators adopted a resolution providing for speeding up of trials, which goes to popular vote June 28.

Utah's Legislature passed measures establishing a bureau for the registration of criminals and data pertaining to them, and enacted the uniform extradition law sponsored by the American Bar Association. Nevada now will be no place to commit a crime to be committed elsewhere, for the Legislature has passed a law making any crime planned in Nevada punishable there, no matter where committed.

DEATH FOR ROBBERY

First-degree robbery with firearms or other deadly weapons may bring the death penalty in Missouri under provisions of a bill passed by the 1927 Legislature. Arizona's effort at checking crime was limited to passage of a bill making it a felony to steal an automobile or any part thereof. Idaho's Legislature made an appropriation for the use of the State Board of Eugenics in putting into operation the 1925 sterilization law. The sterilization is for the feeble of mind, the insane, the epileptic, moral degenerates regarded as a social menace and habitual criminals.

The Maryland Legislature enacted two statutes tightening the crime laws. One provides sentence of twenty years for robbery with a deadly weapon. The other provides ten years additional sentence for convicts attempting to break jail.

ACTION NEAR ON WHITNEY PRISON CASE

Young Expected to Reach Decision on Syndicalism Conviction Before Monday

SACRAMENTO, June 17. (AP)—Gov. Young today indicated that he may dispose of the Anita Charlotte Whitney pardon case before leaving Monday evening for Los Angeles. The chief executive returned to his desk today after spending the past three days in San Francisco.

Friends of Miss Whitney are making a determined fight to save her from commitment to San Quentin prison to serve a term of from one to fourteen years for violating the State's criminal syndicalism law, of which she was convicted in Oakland in 1920. She will be sent to prison within the next few weeks if the Governor refuses to grant the pardon, as the remittitur from the United States Supreme Court, which in May upheld her conviction, is expected to be received in California late this month.

Gov. Young in indicating his decision may be forthcoming within the next few days, said he is spending all his spare time in studying the circumstances in the case. He has taken all the documents home and already has read the entire transcript. He now is reading it for a second time so that he will not miss any of the salient facts.

Judge Delays Signing Dodge Divorce Decree

DETROIT, June 17. (AP)—Circuit Judge Brennan announced today the divorce decree awarded Mrs. Lois Knowlson Dodge against Horace E. Dodge will not be signed until Mrs. Dodge is informed that the financial agreement providing for the care of their two children is a moral and not a legal obligation.

The financial arrangements were guaranteed by Mrs. Hugh Dillman, Dodge's mother, and are not legally binding, Judge Brennan said.

Dam, Check Gate and Water Flume Dynamited

Sutter Bypass Explosion Heard Far Away

Rice Growers Disgruntled by Flooding of Fields

SACRAMENTO, June 17. (AP)—Announcement was made today by officials of the State Reclamation Board that an investigation of the dynamiting of the McCrea weir operated by the board adjacent to the Sutter bypass, Sutter county, is under way.

In addition to field investigations now being made it was announced that the matter will be referred to the board at its next meeting.

The dynamiting, following a controversy between rice growers and the board over water backing up and overflooding rice fields, occurred at 12:18 a.m., last Monday. In addition to the dam and water or check gate, a section of the board's water flume was blown out.

The commission is advised that the explosion was heard at Sutter City, eight miles away.

R. O. Jones, assistant engineer of the Reclamation Board, said today regarding the dynamiting:

"The only apparent purpose was to prevent water from backing up on the lands of the rice growers above. The rice growers have complained informally of this condition, but had been informed that it was due to the clogged condition of the canal, which the board was unable to remedy because of lack of funds.

"The complainants were informed that there would be no objection to their cleaning the ditches on their own behalf, which work could have been done at a cost less than that of the dynamiting."

NEW JERSEY ARMORY DESTROYED BY FIRE

JERSEY CITY, June 17. (AP)—Fire today virtually destroyed the Fourth Regiment Armory in this city. The loss was estimated at from $1,000,000 to $1,500,000. Three firemen were overcome by smoke. All the equipment of the One Hundred and Thirteenth Infantry, N.J.N.G., was destroyed, save the American flag and a few banners and trophies. It was estimated 100,000 rounds of rifle ammunition exploded during the fire. Half an hour after the blaze started the bullets were flying so thickly that the firemen were forced out of the armory.

News of the MIDDLE WEST

DETROIT, June 17. (Exclusive)—The Hotel Normandie, 35 Congress street east, is to be closed at once, it was announced by George H. Fulwell, manager. Actual razing of the building will begin June 28. A twenty-five story office building and garage will be erected on the site by the First National Bank. The Normandie began operations under its present name in 1890, when it was remodeled and taken over by Carr and Reeves. Since that time it has been one of Detroit's most famous hotels, housing the city's best-known guests.

The State filed a suit at Lansing for $30,000 against Thomas E. Johnson, former State Superintendent of Public Instruction, in the Circuit Court for the county of Ingham. The suit was by summons and the particulars were not made known. The State some time ago called on Johnson to return approximately $5000 which an audit is said to have revealed he was short in his accounts. Johnson submitted records to show he was not short.

Attacked by two chicken hawks, Glen Campbell, 40 years of age, of Faithorn, Mich., required the services of a physician when the birds sent him running out of the woods almost blinded from the blood which flowed from his wounds. His scalp was ripped open and a long gash across his forehead went through his eyebrow. His hands and arms were deeply scratched and his shirt torn. The next day Campbell and a companion, armed with a shotgun, returned to the pasture to discover the nest of young which the parent hawks had sought to protect. Both men were attacked by the birds but succeeded in killing them.

Construction work will be started in August, it is understood. The location rejected by the government is on Broadway, near the proposed new Union station. The site committee's decision made no mention of a proposed parcel post building adjoining the depot, which was suggested in a compromise proposal.

City Council will be requested by W. C. Young, manager of the Goodyear Tire and Rubber Company's aeronautical department, to approve an expenditure of $250,000 to $500,000 for an Akron airport, it was announced. Young is chairman of the aeronautics committee of the Akron Chamber of Commerce, chairman of the Ohio Chamber of Commerce's committee on aviation, and former secretary of the Aeronautical Chamber of Commerce of America. EQUAL RIGHTS FIGHT RENEWED

Women Voters' League Fires Verbal Broadside

Only One Feminine Group Now for Amendment

Battle to Be Vigorous When Congress Reconvenes

BY FREDERIC J. HASKIN

WASHINGTON, June 17. (Exclusive)—At the next session of Congress there will be a renewal of the fight over the proposed "Equal Rights Amendment," sometimes referred to as the "Woman's Rights Amendment," and there are indications that it will be waged more vigorously than ever before. That Congress will pass the resolution which would submit the amendment to the several States for ratification is a matter of doubt, but it is altogether certain that the national law-making body will hear or receive a great mass of evidence and arguments on both sides of the controversy.

The proposed amendment is snappy and to the point. It provides succinctly that "men and women shall have equal rights throughout the United States and every place subject to its jurisdiction."

Organizations of women are arrayed against each other in the fight already made and in prospect, which will probably make it easier for men legislators to avoid or defer the issue. The amendment is sponsored by the Woman's party, which was the militant organization in the battle for woman suffrage, but it is stated that up to the present time that is the only national organization of women supporting it.

ELEVEN OPPOSED

Eleven such organizations are said to be actively opposing the amendment, while several others have listed it among matters to be studied. Leading the opposition is the National League of Women Voters, which has just fired the first broadside in the renewal of the battle. This takes the form of a monograph on "Special Legislation for Women in Industry," prepared by Miss Julia M. Hicks of the Connecticut State League.

It epitomizes the case of the opposition by declaring with emphasis that women should have equal rights with men, but even more forcibly that they should not be given identical rights. "The National League of Women Voters seeks equal opportunity for men and women to develop and exercise their abilities in every field. It believes that this equality of opportunity should be practical and real. It differs from the Woman's party as to what equality means and as to the method of obtaining it."

The league is not so much concerned about business women and professional women, holding that they are abundantly able to fend for themselves, but it actively champions special laws for women who work in industry, not only because this class of women workers can not look out for themselves, but because such laws are necessary to give women real, practical equality with men in industry. And it has been advised by constitutional lawyers that should the proposed amendment be adopted all such special legislation would be automatically nullified.

MOST STATES HAVE LAWS

Every State in the Union except Florida now has special laws of this character, all enacted after hard fights, and the league does not want to see that work undone.

Moreover, as Miss Hicks points out, there is certain to be no little debate as to what are the equal rights that Congress is to enforce in event of the adoption of the amendment.

For example, if a State law requires a man to support his wife, what would be the effect of this proposed amendment? Would a wife have to support her husband or would neither of them get support from the other? Some States now give a husband a greater interest in his wife's property than she has in his. How would the amendment affect this situation? Would the husband get what the wife gets now, or would the wife have the present share of the husband, or, since the law is now unequal, would the amendment abolish it altogether so that neither husband nor wife would have any interest in the other's property? Again, how would the amendment affect the laws providing penalties for sex offenses? Further, if men and women have equal rights throughout the United States which State shall set the standard? No two States have the same laws.

DETAILS TOO UNCERTAIN

"Only the Supreme Court of the United States could answer these questions," says Miss Hicks. "Meanwhile we would have great confusion and uncertainty. It makes the whole matter of the legal status of men and women and their relation to each other too much a matter for determination by the courts, and as long as the amendment stands, limits the power which the people now have through their State legislation to make such adjustments as conditions suggest to them to be wise."

In supporting the amendment, the Woman's Party in effect takes the position that justice should be the fundamental consideration in determining the matter; that as all men are guaranteed equality before the law, so justice dictates that women should be accorded equality with men. An impressive array of instances is cited in which legislation places women at a disadvantage as compared with men, and it is contended that the only way to correct that and to prevent anything more of the sort in the future is by adopting the constitutional amendment guaranteeing men and women equal rights and then seeing that Congress enforces it.

Opponents of the amendment do not deny that there are many cases in which women do not enjoy equal rights with men under the law, and they assert they are anxious to have that condition corrected. But they want to accomplish that end through the repeal or amendment of those laws that work an injustice to their sex, rather than through a radical change in the organic law of the nation which would wipe out all the protective legislation which has been obtained for women in industry in forty-seven States.

EVEN BREAK ASKED

As to this special legislation, an exponent of the Woman's Party point of view is quoted as having declared, "all we want from the men is an even break, a fifty-fifty deal," and the argument is advanced that the ultimate effect of such protective laws will be to "protect" women out of their jobs—there will, for example, be few jobs for women if the law establishes an eigh-hour day for them whereas men are permitted to work longer hours.

HEATH CASE JUDGE SAYS HE WAS FAIR

Lauderback Denies Charge He Sought to Impress Senator Shortridge

SAN FRANCISCO, June 17. (AP)—Replying to sensational charges made yesterday by Edward Cunha in an affidavit, Superior Judge Louderback today filed a counter-affidavit denying that he had been influenced by personal ambition to favor the defendant in the Frank E. Heath divorce case.

Cunha, counsel for Heath, yesterday charged that Judge Louderback could not be impartial in hearing the divorce case because the judge wished to impress Senator Samuel Shortridge, father of Attorney Samuel Shortridge, Jr., an attorney in the case. By favoring Attorney Shortridge, Cunha asserted, Judge Louderback hoped to gain the elder Shortridge's backing for appointment to the Federal judgeship in Northern California.

The Cunha attack followed Judge Louderback's accusation that Harry I. Stafford and Cunha, associates, had tried to bribe Harry McGovern, Judge Louderback's bailiff, to have the Heath case transferred to Judge T. I. Fitzpatrick's court. In his charge Judge Louderback was supported by an affidavit by McGovern.

Senator Shortridge today denied emphatically that he had been a party to any deal to back Judge Louderback. He declared he had never heard of the Heath case, and expressed annoyance that his name should have been connected with it.

GRASSHOPPER ARMY RUNS WILD

Millions of Voracious Insects Sweeping Tule Lake Area of California, Eating Everything Green and Causing Bitter War by Farmers

KLAMATH FALLS (Ore.) June 17. (AP)—Can human ingenuity devise some means of staving off concerted attacks of millions of grasshoppers in the Tule Lake district of Modoc and Siskiyou counties, Cal. — attacks which threaten to strip more than 20,000 acres of grazing and grain land of every vestige of green?

With grasshoppers boiling up out of egg beds in a continual stream, marching in battle array on grain fields, the situation today presented a serious aspect.

Yesterday, one army of hoppers struck on the west side of Tule Lake and stripped 100 acres of grain of every shoot of green. Reports were coming in hourly of damage in other sections.

Fire, poison and knowledge of the habits of the insect, are the weapons being used to control the blight.

With the first rays of the sun, the various divisions of hoppers bestir themselves, and early in the morning start their daily march for food. Covering from one-quarter mile to one-half mile a day, a division has a battle front of from 500 to 2000 feet, and extends back for a quarter-mile.

As the hosts of insects advance, first impression is of the ground moving. Closer inspection reveals millions of hoppers, about 100 to the square foot.

Already thirty tons of poisoned bran and molasses have been used.

Sheffield Says He's Not Quit Post in Mexico

WASHINGTON, June 17. (AP)—Ambassador Sheffield, who has been expected to resign his post at Mexico City, declined to discuss Mexican questions after a call at the State Department today, but made the brief statement that 'I have not resigned."

Secretary Kellogg, who stood beside the Ambassador during a talk with newspaper men, said Sheffield had "no yet" resigned. Neither would elaborate on the portent of Kellogg's phraseology.

CONTINUANCE GIVEN IN FLOOD ESTATE SUIT

SAN FRANCISCO, June 17. (AP)—By stipulation of counsel for the late James Flood and Constance May Gavin of Los Angeles, who is suing for a daughter's share of the Flood estate, the hearing on Mrs. Gavin's petition was ordered continued today from the scheduled date of the 30th inst. to September 1. The proceeding was a routine one and in no way affects the value of Mrs. Gavin's claim that she is an unrecognized daughter of Flood and therefore should be awarded a share of the estate. The stipulation was filed at Redwood City, where the estate is being probated.

STATE ACTS IN JUVENILE JAIL PUZZLE

Campaign Launched to Enforce Law Requiring Proper Detention Homes

SACRAMENTO, June 17. (Exclusive) Alarmed at what is termed the large number of juveniles confined in California jails, the State Department of Public Welfare today announced that it will lend every effort to enforce the section of the juvenile court law requiring that persons under 18 years of age, who are arrested must be held in detention homes pending trial and conviction.

"Properly supervised detention homes," says the department, "and the furtherance of a county opportunity or adjustment school program will be invoked to meet the problem."

In June, 1924, the agency reveals, there were 1609 juveniles in California jails; in 1925 there were 1889, and in 1926 there were 2143.

"The necessity of crowding young men and women who may be first offenders in close contact with advanced criminals," the department declares, "carries with it consequences of a far-reaching nature.

"The diseased and morally perverted prisoners are sources of contamination and yet few jails have proper facilities for their segregation.

"All available statistics indicate a greater number of inmates in jail year by year. From 1917 to 1926 there was an increase of approximately 1600. The enforcement of prohibition and the confinement of offenders against Federal laws doubtless contribute to this figure. But no argument can be more potent of the importance of quarters and methods of confinement."

NEWS OF SOUTHERN COUNTIES

HUSBAND KILLS WIFE WITH GUN

Santa Barbara Woman Met on Street and Shot

Effort to Have Man Declared Insane Unsuccessful

Slayer Shot Down by Police But Will Live

SANTA BARBARA, June 17.—Mrs. Rebecca Loftis, mother of a large family, at 11:30 o'clock this morning was shot and killed by her husband, Elmer Loftis, who approached her in the downtown business district and fired several shots into her body.

The murder was the aftermath of unsuccessful lunacy proceedings brought against Loftis on May 28, last, by his wife.

Loftis was shot down by Police Captain George Sloan several blocks from the murder and was taken to the Cottage Hospital, where he will recover.

According to witnesses, Loftis approached his wife and without warning pulled his gun and fired. According to his son, Grant Loftis, the gun was obtained in Ventura yesterday.

Loftis, who has resided in Santa Barbara for eight years, was tried before the Sanity Commission on the 2nd inst. and found "not insane." The certificate of sanity was signed by Dr. Harry L. Schurmeier and Dr. O. B. Luton, two of Santa Barbara's most prominent physicians and surgeons.

In the insanity complaint Mrs. Loftis charged "that he, at 909 Laguna street, on the May 24, last, attempted to poison his family by giving poison to his daughter and asking her to put it in the coffee."

He was arrested on the insanity complaint on the 1st inst. by Sheriff Ross.

Police Chief Kelley after the murder declared that officers had taken two guns away from Loftis since he was released by the Sanity Commission.

"Yesterday his son Grant came to me to try to get the guns back for his mother," said Chief Kelley. "I refused to give them up, however."

The original request for the arrest of Loftis was made by Dr. Kent R. Wilson on May 28, when he requested that the man be examined for his sanity.

Loftis is 52 years of age and his wife was 38. For several years he was proprietor of a messenger service in Santa Barbara, but for some months Mrs. Loftis had been compelled to help support her family by working as a waitress.

The shooting took place just as the noon hour rush was starting at the corner of Anacapa and Carrillo streets, in front of the Margaret Baylor Inn, two blocks north of the police station.

Hundreds of persons, attracted by the firing, surrounded Mrs. Loftis, and police declared that it was a wonder several were not injured.

Police and deputy sheriffs pursued Loftis, who ran east on Carrillo street for three blocks and ran for his home on Laguna street.

Great difficulty was encountered in clearing back the crowds. Refusing to surrender, police fired several shots at him, one of them lodging in his leg and causing him to fall.

According to officers, Loftis, having been found sane in one examination, will be prosecuted for first-degree murder.

CAT TWICE ATTACKS CHILD AT FULLERTON

FULLERTON, June 17. — Barbara Jean Smith., 4 years of age, daughter of Stewart S. (Shorty) Smith, well known in Southern California athletic circles, coach of the Fullerton Union High School, was being treated late today for severe injuries inflicted several hours earlier at the Smith home by a crazed pet cat. Screams from the little girl first attracted the father's attention. He rushed into the room where the child was and found that the cat had scratched her twice. As he turned to the telephone to call a veterinarian to examine the animals, the child was again attacked. Despite desperate efforts by Smith, the cat this time sank its teeth and claws into the child's cheeks and throat. The father succeeded, however, in forcing the cat from its little victim. The child was rushed to a local hospital. Smith shot the cat.

San Bernardino to Get Tibbet's Relics of West

RIVERSIDE, June 17.—Riverside is to lose the famous Jonathan Tibbet collection of relics of the Old West.

Formal order of the San Bernardino County Supervisors for preparation of a contract which that county will enter with Tibbet for permanent care and display of the collection has been issued.

Dist.-Atty. G. H. Johnson of San Bernardino county was requested by the Supervisors to write the contract providing for the housing and care of the exhibits in the proposed American Legion Building on Fourth street, near D street. Tibbet is to confer with Johnson on wording of the contract.

Tibbet will remove the collection from his residence on East Prospect avenue to its new home, according to the Supervisors' plans. R. H. Mack, secretary of the San Bernardino Chamber of Commerce, reported to the Supervisors the result of a recent conference with Tibbet and expressed confidence that adjustments satisfactory to Tibbet and the Supervisors could be accomplished in the work of assuring a proper display of the relics.

LAST DANGER TO DRY LAKE FARMERS PAST

STRATFORD, June 17.—What apparently will be the last scare for the Tulare Lake bed wheat farmers this season is over, as the spillway at Empire Wier No. 1, five miles northwest of here, which went out on Wednesday, sending lakeward some 5000 second feet of water has been repaired. For weeks three has been a heavy pressure of Kings River water against this wier, the water backing as far north as the Heinlen tract, west of Lemoore, and the break was not unexpected. The Schindler Canal assisted by the Blakeley Canal, however, took care of the unrush of water till repairs were made, diverting it mainly to the east side of the lake, and none of the water got into the center, where eight combined harvesters are now at work finishing up the harvesting of a large, fine body of wheat. Within a week all of the grain in the center, the lowest part of the lake bed, will be harvested and the rest of the immense crop of 100,000 acres of grain is not in any danger.

VALLEY IN FIGHT TO LOCATE AIRPORT SITE

CHATSWORTH, June 17.—Residents here and in other parts of the western end of San Fernando Valley are vitally interested in the announcement of Councilman Randall that another effort will be made to go over the merits of the valley airport site question before the matter of establishing the field is fully settled. The proposed site here is of 585 acres and has been offered at $1250 an acre. If the site is purchased a pneumatic chute will be constructed to carry the mails into Los Angeles, after the landing of the planes here. Councilman Randall has been here and looked over the site with H. J. Breese, former head of the local Chamber of Commerce, giving his approval to the location. One of the arguments in favor of the local field is the absence of fogs. In the matter of miles, the distance between Chatsworth and Los Angeles is not much greater than the other sited that have come under discussion.

SENIOR-ALUMNI ROW ENDED BY APOLOGY

SANTA BARBARA, June 17.—The row between the 138 graduates of the Santa Barbara High School and the Alumni Association, which came to a head on Tuesday night when the seniors rushed the business meeting of the alumni and in turn were barred from membership, came to an end today. The class sent in a written apology to the alumni and the executive committee, in turn invited the members to be guests at the banquet tomorrow night, although they have not yet been admitted to membership. Graduation exercises were held tonight.

BANKS ESCAPE HUGE LIABILITY

Ordered Given Into Custody of Clerk of Court

FRESNO, June 17.—Liability for the custody of notes aggregating more than $1,066,000 left in their possession and uncollectable following the close of the three-year period of liquidation of the assets of the Valley Bank, has been lifted from the Pacific-Southwest Trust and Savings Bank and the Bank of Italy by the Superior Court at San Francisco, according to information received here today.

At the petition of the liquidating banks, the court ordered that the notes be turned over to the custody of the court clerk and E. T. Sherer of Los Angeles who was recommended for the responsibility by Clarence M. Booth, San Francisco attorney for plaintiffs in intervention in a stockholders' suit to have the taking over of the Valley Bank by the liquidating banks set aside.

The banks' request that they be relieved of their responsibility for the notes followed a tender of the asserted uncollectible paper to a committee representing the stockholders of the bank, which was refused by the committee.

The notes are the only unliquidated assets of the Valley Bank, which was taken over by the Pacific-Southwest and the Bank of Italy in March, 1924, when John F. Johnson, then superintendent of banks, approved the move after bank examiners reported that the Valley Bank was in a precarious condition due to having a large amount of bad paper among its assets.

In their report of the liquidation, the Pacific-Southwest and Bank of Italy said that in addition to finding more than $1,000,000 of the paper held by the Valley Bank uncollectible, they lost $600,000 of their own money in the liquidation proceedings, during which all depositors were paid in full, while stockholders received nothing.

Trial of the suit of minority stockholders to have the liquidation set aside and the Valley Bank re-established on the basis of March, 1924, after having dragged through the courts in San Francisco for two years, is now tentatively set for trial on September 19, next.

Attorneys interested in the case estimate that approximately three months will be required for trial of the suit.

The stockholders charge that the Pacific-Southwest, the Bank of Italy and Johnson were guilty of conspiracy in connection with the proceedings incident to the liquidation, and they are seeking $900,000 damages in addition to the restitution of the Valley Bank's assets.

MAN FACES TRIAL FOR BOYCOTT THREATS

REDLANDS, June 17.—The case against James R. Rodman, charging that he threatened merchants to force them to give him advertising for the Labor Journal, has been transferred from the court of Justice Lynn in Bear Valley, to the court of Justice C. G. Potter of this city. The charge is made that Rodman told Bear Valley merchants that people would boycott them if they did not advertise in his journal. His defense is that he meant the people as a whole, not any one class of people, and that he was acting on his own responsibility and not of the paper he represented. Rodman now is at liberty on $500 bond approved by Justice George W. Holbrook of San Bernardino and signed by J. K. Tibbitts, editor of the Labor Journal, and B. N. L. Levering, road contractor.

PASADENA TEACHERS' SALARIES MODIFIED

PASADENA, June 17.—Further modification of the salary schedule as it affects directing principals of Pasadena public schools was approved today by the Board of Education on recommendation of Supt. John Franklin West. This action was taken because the schedule adopted last week unintentionally caused an actual reduction in the salary of two principals. The revised schedule is as follows: Schools of from 450 to 650 enrollment, minimum salary of $2800 and maximum salary of $3400, an increase of $100; 650 to 900 enrollment, minimum of $3000 and maximum of $3600, an increase of $100; 900 and upward, minimum of $3200 and maximum of $3900, an increase of $100.

JACKSON W. MAHON DIES

Had Been Judge of Superior Court in Kern County for Thirty Years, Large Part of Time, Presiding

BAKERSFIELD, June 17.—Jackson W. Mahon, judge of the Superior court in Kern county for thirty years, a large part of which time he was the presiding officer, passed away at his home here this morning, following an illness of three days.

Judge Mahon was born in Tennessee in 1856 and while still a youth he came to California with his parents, his father being a prominent southern minister, he serving as chaplain under Gen. Kirby Smith during the war between the States.

The Mahon home for a number of years was in Merced county, where the son was admitted to practice law. Later and in the early '80's he came to Bakersfield and for more than forty-five years he had made his home here.

In the '90's Judge Mahon was recognized as a leader of the local bar. In 1896 he was nominated for judge of the Superior Court and in a hard-fought contest in which his opponent was the late Judge A. R. Compton, Judge Mahon was the victor and from then until January 1 of this year, he was continuously in office.

During a part of the same period his brother, S. W. Mahon, was justice of the peace in Bakersfield, and another brother, Kirby S. Mahon, filled and still fills the position of Superior Judge in Sutter county.

In the last election, he was defeated by Judge Lambert, due to the fact that his failing physical condition was widely recognized.

Judge Mahon was a member of the Bakersfield Masonic order. After coming to this city, he was united in marriage to Miss Rachel E. Nash, a native of Dyer county, Tennessee, who survives him. He also leaves a son, Jackson H. Mahon, Bakersfield attorney, and a daughter, Mrs. Ruth Knight of Los Angeles.

Valley Tires at Puss-in-Corner Police Changes

VAN NUYS, June 17.—After spending a week here as police commander of the San Fernando Valley division, Capt. W. L. Hagenbaugh has been retransferred to the Sawtelle district, and Capt. F. E. Kiercy is now in charge. Before the arrival of Capt. Hagenbaugh, Capt. C. A. Hodson was in command for several months, succeeding another half-dozen police commanders who were retransferred puss-in-the-corner fashion hardly before they became acquainted with the people of the district or the patrolmen of the division.

With the arrival of Capt. Kiercy at the Van Nuys headquarters of the division, leading citizens in the district sent a petition to police headquarters in Los Angeles asking that the apparent injudicious transfers cease. In answer to the request it is understood that Deputy Chief James P. Lyons has written that the future policy of the department will be to maintain a permanent police head in each of the several Los Angeles divisions and that Capt. Kiercy is likely to stay here for good.

The statement is favorably received by patrolmen at the various stations in the valley division. The men have expressed themselves as being constantly "up in the air" over the many transfers, at times not knowing who to report to or from whom to take their police orders.

JUDGE RUSSILL ON BENCH AT VAN NUYS

VAN NUYS, June 17.—Judge Louis P. Russill has been permanently appointed to preside over the Van Nuys branch of the Los Angeles Municipal Court, which was established here some time ago with Justice H. A. Decker in charge. Ernest Stout is clerk of the court. Since the opening of the tribunal scores of misdemeanors and small claims cases have been tried or settled out of court. All valley traffic cases and liquor-law violations originating in San Fernando Valley have been adjudicated here. The court is a great convenience to principals, lawyers and witnesses, who, heretofore have been forced to journey to Los Angeles back and forth to attend court proceedings.

BAR ASSOCIATION ON PERMANENT FOOTING

VAN NUYS, June 17.—The San Fernando Valley Bar Association is completing its membership of twenty-five. The branch will affiliate at once with the Los Angeles Bar and has started on an educational campaign to acquaint the public with the purpose of the organization. Robert Hanley of Van Nuys is president and C. Newell Carns of Lankershim is secretary. It was through the efforts of Hanley and other members of the association that the branch of the Municipal Court was established here a few months ago.

PAGEANT IN ROSE BOWL

Pupils of Pasadena School Present Most Elaborate Spectacle Before 60,000 Persons

PASADENA, June 17.—Filling the Rose Bowl to capacity more than 60,000 persons late this afternoon witnessed the presentation of "Springtime and Youth," the most elaborate pageant ever presented in connection with Pasadena High School outdoor commencement exercises, at which 861 diplomas were presented to members of the graduating class.

Presenting an impressive spectacle, more than 3000 students took part in the pageant and offered a dramatization of youth's attainment of success and happiness by application of academic knowledge and fair life attitudes. Music was furnished by the Woman's Symphony Orchestra of Los Angeles, and a double male quartet.

Concluding the pageant in a processional which brought protracted applause from spectators, candidates heard the invocation by Dr. Merle N. Smith, and addresses by Stanley Hahn, class president, and Lorna Gunning Macdonnell, valedictorian. Presentation of the class by William F. Ewing, principal, to John Franklin West, superintendent, followed. Presentation of diplomas was made by N. P. Moordyke, president of the school board.

Today's exercises were the most impressive ever held by the local high school and the attendance total is expected to set a new record despite overcast skies.

DIPLOMAS PRESENTED GLENDALE GRADUATES

GLENDALE, June 17.—"Modern youth is not in revolt but it is adventuring on new and broader wings, with more modesty and more bravery than the youth of any other generation," declared Dr. Mary Aurelia Reinhardt, president of Mills College, Oakland, in an address last night to the 345 students of the Glendale Union High School who received their diplomas at the commencement exercises.

"Youth cannot dictate who its parents or grandparents shall be, but aside from that everything that youth has today is of its own making. Youth loves good things spontaneously; it is curious to learn, to experiment and it is really not destructive," said Dr. Reinhardt.

Ordean Chase, a junior, was presented with the medal of the American Chemical Society, in recognition of his having won the California prize in a nation-wide essay contest conducted by the society.

PASADENA, June 17. — Footballs will again sail over the goal posts at the Rose Bowl on Monday when teams representing Stanford University and the University of Southern California clash in a preseason game before cameras from the First National studios of Burbank. Officials of the studio today invited Pasadenans to watch the filming of the play.

ONE PEEP COSTS MAN LIBERTY FOR MONTH

SANTA ANA, June 17.—A. Quintanta peeped into a woman's room early today through a transom and because he did, his next thirty days will be spent in the County Jail. Quintanta engaged rooms at the Waverly Rooms here. Next to him was a room occupied by a young woman. When the woman woke up this morning a mirror across the room revealed to her that a man was peeping through the transom. She got up, dressed and notified the landlord. An officer was called and Quintanta was placed under arrest on a disorderly conduct charge. In Judge Talbott's court the woman told her story. Quintanta pleaded guilty and Judge Talbott sentenced him to jail for thirty days.

Fontana Picks New Officers for Chamber

Other officers chosen by the organization are M. C. Hunter, first vice-president; Rowland Cox, second vice-president; Cornelius De Bakcsy, secretary, and Phil Deicher, treasurer.

Mr. Cox served as secretary during the last term and Mr. Deicher held the post to which he was re-elected.

The election of officers was held at the regular June luncheon meeting of the Chamber of Commerce at the Fontana Farms Inn and was marked by addresses recapitulating the growth experienced by this community since its founding fourteen years ago. Announcement also was made that meetings will be suspended during the summer months, but that the regular business will be carried on by the board of directors.

MYSTERY MAN FOUND UNCONSCIOUS IN ROAD

VISALIA, June 17.—According to the Tulare county Sheriff's office, the County Hospital has become one of the "ports of missing men," as all efforts of the officers to pierce the identity of a young man of about 30 years of age, whom they picked up unconscious three days ago along the highway north of this city and removed to the hospital, have so far proved unavailing. Apparently the man had not been struck by an automobile, or otherwise injured through accident, and physicians are at a loss to account for the continued unconscious condition. This morning, they state, he was able to get up, but seemingly in a dazed condition refused either to eat or to talk. The man, evidently a laborer of the transitory type, wore brown trousers and was without a coat, and carried a roll of blankets.

Santa Ana, Gretna Green of California, Has Beat Last June's Marriage License Record

SANTA ANA, June 17.—Almost on the verge of being overwhelmed by an avalanche of marriage license applications, attaches of the office of County Clerk J. M. Backs today predicted that the present month will be the largest number of weddings in the history of Orange county.

Figures obtained at Dan Cupid's headquarters at Santa Ana, known throughout the West as California's Gretna Green, showed that June, 1926, held the matrimonial record, a total of 533 licenses having been issued during that month. It is the only month that has topped the 500 mark, though last December barely missed it, with 495.

This June, however, is already nineteen licenses ahead of last June's record to this date. With half of the month gone, the total up to last night was 280, as compared to 261 at the corresponding time in June, 1926. If the rate is maintained the month would set a record of 560, a considerable gain over the previous record month, it was pointed out.

The increase may be even higher, as the matrimonial traffic did not "hit its stride" until the month was well advanced. The early days of June saw a lull in the demand for licenses. During the last week, however, the Hymen business with the Hymen business has been booming with the usual rush of young men being married in connection with the close of school. Backs said that during the part of the week he issued licenses to young people pending her graduation, after notice of application for marriage of an applicant had been posted three days before the issuance of the license.

The County Clerk's office will be closed during July, the only month in which no licenses are issued, and Backs and his staff will take a vacation during August. The office will be open, however, for the issuance of emergency licenses.

The "hasty" marriages are largely attributed to the fact that couples have three days in which to wait after applying for a license before they can be married, and his office is besieged with applications for licenses on the day before the three days are up. Backs said that now getting married ought to be a cinch, as their wedding march will be played by the whole city was obliged to go.

MARINES IN NICARAGUA EMBARKING

First Contingent Starts for San Diego on Procyon, Due on 25th Inst.

WASHINGTON, June 17. (AP)—The first of the more than 3000 American marines in Nicaragua have started for home, the Navy Department was advised today, with the sailing from Corinto of the supply ship Procyon and the tug Partridge with three officers, sixty-six enlisted men, one hospital corps man, four motor vehicles and twenty tons of aviation equipment. The vessels are due to arrive at San Diego the 25th inst.

Secretary Wilbur said today that since the military situation in Nicaragua had completely subsided the marines there would be withdrawn as quickly as possible, although he did not indicate how many would be kept there for policing purposes until the American-supervised elections are held in 1928.

Rear-Admiral Julian L. Latimer, commanding the special service squadron in Nicaraguan waters, who will be relieved of his special assignment shortly at his own request because of the illness of his daughter at Balboa, has left Nicaragua with his blue jacket force and it is expected that future conditions will govern the number of marines that will be withdrawn from time to time from shore duty in that country.

Man Kills Self After Slaying of His Partner

SAN FRANCISCO, June 17. (AP)—Arthur Moskowitz was slain today and police announced belief that he had been shot by Herman Sydel, his partner in a bottling works, who later went to his home and committed suicide.

Workmen at the bottling works told of hearing angry words between the two proprietors, and later found Moskowitz's body under a pile of sacks in an attic. He had been shot through the head three times.

Meanwhile Sydel had gone to his home, told his wife he was ill and retired to his room. The wife heard a shot a few minutes later, and discovered her husband unconscious from a bullet wound in his head. Sydel's revolver, with four chambers discharged, lay beside him. He died at a hospital later.

Police said the two men had been partners for about two months. They had been quarrelling over business matters for some time.

"Since our arrival at Gibraltar," he said in a statement, "the commanding officer had given up all ideas of soldiering, and it is better that one man should die than a whole regiment be ruined.

"I have made a mess of things. I missed the first shot and hit him with the second, which I meant for myself."

SHIPPING and Los Angeles Harbor NEWS

HARBOR CITRUS TRAFFIC GROWS

Two Ships Booked to Take Out 77,000 Export Boxes

Total Exceeds 1923 Domestic and Foreign Combined

Also Entire 1926 Shipments in Overseas Trade

Indicative of the enormous growth during the past three years of Los Angeles Harbor's citrus exports, 77,000 cases of oranges will be loaded aboard two steamers on the 27th inst. for shipment to the United Kingdom. This huge movement exceeds the entire annual export, domestic and foreign, of the port in citrus products for 1923 and exceeds the entire foreign export for 1926.

The motor liner Dreschdyk of the Holland-America Line, will take out 32,000 cases of oranges, while the British motor liner Pacific Shipper of the Furness-Pacific Line will load out 45,000 cases. The two consignments are the first of a series of large shipments moving to the United Kingdom and North Europe during the next two months.

Southern California citrus exports from this port to Europe, United Kingdom and the Orient are this season expected to exceed 400,000 cases, while a total of 90,000,000 cases of fruit are expected to be shipped out of the State for both domestic and foreign consumption.

As a result of the great increase in citrus exports, the fleet of refrigerator ships plying out of Los Angeles Harbor in foreign trade has jumped to twenty-nine vessels, with a total refrigeration space of 2,082,000 cubic feet.

Citrus growers estimate that the 1927 crop of oranges and lemons in the Southland will exceed 81,000,000 cases, with a value of approximately $60,000,000.

HEAVY PASSENGER TRAVEL AT PORT TODAY

Today will busy in the passenger trade at the port, 800 passengers arriving or sailing on two off-shore liners in addition to the seven coastwise passenger departures and arrivals.

Five hundred travelers from New York, Havana and the Canal will arrive at daylight aboard the Panama-Pacific liner Finland, while at noon 300 passengers will go out to Hawaii aboard the Los Angeles liner City of Los Angeles.

Among those Honolulu-bound will be George Contreras, chief prohibition enforcement officer of the United States District Attorney's staff, who is going out to the Island for an extended rest. Others sailing will include Miss Cecilia De Mille, daughter of Cecil De Mille, the producer, accompanied by her friends, Mrs. Edna Thomas and Miss Josephine Thomas; Russel Hall, Pasadena capitalist; W. A. Butchart, Denver manufacturer; and D. D. Thatcher, Pueblo (Colo.) banker; Loran D. Sale, president of the Western Wholesale Drug Company, and J. Hartley Taylor, president of the Taylor Milling Company.

Nineteen thousand cases of oranges, the largest shipment for Scandinavia in several years, will go out to the North Europe today aboard the Norwegian motorship Knute Nelson, of the Norway-Pacific fleet. Sailing aboard the Knute Nelson for Southampton will be Miss B. M. Wahl, local scenic artist.

Capt. J. Martin Sivertsen, Pacific Coast manager of the Norway-Pacific Line, came down from San Francisco to meet the vessel and will remain here a week on an inspection tour of the line's terminal facilities.

Capt. Olaf Lie, veteran master of the General Petroleum's Norwegian motor tanker Nordanger, now in port from the Orient, was to have left for Norway today on his first vacation in five years, but he decided to postpone his leave to take the ship back to Shanghai.

The extra voyage is being made by Capt. Lie because the Nordanger's loaded draft is twenty-nine feet and seven inches, whereas Shanghai's main channel is twenty-nine feet deep. He decided, he said, that he, an old-timer, had better take the risk than his youthful chief officer, Conrad Espeseth.

Three hundred and fifty passengers went north last night to San Francisco and Seattle aboard the Admiral liner H. F. Alexander. Among her outbound passengers was Mrs. Joseph B. Hayes, wife of the assistant auditor of the Los Angeles Shipbuilding and Dry Dock Corporation. Among the liner's 227 inbound passengers yesterday morning were Baron and Baroness De Grandcourt, British nobility, who have been hunting in Canada, and J. W. Egan, chief editorial writer of the Tacoma Ledger.

The new McCormick steamer Absaroka, recently purchased by the line from the United States Shipping Board for intercoastal freight service, arrived on her maiden visit yesterday in command of Capt. Nels Sparr. The Absaroka will operate in the coast-to-coast trade of the McCormick Line with the steamers Charles R. McCormick, Sidney N. Hauptmann and West Cape. She brought here from New York, Boston and Philadelphia 3250 tons of general cargo and a forty-one-ton mahogany yacht shipped from Philadelphia for a Seattle yachtsman.

A new joint freight tariff naming rates from Los Angeles to all Caribbean Sea ports via Panama and connecting ship lines, has been signed by the Panama Mail Steamship Company, effective July 1, it was announced yesterday by Guy F. Ruck, district freight agent. The new tariff covers through rates on through bills of lading and is expected to materially increase cargo trade between this port and the Caribbean range.

Capt. Paul Dillingham Chandler was down yesterday getting acquainted with the harbor staff of the Marine Exchange, whose management he will take over July 1. He was accompanied by Maj. C. A. James, present manager, who will relieve Clarence F. Matson of some of his duties in the foreign trade department of the Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce. Capt. Chandler, although a wartime major, never really was a captain, he confided. He got that sobriquet fastened to him years ago in New York, when a ship master failed to show up, and the ship just had to sail else some Eskimos would be without their overcoats. Chandler signed as the ship's master, and the overcoats reached the Eskimos before the icicles. The title has followed him relentlessly ever since. The Dillingham in his name is a discard since boyhood friends shortened it to Dill, and then nicknamed him "Pickle." Chandler's appointment has found a happy response on steamship row, as he brings years of intimate shipping experience to the office, and acquaintance with Los Angeles' maritime field, as manager for the Luckenbach Line here until two years ago.

The steamers Romulus and Remus have been sold by the Latin-America Line, in pursuance to the company's policy of replacing steamers with motorships on the Pacific Coast-Chile run, and increasing that fleet to six vessels in the near future. The new motorship Reina is now en route here from Hamburg to replace the Remus, which will enter the East American trade to Europe for the Norwegian-America Line, new owners. The Romulus will continue on the present run for the time being.

Molly Ellis's kidnaping and the murder of her mother attracted wide notice at the time, and the British authorities in India made strenuous efforts to apprehend the perpetrators of the crime. The girl was rescued unharmed, and three men were arrested by the Afghan government and deported to Turkestan.

BEATING VICTIM TO PROSECUTE

ATLANTA (Ga.) June 17 (AP)—Threats of death kept Bart Singleton, farmer, silent for two months after a hooded band severely beat him, but now that a man he thinks was one of his assailants has been arrested on a charge of beating a woman, Singleton has determined to prosecute.

While the masked men were beating him a breeze lifted the hood from one of his assailants, Singleton said, declaring that he recognized W. G. Acree, principal of the Eastonville High School. Acree is under arrest with three other men on charges of having participated in the whipping of Mrs Ansley Bowers and her 15-year-old son last Sunday night.

Five whippings have occurred in the vicinity recently.

Joshua Little ON EVOLUTION

I CAN'T help believing there's a good deal in the evolution theory. I've known some people who still have insect souls.

Yet the world is full of disproofs, too. Nobody with any animal instinct in him would learn to smoke or drink or wear hard collars.

Every time I light a cigar I show there's no spa blood in me. And if you'll supply good ones by the box I'm willing to demonstrate for the fundamentalists all day long.

Few of the things we call beastly really are. No beast would descend to most of 'em.

It's easy to find a dog that will die for a man, but it would be quite a news item to find a man who would die for a dog.

It's easy to find men who will cheat their benefactors, but I never heard of even a domesticated monkey that would.

A cat will stick to you, no matter how poor you are or how miserably you take care of her. Yet sometimes we are so unjust as to call some women cats.

Yes, Pomaine, you can't prove evolution by arguments so long as you disprove it by what you are. And that's just what most of us do,—when it comes to showing the lack of good, sound monkey sense.

SEALS DEFEAT ANGELS AGAIN

Seraph Rally in Ninth Run Short of Tying Count

Homers Give San Francisco First Five Markers

BY BOB RAY

Marty Krug's ailing Angels came close again yesterday. They put on a rally in the ninth that produced one run and advanced the tying and winning markers to second and third with one out, but Lefty Williams came to Bob Geary's rescue and ended the excitement, so the Seals walked off with an 8-to-7 victory that evened up the series.

GUY WILLIAMS.

The Seals got off to a five-run lead in the first three innings because Tex Weathersby threw a couple of home-run balls to Frank O'Doul and Gussie Suhr with men on the paths, but at that the Angels managed to stay up within shooting distance, even if their shooting didn't mean anything. Dick Moudy, who started, was anything but a puzzle and was lifted for a pinch-hitter after the Seraphs had touched him for two three-run splurges. Geary pitched good ball for three innings but he, too, had to be lifted when the Angels broke loose with their belated ninth-inning rally.

YARRISON RETURNS

"Rube" Yarrison, who has been on the shelf for some couple of months with a bad flipping arm that was operated on, returned to active duty in the fourth inning and got by in good shape for five rounds. Rube was touched for three runs, but one of them was made with the aid of an error. Al Smith wound up the Cherub chucking corps of the day, twirling the ninth after Yar-

Fullerton and Alhambra to Mix Today

The prep school baseball championship of Southern California will be decided at Fullerton today, when teams representing the Fullerton and Alhambra high schools clash for the Southland's premiere honors. The Oilers, being defending champions, play on their own home grounds.

A tight battle looms throughout nine innings of fast baseball. The title-defending team is unbeaten in some thirty-four games played this year, including victories over the Moors in two practice contests, and because of this clever record, has been made favorite to repeat its victory of last year.

NO DISSENSION IN HEAVY RANKS

Declares Jack All Set to Box Sharkey July 21

Talk of 15 Per Cent Doesn't Bother Rickard

Ex-Champ Quits Los Angeles for New York

JACK DEMPSEY.

The bone in Jack Dempsey's teeth as he headed east from Los Angeles with his wife, Estelle Taylor, and a new press agent, is nothing to worry about as far as the former heavyweight champion's comeback engagement with Jack Sharkey is concerned, the promoter declared. Dempsey had announced he would not fight Gene Tunney for the championship in September for a mere 15 per cent of the gate if his comeback campaign carried him safely past the Boston Lithuanian.

TUNNEY PROTESTS

Tunney, under the impression that the Sharkey-Dempsey melee would be fought in August, protested to the promoter today that such an arrangement jeopardized the staging of a title defense in September, due to possible injury in subsequent training to the winning fighter and the impossibility of substituting a worthy opponent at such a late date.

Rickard squelched that uprising by declaring Dempsey would meet Sharkey in the Yankee Stadium, July 21. Jack Delaney, who defends his light-heavyweight crown against Mike McTigue here July 7, will be held in reserve in case of accident to either battler, Rickard said.

Dempsey's statement that he would

Scotch Pro Collects Crown After Great Battle

Armour Trails by Two Shots But Putt Saves Day

Seesaw Battle Decided on Sixteenth Green

BY ALAN GOULD
Associated Press Sports Editor

OAKMONT (Pa.) June 17. (AP)—Tommy Armour of Washington, D. C., doughty, steel-nerved son of golf's native domain, today became the open champion of the United States.

TOMMY ARMOUR

In a comeback as flashing and dramatic as the finish that carried him to a tie the day before, the lean, war-scarred Scotch professional broke the heart of the dashing and sleek-haired Los Angeles professional, Harry Cooper, captured their eighteen-hole play-off for the title by a margin of three strokes and stepped to the throne that Bobby Jones had left in the sand traps of Oakmont's embattled terrain.

Armour triumphed by the decisive score of 76 to 79 for the final round that broke the deadlock in which they finished yesterday in 301 strokes for the regulation seventy-two holes of the tournament competition and sent the coveted silver trophy cup to the mantel on the fashionable Congressional Country Club, where Tommy is the pro.

Armour clinched the championship today on the sixteenth hole, where Cooper fought a losing battle with Oakmont's sand and forfeited two strokes, but it was a fifty-five-foot putt on the hole before that put Tommy back in the fight and a spectacular chip shot dead to the pin on the seventeenth that saved the title for the lanky, straw-hatted golfer.

The drama of Armour's triumph was enacted about these three treacherous holes, the "Waterloos" of many a previous championship hope in the three preceding days. Armour was a stroke behind Cooper going to the 475-yard fifteenth hole, a margin that the Los Angeles pro had gained by a flying start on the last nine, checked only when Armour regained one of the shots on the short thirteenth.

Both found traps going to the fifteenth green and were on in three shots each, their balls some fifty feet from the cup. But Armour,

HOMERS WIN FOR STARS

Kerr's Circuit Clout and Heath's Four-bagger With Man on Give Hollywood 3-2 Victory

SAN FRANCISCO, June 17.—Home runs by Johnny Kerr and Minor Heath beat the Missions today, Hollywood winning, 3 to 2, making three in a row for the tail enders. Kerr got his home run to open the sixth inning and it offset the four-base clout made by Bobby Jones in the first inning. Heath got his four-bagger in the ninth and drove in Segrist ahead of him.

The Missions staged an incipient rally of their own in the last half of the ninth when Wade doubled and scored on Hooper's single. But with two runners on base and only one out, Dick McCabe went to the relief of Bill Murphy and he closed the game by getting rid of Rose on a fly to McNulty and McDaniel on a pop fly to Kerr.

JOHNNY IKERR.

Hollywood is not acting like a tail-end club at all this week. The club has good pitching, a nifty infield now that Heath is stationed at first base and the team does not need many runs to win. Clyde Barfoot pitched good enough ball for the Missions today to win an ordinary game, but Murphy, a sturdy young Irishman from the desert country of Arizona, also pitched mighty restrictive ball and when he needed

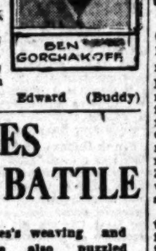
GORCHAKOFF FALLS BEFORE WILLIAMS IN TWO SETS ON PENNSYLVANIA COURTS

HAVERFORD (Pa.) June 17.—California's sole hope in the Pennsylvania tennis championship here today fell before the experienced racket of R. Norris Williams, former American Davis Cup captain, when Ben Gorchakoff, southern senior champion, dropped a hard-fought, 6-1, 6-2 decision to the cup defender.



BEN GORCHAKOFF

Gorchakoff caused the eastern fans to sit up and take notice in the early round with his upsets of Edward (Buddy) Mann and Wallace F. K. Johnson. After his exhibition here yesterday the fans and critics expected the western collegian of Occidental College to give Williams a battle. The southern title-holder started out as though he meant business when he captured his first service game, but the serving of Wil-

GRIMES BEATS RAMIES IN HOLLYWOOD BATTLE

Piling up a comanding lead in the first six rounds, Billy Grimes of Australia defeated Pico Ramies in the ten-round main event at Hollywood last night.

The Anzac leather pusher got off to a fast start and carried the fight to his Mexican opponent. Early in the mixing he had Ramies bleeding from the mouth and opened up a cut over the right eye.

Ramies's southpaw style was duck soup for Grimes, who beat the Mexican to the punch frequently throughout the opening rounds. Grimes's weaving and dodging style also puzzled Ramies and the Australian sunk his mitts in the Mexican's face and stomach without much trouble.

Ramies's style was against him from the start. He attempted to box Grimes from long range and seldom got in close enough for effective work. In the seventh round, Ramies began boring in and scored effectively for the first time during the fight. A solid left which caught

MAD BULL RETAINS LEAD IN 480-MILE COAST MARATHON

BENBOW RESORT, (Cal.) June 17. (AP)—Mad Bull, the Karook Indian leading in the 480-mile marathon run from San Francisco to Grant's Pass, Or., arrived here tonight, 210 miles from the starting point, having covered the seventy-three miles from Willits in twenty-four hours. Cochee and Melika, two of the Zuni runners, were approximately nine miles behind the leader, but the Zunis planned to keep on running, while Mad Bull is to rest here for several hours.

Jamon, the other Zuni entrant and the winner of the $100 prize for being the first to arrive at San Rafael, is being taken from Cloverdale to Coolidge Park, south of here, for a medical examination. If he is pronounced fit, he will be taken back to Cloverdale to continue the race, approximately two days behind the rest of the field.

Eleven Indians started in the race from San Francisco Tuesday morning, with a prize of $1000 going to the first to reach Grant's Pass. The time limit set for completion of the run is fifteen days, although the leader has nearly completed half of the grind in four days. Additional prizes have been set up by various towns for the first runner to reach there.

RAINEY KAYOES KIMBALL

PHOENIX (Ariz.) June 17. (AP)—Bud Rainey of Hassayampa knocked out Bill Kimball of Prescott in the third round of a scheduled eight-round bout here tonight, one of the feature events of a fight card replete with much action.

STARS ENTER NET TOURNEY

Entry blanks of Ray Casey and Neil Brown were received yesterday by Capt. Gray of the Los Angeles Tennis Club, for the Southern California championship play which starts Monday. The promised entry of the two San Francisco stars adds a strong factor to the contingent from Northern California which invades the Southland for the title play. Gerald Stratford, runner-up to Little Bill Johnston in the recent State title play, and Alan Herrington of Stanford, already have entered the local tourney.

EIGHT TURF STARS NAMED FOR RICH AMERICAN DERBY

CHICAGO, June 17. (AP)—The American Derby, once, one of the turf classics of the nation, will be decided at Washington Park tomorrow in the second year of its revival, with eight star three-year-olds racing over the mile-and-a-half route for a purse of $25,000.

The eight starters are: Harry Payne Whitney's Whiskery, winner of the $50,000 Kentucky Derby; E. R. Bradley's Buddy Bauer, J. N. Camden's Hydromel, E. F. Cooney's Dolan, Hal Price Headley's Handy Mandy, W. S. Heaton's Bob Rogers, Black and White, owned by the Pueblon Stable, and Aregal, carrying the colors of the Wild Rose Farm.

As the race shapes up, the experts figure it to be a battle between Whiskery and Hydromel, with Whiskery the public choice. If weather conditions are favorable tomorrow, an attendance of from 30,000 to 35,000 is in prospect.

NEW YORK, June 17. (AP)—The New York Yankees won their sixth straight game of the season from St. Louis today by 3 to 2, the veteran spitball pitcher, Urban Shocker, holding the Browns to four hits. The deciding run came in the eighth when Morehart scratched an infield single, took second on Nevers's wild throw, third on another wild peg by Rice and scored on Durst's sacrifice fly. Ruth played only one inning retiring because of a wrenched leg, which he injured while swinging at a third strike yesterday. Score:

CINCINNATI, June 17. (AP)—Bill Doak pitched Brooklyn to a 5-to-3 victory over Cincinnati today, giving the Robins two out of three in the present series clash. Statz singled through the box to drive in another run in the seventh and the Dodgers put across two more in the ninth. The score:

DEL LORD TO RACE CRAFT AT BALBOA

Del Lord, not content with fifteen cups, is after another tomorrow when he will race Midge II at Balboa in the races scheduled for speet boats in his class. Lord recently added to his laurels at Lake Elsinore when his boat took first place and made the course at the rate of forty-seven miles an hour.

GRIMES BEATS RAMIES IN BOUT

Grimes on the jaw won him the round.

The Mexican boxer also took the eighth and ninth. In the eighth, he acsight Grimes with a right to the solar plexus after a wild rally. His tearing in tactics also won him the ninth.

Grimes already had the fight salted away, but won the tenth for good measure. Ramies outweighed the Ansac. He scaled 128 3-4 pounds. Grimes weighed in at 126 1-2.

Eddie Mahoney was the indirect cause of a five-minute riot, when his hand was raised over Jimmy Cottrell in the six-round semi-wind-up. The fans were inclined to disagree with the decision and howled the decision down, besides a physical demonstration which consisted of tossing paper wads and programs into the ring.

Frank Hagney of Australia, who won the recent "skiff marathon," was presented from the ring and given a gold watch by the Legion management. Hagney is a boxer of some note, besides having held the singles scull championship of Australia in 1913.

Johnny Gonzales walloped Joe Abramson in a four-round go, and Dick Lapan was the victor over Ray Billalobos in the curtain raiser which also went four stanzas.

He was accompanied by Ralph McElvenny, No. 3 player at Stanford, who will also participate in eastern tournaments this summer.

COOPER'S CONFIDENCE OOZES BEFORE ARMOUR'S BRILLIANT PUTTING AT FIFTEENTH HOLE

BY WALTER HAGEN

OAKMONT COUNTRY CLUB (Oakmont, Pa.) June 17.—Tommy Armour, formerly of Edinburgh, Scotland, now of the Congressional Club of Washington, is the new open golf champion of the United States, and a worthy one. He defeated Harry Cooper, youthful Californian, by three strokes today in an eighteen-hole play-off for the title. Armour was 39-37—76; Cooper was 39-40—79.

WALTER HAGEN

The match was between a great veteran golfer, with great skill and finesse, who entered realizing that anything can happen in golf, and the young man from Los Angeles, but 22 years old, who started with a world of confidence, which dwindled when the tide began to turn against him.

The most tragic moment for Cooper came at the fifteenth hole, when he was clinging for dear life to a one-stroke lead and praying for the holes to run out before he had lost it. Both had put their seconds into a trap here and played explosion shots to the green. Armour was fully forty-five feet from the hole and Cooper about thirty. Armour putted first and he holed this long one across the green for a four. After that Cooper did well to get down in two putts for a five, but his lead had been washed away and his confidence ruined.

The putt was like a knockout punch to Cooper. He was groggy at the short sixteenth. Tommy had the honor and drove through the green to a grass spot beyond. Cooper pushed his tee shot into a trap at the right, failed to get his second on the green, the ball stopping in the embankment; his third was a weak effort; leaving him a fifteen-foot putt for a four, and he missed this, taking a five.

Armour, meanwhile, played a neat chip shot back on the green within a few feet of the cup and holed for a 3 and a two-stroke lead, which looked and was as big as a mountain with only two holes to play.

Cooper made a great second shot to within a foot of the cup at the seventeenth for a sure birdie three, but Tommy played one a little better, within ten inches of the cup, and also got a three to hold his lead. That was all there was to it.

Armour had the better touch at the start with all clubs, then Cooper seemed to take command, but at the finish it was Armour who had the best control.

This was a great championship contest, the greatest in the game.

Local Marine Helps to Win Rowing Trophy

Helping to win a rowing contest in which his crew was pitted against the best oarsmen of the fleet, Vernon A. Ritters of Los Angeles, a United States marine on the battleship Colorado, was a member of the crew which pulled their boat to victory in a race held at Guantanamo Bay, Cuba, recently.

By winning the race the Colorado marines became the "rowing aces" of the fleet and they also won the All-Navy Cup. Four of the best crews of the fleet took part in the race, which was rowed over a mile-and-a-half course.

Their boats were not the slim racing shells used in ordinary rowing contests, but were of the heavy whaleboat type, requiring great muscular effort to propel them through the water. After a thrilling race the Colorado marines crossed the line more than a boat-length ahead of their nearest rivals of the battleship West Virginia.

Ritters is 20 years old, was born in Los Angeles and lived at the home of his mother, Mrs. Elizabeth R. Ritters, 840 West Fifteenth Place, before he joined the Marine Corps in his home city in December, 1925. He was assigned to duty on the Colorado six months later.

Hudkins Jinx to Goldstein in Terris Go

NEW YORK, June 17. — Ruby Goldstein came forth today with the expected. He declared his knockout in 97 seconds by his long-time East-Side rival, Sid Terris, at the Polo Grounds the other night, was a fluke, and demanded a return match.

Morover, close friends of the vanquished battler blamed Ace Hudkins's jinx for the defeat. They related that Ace himself destined to lose on a technical knockout on the same program, shared Ruby's dressing-room and before Goldstein entered the ring, grasped his hand and advised him:

"Fight this guy in close and you'll kill him."

Terris sleuths, it is contended, were in the room at the time, and slipped out and told Sid what to expect, making the rest easy for Terris.

EX-CHAMP LEAVES FOR GOTHAM

not accept 15 per cent as his share of a Tunney match came as a distinct surprise to Rickard. Both Sharkey and Dempsey have agreed to terms for their match, he said.

"When Jack was champion that was all he allowed a challenger," the promoter said. "That was all Tunney received last fall when he won the crown at Philadelphia and I'm sure he'll insist on that provision if Dempsey beats Sharkey for the right to the title shot."

Rickard said he expected no difficulty in ironing out that part of his relations with Dempsey when the Manassa mauler, with three months of training under his fistic belt, reached New York Tuesday morning. The promoter saw no chance of the championship match slipping from under his direction, as hinted by Dempsey in his statement today, inasmuch as Tunney is bound by contract to fight the "best man available" for him this fall.

Rickard said the title fray would take place in New York, and that he was not considering offers for the bout from Baltimore, Philadelphia or Chicago.

ESTELLE ACCOMPANIES JACK ON JOURNEY

Jack Dempsey, ex-heavyweight champion and his wife, Estelle Taylor Dempsey, left for New York and the site of Jack's new training camp, yesterday morning.

While the former fistic king is shaping up for his fight with Jack Sharkey next month, Mrs. Dempsey will spend the time costume shopping for her next picture, scheduled to get under way within the next few weeks.

Estelle has a queer complex where Jack's fighting is concerned. During the training season, she is the most ardent rooter in camp, but so far, she has refused to watch Jack really stand up and fight. En route east after the Tunney fight last September, Estelle received word of Jack's downfall while on the journey, but she plans to be on hand immediately after the Sharkey go—to hear from Jack's own lips that he has taken the first hurdle in his race to return the championship battling crown to the Dempsey domicile.

Jack is just as much interested in pictures as Estelle. During the next five days, the couple plan to spend the time reading the story that has been suggested for Estelle's next vehicle. Mrs. Dempsey plans to return here within three weeks. Jack's plans, while still undecided, will find him back at his home here about September 1, next.

SAN FRANCISCO WANTS DEMPSEY-SHARKEY BOUT

SAN FRANCISCO, June 17. (AP)—Jack Dempsey was offered today a "large percentage of the gate" to fight Jack Sharkey of Boston here next month. The offer was made in a telegram to Dempsey at Los Angeles by Willie Ritchie, former lightweight champion and present prizefight promoter.

"The offer of Rickard of 18 per cent of the receipts to fight Tunney was an insult to Dempsey," said Ritchie. "Dempsey is the greatest drawing card in the West today."

Gorchakoff and his team-mate, Norval Craig, will leave here tomorrow for Wilmington, Del., where the pair will compete in the Delaware State championships.

R. Norris Williams will face Manuel Alonso, Spanish cup ace, for the men's title tomorrow afternoon. Alonso defeated Stanley Pearson, Philadelphia Cricket Club, 6-2, 6-4, in the men's singles. Teisa Toba and Norris Williams will oppose Wallace Johnson and Fred Mercur for the State doubles throne.

Trojans and Cards Clash in Reel Tilt

A football game that will not go into the record books but which will excite no little interest will be held at the Rose Bowl, Pasadena, Monday, when the players of U.S.C. and Stanford teams of 1926 clash for the benefit of the motion-picture cameras.

They make scenes for First National's "The Drop Kick," starring Richard Barthelmess, on Monday.

All the famous players of both teams will participate. Included in the U.S.C. line-up are Morton Kaer, all-American halfback; Manuel Larraneta, all-Coast backfield man; Morley Drury, Jesse Hibbs, Don Williams, Jeff Cravath, all-American center, and others.

The Stanford team boasts Ted Shipkey, Dick Hyland, Biff Hoffman, Don Hill, Frankie Wilton and other stars.

Barthelmess will play on the Stanford team. A feature of the game will be the attempt of Hoffman and Hylan of the Stanford eleven to break the world's record for long-distance passing, now held by Muller and Stephens, and made in the California-Ohio State game at Pasadena several years ago.

The play will start at 9 o'clock and the public is invited to attend, with no admittance charge. The teams will be on the field for practically the entire day.

WALLY SCHANG BY FEG MURRAY

Six S. Backstops. The other members are "Oil" Smith of the Pirates; Ray Schalk of the White Sox; Hank Severeid, now gone from the majors; Luke Sewell of the Indians, and Frank Snyder of the Cardinals. At this writing, Wally is battling away above the rest of "S" catchers; in fact, away above the rest of the American League, with the exception of his team-mate, "Bing" Miller.

Just what suddenly inspired Wally Schang to wallop the old apple at a .400 clip is hard to understand. He hit above .300 in only five out of fourteen years since he came up to the majors, and the highest mark he ever had for one season was .330, made last year. Maybe the climate of St. Louis, or Dan Howley's influence, or the late spring has pepped up this 37-year-old man to new deeds of strength with the willow.

A tabloid biography of Walter H. Schang shows that he was born in Wales, N. Y., and his friends will all tell you that he is a prince of a good fellow. Joining the Philadelphia Athletics in 1913, he jumped right into a world series with the Giants and he and a fellow-rookie named Joe Bush completely wrecked Mr. McGraw's team in one of the games of that October classic. To celebrate, they decided on a double wedding, and so they were married on October 14.

Ten years later, as the star battery for the Yankees, they celebrated their wedding anniversary by beating the Giants again, this time at the Polo Grounds. In the meantime Wally had played in four other world series, one more with Philadelphia, one with Boston and two with New York. Schang did bat .444 in the 1918 series and it must be that the husky catcher thinks he is replaying those championship games of nine years ago—hence the singles, doubles and triple a that are bouncing off his bat of late.

FURRELL MEETS ALBIN IN MAIN STREET GO

Benny Furrell, wickedly punching Filipino boxer, meets Freddy Albin in the feature bout at the Main-Street Athletic Club tonight over the eight-round route. The socking son of the Philippines recently knocked out Mateo Magdaleno, the bantamweight champion of Mexico, which sets him up as a puncher par excellence. Albin hails from Arizona, the State which produced Billy Alger, the iron-jawed wonder, and Albin is supposed to be a miniature replica of his fellow-citizen. The other bouts on the program are Red Bennett vs. Al Romo, six rounds; Jack Mandel vs. Bob Rodriguez, six rounds; Joe Bitto vs. Joel Lopez, four rounds, and Bus Bennett vs. Carl Hansen, four rounds.

SEALS DEFEAT ANGELS AGAIN

The Angels outhit the Seals, with young "Woody" Jensen and Ed Hemingway coming up with three safeties apiece. Jensen drove out a double and two singles, batted in three runs and scored a couple himself.

San Francisco started in on Weathersby in the opening inning and chalked up three runs when Averill and Sheehan singled and O'Doul, after failing in one attempt to bunt, crossed up the boys by poling one into the right-field stands. In the third inning a walk to Fing Bodie and Suhr's circuit clout into the bleachers produced two more and put the Seals five runs out in front.

MOUDY WEAKENS

Moudy started weakening in the third, Wally Hood starting the erratic ex-gob's downfall when he batted for Weathersby and singled. Weis forced Hood, but Hemingway singled and Jensen followed with a double into the left-field corner that scored both runners. Jahn's single brought Woody home with the last run of the inning.

Los Angeles came right back with three runs in the home half of the fifth when Weis doubled, scored on Jensen's single, and Frank Brazill punched one over the right-field screen for the circuit.

Moudy retired to let Jolley go out for him in the sixth, so, Bob Geary started chucking for the Seals in this inning. Brazill's single and Staley's double put Angels on second and third with but one away in the eighth, but Geary retired Cox, pinching for Sandberg, on a pop fly to Sheehan and Averill gathered in Johnny Mitchell's line drive to left center to pull out of the whole.

SEALS GET LAST RUN

Two hits, an error by Staley and a walk to O'Doul with the bases full gave the Seals what proved to be the winning run in the eighth. But for the error the inning would have been ended without a run.

After Weis had been retired to start the ninth, Hemingway singled to open the Angel rally. Jensen also singled to left and then came Jahn with a safety to center that scored Hemingway and put Woody on third. Jahn sprinted to second on the throw to third. Nick Williams then called in his left-handed namesake to save the day and Lefty did right well. Krug put himself in to run for Jensen and proceeded to get run down between second and third when Brazill hit one to Suhr. Ray Jacobs then ended the rally by rolling to Dittmar. Score:

CIRCUIT SWATS WIN FOR STARS

help in the ninth inning to hold the lead there was the veteran Dick McCabe right on deck to give it to him.

With one out in the last half of the first inning Bobby Jones socked a ball through the screen that topped the right-field fence and got a home run. It looked for a while as if that one run would win the ball game, but Johnny Kerr opened the sixth inning by plunking the ball into the left-field bleachers. That was Johnny's second home run in two days and it tied the score.

The teams rocked along until the ninth, with the score tied and things moving along rapidly. In the ninth McNulty was out on a fly to Hooper and then Segrist singled to center. Heath followed with a long drive over the right-field wall, and that proved to be the knockout punch. Heath had not looked good all week at the bat, but he surely looked good to Bill Lane when he delivered that blow.

RABBIT PUNCHES

By PAUL LOWRY

TOMMY ARMOUR'S exploits in the British Tank Corps during the war, his partially blinded condition, his quiet demeanor and even temper, plus the fact that he was not seriously considered for top honors before the start of the Oakmont tourney, make the new open golf king one of the most colorful champions of recent years.

Curiously, the tie between Armour and Cooper at the end of the seventy-two holes of regulation play at Oakmont had a parallel in the last Los Angeles open. Only then they didn't tie for first honors and they didn't play off the tie, as they did at Oakmont. If you recall the last $10,000 classic in these parts, Cooper and Armour even-stevened for eleventh place with cards of 296 apiece. Cooper was in the lead of the field at the end of the third round, but blew on the last round, taking an 83. Armour shot steadily throughout the tourney, and had rounds of 71-73-74-78, which smack muchly of the consistent golf he played to win the open crown at Oakmont. Never a great driver, Armour is noted mostly for his reliable work with his irons. He is conspicuous among the pros because he wears a soft fedora hat—a rare occurrence with these athletes, most of whom take their golf bareheaded.

Mr. H. Wadhams is wearing a worried air these days because he can't find anyone who is willing to meet a gent named Joe Anderson, a middleweight of skill and great promise. Anderson has victories over Leo Lomski and Eddie Roberts to his credit, and lost a decision to Bert Colima when he was suffering from an ailing shoulder.

Subsequently, Anderson fought a rousing battle with Lomski, the one in which the decision went against him. It was pure robbery in the first degree, and Anderson displayed such an improvement over his scrap with Colima that the latter begged to be excused from a return match. Other middleweights who can stand up against Anderson are scarce as hen's teeth, and so H. Wadhams finds himself with an available A-1 fighter, and nobody to match him with. Anderson at present is at his home in Covington, Ky., but his injured thumb is completely healed and he is ready to come, to entrain for the coast at a minute's notice, according to wires from his manager, Jimmy (Baron) Dougherty.

Capt. Anderson of the barge Olympic, anchored off Hermosa Beach, reports a record fishing catch by anglers on his barge during the past few days. Mackerel and barracuda are snapping at the hooks as fast as they are thrown over, Anderson asserts.

BEAR CREWS PUT IN FLASHY WORKOUTS ON HUDSON RIVER

POUGHKEEPSIE (N. Y.) June 17. (AP)—The University of California brought its own training methods to the Hudson River where its three crews are preparing for the intercollegiate rowing association regatta, the 29th inst.

Judging from California's success thus far this season, its unorthodox methods are successful, but they attract attention here because they differ from the accustomed on the river.

California thus far has remained in the water around its boathouse. Each shell went out individually this morning and then started out again together and dashed up and down the center of the course at racing speed.

It all goes to make up a flashy looking workout to those watching on shore. What seems to be unobserved, however, is that the California eights are getting in almost as much mileage as the other crews, but they do it in a shorter stretch.

Along toward evening, Coach Ky Ebright takes his varsity for a steady paddle of from six to ten miles. If Ebright's plan is to set the others thinking, he is succeeding.

The only crew heavier than California on the river is Cornell. Both eights seem to have a wealth of rugged power. Routine workouts was the program for all the crews on the river today. Pennsylvania had a time trial last night and Cornell also covered the course at a fast clip. Penn's time was 20m. 15s., a good but not unusual mark.

OLYMPIC CAN'T SECURE KAPLAN

The Kid is Big Card in East Since Beating Fields

Eddie Huffman Arrives Today for Owens Bout

Louis (Kid) Kaplan will meet Sid Terris in New York, the big shot Jackie Fields was to have had.

And Matchmaker Wad Wadhams is now trying to land another opponent to meet the winner of the Baby Joe Gans-Tommy O'Brien match at the Olympic Tuesday night.

Kaplan had practically agreed to terms for two matches here.

MAY TEST GANS

If O'Brien can catch Gans with a swing like he floored Dick Hoppe with a few weeks ago, it will be a new test for the black lightweight.

Gans has never been staggered since Mushy Callahan had him on the verge of a knockout about a year ago. But on this occasion Gans rose to the occasion just as Newsboy Brown did after being knocked down by Johnny Vacca and fought a winning fight.

The whole color about O'Brien is his right hand. He doesn't have it on display every time he goes to the post, but it is always a mighty threat.

O'Brien's right is a fragile bit of machinery. It is usually sore, sometimes broken.

Proof that O'Brien has his hands in shape for Gans seems positive since he was to have bouted Callahan Tuesday night instead of Gans. And it was to have been a title match. O'Brien would never have faced Mushy with so much at stake unless his hands were all right.

STRING WITH GANS

O'Brien gave Gans a bad body beating the last time they fought. He should be the choice in the rematch, but many are stringing with Gans.

Gans never looked better in his life than he did in his last start, when he knocked out Young Gonsales with a right uppercut.

Eddie Huffman is due here today at noon from New York. He is matched to box Ernie Owens the 28th inst. on an all-heavyweight bill. Neil Clisby may box John Lester Johnson in the semi-wind-up.

WOMEN GOLFERS PLAY FOR LAURELS TODAY

Hill, defending champion, and Mrs. Miriam Burns Horn, former western champion, both of Kansas City, will play for the 1927 championship in a thirty-six-hole match over the Blue Hills Country Club course here tomorrow.

PAUL JONES WILL VARY MAT ATTACK

Texan Plans Use of Split in Bout With Londos Wednesday

Jim Londos, the Greek heavyweight wrestling champion, will have to protect himself from not only the hook body scissors, but also the Texan splits when he clashes with Paul Jones, the spidery Texan in the feature bout of Lou Daro's mat show at the Olympic Wednesday night.

This became apparent yesterday when Jones suddenly switched from punishing his training partners with the hook hold, the same with which he nearly pinned Joe Stecher for the tying fall last week, to the various Texan splits he is an expert with.

The Texan pins his hopes of beating the strong little Greek with his hook scissors, but the success Londos has had in blocking Stecher's body scissors, coupled with the fact that he is als one of the foxiest matmen in the game, caused Jones to brush up on his agony-producing holds.

Londos is a small man with short legs, which, Jones figures, should make him an easier victim of the splits than any other man he has tackled here in months. The Texan is more than six feet tall, and if he gets the same split on Londos that he had several times on Stecher in their battles here last week, he can tear the Greek Adonis apart if the latter attempts to resist the hold.

SALES OF CAFE CHAIN HOLD UP

Pig'n Whistle Reports Gross May Gain of $61,611

Figures for Five Months of Year $292,843 Higher

Percentage Increase Larger by 32 Per Cent Margin

Gross sales of the Pig'n Whistle Corporation increased again last month, the report of the company for May showing a total of $239,213, compared with $177,602 in the same month of 1926, a gain of 34.69 per cent. In each month of this year sales have shown a sizable increase over the corresponding month of the previous year.

For the five months ended in May, sales amounted to $1,206,371, a gain of 32.06 per cent. In the five months of 1926 the total of sales was $913,528. The percentage gain for the first three months of the year over the first quarter of 1926 was 30 per cent.

The Pig'n Whistle chain is now operating thirteen restaurants, bakeries and candy stores along the Pacific Coast, and recently opened the fourteenth in Grauman's Egyptian Theater Building in Hollywood.

In March the company purchased Elznor's Restaurant in Berkeley, and plans to erect a new building. The most recent addition in Los Angeles was the store opened in the Fine Arts Building, opposite Barker Brothers.

The business of the Pig'n Whistle Corporation was founded in 1926, and is now the largest chain-store enterprise on the Pacific Coast combining restaurant, soda fountain and candy units. The first store was opened in Los Angeles.

PACIFIC GAS PREFERRED TAKES LEAD

Edison Shares Unchanged Except for Slight Drop in Common Stock

Listless trading characterized yesterday's sessions on the Los Angeles Stock Exchange. The volume was light and changes in prices were unimportant, with the exception of Pacific Gas and Electric first preferred, which spurted 1 1-8 points to a final price at 26 1-4. The Edison preferred issues were firm, but the common dropped 1-4 to 94 3-4.

Bank of Italy eased off 7-8 of a point on a fair-sized volume to 175½ at the finish. Bancitaly Corporation, the leader in activity, was unchanged at 120 1-4. Security Trust and Savings sold up 1 point to 485, and First National was steady at 500.

Richfield attracted most interest in the oil group and sold steadily at 20 5-8. Standard of California lost 1-4 to 94 3-4 on a light volume. Los Angeles Investment was firm at 2.50.

Scattered trading in the mining list was carried on but the transactions were without significance. Gold Dust moved up ½ cent to 3, and Great Bend was off 2 cents to 68. Sunnyside was up ½ cent to 6.

London Daily Radio

BY ARTHUR W. KIDDY

LONDON, June 17. (By wireless)—Pronounced dullness continued the chief characteristic of trading here, with the recently popular Celanese shares keeping in a state of quiet. The London Times, however, in a rather long article, detailed the steady expansion of the company's production and also the plan for an increase in its capitalization.

Replying to a question in the House of Commons the Colonial Secretary set at rest all rumors concerning any plan for the abolition of the rubber restriction measure. The government, he declared, has no intention of terminating the Stevenson rubber restriction scheme which was designed several years ago to govern the exportation of rubber from British possessions in the Far East.

Improvement in the British iron and steel industry over the last few years was emphasized in the statement of one of the leading producers, Nettleford's revealing net profit after all charges and taxes of £60,000, a figure exceeded only twice in the past.

DIVIDEND PASSED BY BROWN-BOVERI

NEW YORK, June 17. (AP)—Directors of the American Brown Boveri Electric Corporation today omitted the regular quarterly dividend of 1 1-4 per cent on the preferred stock due at this time. Arrangements have been completed for temporary financing ample for the company's present needs, a statement said. The resignation of Elisha Walker and Henry Lockhart, Jr., partners in Blair & Co., Bankers, as directors, was announced.

NEW STEEL PROCESS SPEEDS PRODUCTION

NEW YORK, June 17. (AP)—After years of research and heavy expense, American Rolling Mill Company has perfected a method whereby the hot ingot is converted into the finished sheet by a continuous process without any labor device. Sheets are now being made at the Ashland plant at the rate of more than one ton per minute. The present capacity of the plant is about 1400 tons daily.

Nearly 4,000,000 pounds of corn is being raised in South Africa this year.

NEW YORK, June 17.—Stocks of roads going into the new southwestern system being welded together by the Loree interests were easily the outstanding features of the day. Resumption of powerful buying in Cotton Belt, which extended its big rise of yesterday by some 8 points, generated a brisk demand for the other issues, namely, Katy and Kansas City Southern. In a statement today, Mr. Loree confirmed reports that considerable progress has been made toward the construction of a new plan to replace that turned down by the Interstate Commerce Commission recently. He said discussions had been held and that further consideration would be given the details at a meeting Monday. Presumably the plan is being delayed awaiting the return from abroad of certain bankers who are interested.

Doheny Discusses Oil

"There is no present prospect of oil excess ending in the near future," thus Edward L. Doheny, former head of the Pan American Petroleum and Transportation Company, and present head of the Pan American Western, expressed himself on the situation in the oil industry. On a business trip here, Mr. Doheny stated he fully agreed with the opinion of Secretary Mellon that under our laws a land-owner and his representatives have perfect right to unrestricted production of whatever the land will produce. He said the situation is "bad and difficult to handle," and remarked that if demand required it there is sufficient shut-in production in this country, Mexico and Venezuela to increase oil output by at least 10 per cent.

Switching in Sulphur Stocks

The sulphur shares, Texas Gulf and Freeport Texas Company accounted for a measurable proportion of the day's turnover. Apparently there was widespread disappointment over the outcome of yesterday's Freeport-Texas meeting, at which an extra of 25 cents was ordered. It seems a good deal of yesterday's buying had been based on reports put out in the course of that session, stressing the possibilities of a much larger extra. The result was a sharply lower opening on a rush to unload. Considerable switching was reported from that stock into Texas Gulf Sulphur, which is expected to go on a higher dividend basis possibly at the next board meeting.

Yellow Truck Situation

Several stories were afloat to explain the sudden and tremendous activity in Yellow Truck and Coach, which is the only subsidiary of General Motors whose stock is available to the public. One was that the parent company was picking up the stock in the open market and the other that a huge block of the stock which until recently was held by a group of Chicago banks had passed to General Motors. The new management, however, appears to be chiefly concerned with rehabilitating the properties at the moment.

FLAXSEED MARKET

DULUTH (Minn.) June 17. (Exclusive)—Flaxseed held steady on light offerings and the appearance of some crusher demand. Trading was slow and fractional losses came at the close. July flaxseed fell ¼c, September ½c, October ¾c. Close: Receipts on track, 2,214; 2,295; to arrive, 1,211; July, 2.22; September, 2.25½; October, 2.23¾.

Minneapolis: Flaxseed steady; offerings very light and largely bulkhead; No. 1 spot 2c under July to 6c over and to arrive 2c under to 6c over.

SAFETY ZONES FOR DOLLARS

LXXII.—HOW MUCH MARKETABILITY?

How much marketability an investor requires of his securities in order to keep his dollars within the safety zone is entirely a matter of individual needs and purposes. The proper amount necessary to a satisfactory investment varies with different individuals. For the business man, for example, who may be required to draw upon his reserves quickly, a high degree of marketability of securities is very essential. On the other hand, for the investor who intends to hold his bonds until maturity ready salability is of little importance, beyond that degree which will meet an emergency advantageously. At most, the average investor will need only a small fraction of his total holdings in immediately convertible securities. No one, however, who foresees a demand for ready money, should neglect to include readily marketable bonds among his investment holdings.

It is a common fault of investors to demand a higher degree of marketability than they really need. Marketability in a security is a feature that must be paid for. The fact that a bond is very easily sold indicates that there is a wide and active demand for it, and, as with every other commodity, the greater the demand the higher will be the price. The investor who insists upon a high degree of marketability will accept, in consequence, a lower rate of return.

If an investor expects to borrow occasionally from his bank by depositing his bonds as security, he will find marketability an advantage. On account of its advantages in this respect, the readily salable security is worth what it costs. For the investor who will never need this advantage, however, a high degree of marketability in a security represents an extravagant waste of investment capital.

NEW RAIL HEAD RUMORED

BY EARLE E. CROWE

Possibilities of a new president for the Santa Fe Railroad are actively discussed in railroad circles. The rumor reaching here by way of New York is that William B. Storey, president since 1920, will advance to the chairmanship of the board, and Arthur G. Wells, now vice-president in charge of operations, will succeed him as president. The change is expected to come at any time.

Rumors relative to this shift in the management have gained headway recently because of the delay of the Santa Fe in appointing a successor to Edward Chambers, vice-president in charge of traffic, who died several months ago in San Francisco. The supposition is that the directors have held this appointment in abeyance until the major changes in the official roster have been made.

HAS CARRIED BURDEN

Mr. Storey has played an important part in the building of the Santa Fe to its position as one of the outstanding railroad properties in the United States. The Santa Fe financially is generally recognized as the richest and one of the most stable earners in the field of steam transportation. The whole task of directing both financial policies and physical operations has rested on Mr. Storey's shoulders, and it is presumed that it is now his wish to divide these duties.

The practice of allocating financial management to the chairman of the board and the direction of operations to the president is followed by most railroad and industrial corporations. This is particularly true with the railroads since the question of consolidation has assumed such significance, and has, in most instances, been intrusted to the chairman. Judge Robert S. Lovett, for illustration, is the authority on consolidation and finance as chairman of the Union Pacific, and Carl R. Grey, as president, is in general charge of operations.

Mr. Storey is a native of San Francisco and began his railroad career with the Southern Pacific as an assistant engineer, after graduation from the University of California. Later, he went with the United States Debris Commission as an assistant engineer, and then became chief engineer and general superintendent of the San Francisco and San Joaquin Valley Railway. His service with the Santa Fe started in 1906 when he was appointed chief engineer. In 1909 he was made a vice-president.

MADE EARLY START

The prospective president, Mr. Wells, started on the path to the top of the heap with the Burlington as apprentice machinist, coming from Canada to the United States for his first railroad job when he was 15 years of age. Five years later he went over to the Santa Fe as a clerk, and has advanced continuously since that time. His progress with the Santa Fe has taken him through such jobs as trainmaster, superintendent, general superintendent, general manager and vice-president in charge of operations. Mr. Wells is a member of several Los Angeles and San Francisco clubs, and is well known on the Pacific Coast.

In the promotions that would follow the prospective elevation of Mr. Wells and to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Edward Chambers, there is a possibility, it is reported, that some of the Los Angeles officials of the Santa Fe will be affected.

Usual Seasonal Trade Drop Not Sharply Marked

It does not appear that the contraction of activity which normally occurs in most commercial lies at this period is especially marked now, and in certain quarters it is less conspicuous than that which was witnessed a year ago. Not all results equal the high levels attained in 1926, yet there are instances of gain and among these is the record of foreign trade for May. The many irregularities in the present situation, with some admittedly unfavorable aspects are not surprising, in view of the extensive ramifications of business. Spring season that has been notable for inclement weather has not brought any general depression, though obviously hurting crops and retail distribution, and even the flooding of a wide area along the Mississippi River with heavy property damage and a curtailment of buying power, has not seriously weakened confidence.

Weekly bank clearings, $9,997,116,000, an increase of 6.5 per cent, compared with last year.

BAY BANKS EXTENDING TRUST ARM

Move in Northern City Regarded as Effort to Meet Competition

SAN FRANCISCO, June 17. (Exclusive)—Progressive methods adopted by several local banks, or soon to be adopted, in the expansion of their trust departments throughout adjoining bay communities and more distant country regions, is causing considerable comment both within and without the banking fraternity. Although no concise explanation has been advanced, the strong competition that Bank of Italy and other chain bank institutions has brought forth is admittedly a factor.

A few weeks ago the Anglo-California Trust Company, having built up its trust department to considerable dimensions, is understood to have sent out representatives to independent banks offering complete trust facilities to clients of country institutions as the branches of chain banks are offering.

Other local banks are responding to the stimulus in like fashion. These include, according to the most reliable information obtainable, the American Trust Company, Anglo and London-Paris National and the Wells Fargo Bank and Union Trust Company.

The arrangement, it is understood, provides that the country bank will solicit and accept trust business and turn it over to the San Francisco institution, with which it is aligned for that purpose. No trust department is placed in any country bank, however.

Several local trust officers, discussing the situation informally, look upon the move as a distinct departure from banking expansion methods followed in the past. It is felt that the innovation will have the effect of bringing the independent country banks into closer alliance with larger institutions and thus permit them to hold their own with chain branches.

GAS MERGER OFFERING ON MART SOON

Issue of $3,000,000 to Finance West Virginia Utility Consolidation

Consolidation of the business and properties of five West Virginia gas companies will be effected through an issue of $3,000,000 West Virginia Gas Corporation first mortgage 6.50 per cent sinking fund gold bonds which is scheduled for public offering on the Pacific Coast next week by Freeman, Smith & Camp Co., associated with B. W. Chapman & Co. The bonds will carry a stock purchase warrants, and it is understood they will be offered at a price attractive to investors.

In addition to the consolidation of the Wacotock Oil and Gas Company, Commercial Gas Company, Martha Pipe Line Company, Oakland Development Company and Tampico Gas Company, the new company will acquire a majority of the outstanding stock of Monickel Gas Company.

An important item in the organization of the new company is that the entire output of the constituent companies is sold under contract to subsidiaries of Columbia Gas and Electric Corporation, one of the leading public utility concerns of the United States. Columbia Carbon Company and International Nickel Company. The company's sales therefore represent a prior charge against the earnings of these large organizations.

Consolidated earnings in 1926 showed gross revenue of $644,980 and net earnings available for interest, depreciation and Federal taxes of $414,822. Maximum annual interest charges on this issue will be $193,863.

Statistic on Oil at End of May Reported

SAN FRANCISCO, June 17. (Exclusive)—Crude oil stocks dropped more than 1,000,000 barrels in May, despite an increase in production, according to figures made public today by the American Petroleum Institute. The report also shows a decline in new wells brought in from 105 in April to eighty in May, and an initial flow from 81,432 barrels to 52,575 barrels.

Stocks in storage were lowest this year, according to the figures, being 146,947,762 in May against 147,299,-343 in April and 148,827,007 in January. Production for May was lower than January, but higher than April. It totaled 19,506,054 last month, 19,-466,087 in April and 20,184,872 in January.

KLONOWER LICENSE AS BROKER VOIDED

SAN FRANCISCO, June 17. (Exclusive)—The brokerage license of E. C. Klonower & Co. was suspended today by Chief Deputy Corporation Commissioner Ellis, following the closing of the company's offices. The company was forced to close as the result of a drop in the market, together with the asserted refusal of a client to pay for an order of Norwalk Tire and Rubber stock.

JULY DIVIDEND PLUMS LARGER

Interest Disbursements for Period Also Show Heavy Gain

NEW YORK, June 17. (AP)—Dividend and interest payments in July will aggregate a record total of $553,553,000, a gain of more than $58,800,000, compared with the corresponding period a year ago, a compilation by the Journal of Commerce shows.

Stockholders will receive $129,850,000 against $121,500,000 a year ago and interest payments will involve $423,702,000, an increase of about $50,503,000.

FINANCIAL CONCERNS IN MERGER

Martin Investment and Exchange Seat Pass to Miller, Vosburg & Co.

Acquisition of the investment business and the Los Angeles Stock Exchange seat of Howard N. Martin & Co. by the house of Miller, Vosburg & Co., was announced yesterday. The transfer of the stock exchange seat is subject to the approval of the members of the exchange.

Miller, Vosburg & Co., in consolidating the investment operations of the two companies, will take over the sales personnel and also the office equipment of the Martin organization, and will conduct the business in offices in the Hellman Bank Building.

The partners in Miller, Vosburg & Co. are L. Revel Miller and Roydon Vosburg. The original business was started nearly two years ago.

No statement was made concerning the price paid for the stock exchange seat, this amount having been included in the total paid for all of the assets acquired.

WASHINGTON, June 17. (AP)—The Navy Department announced today that bids would be opened at Los Angeles the 25th inst., covering sale of government royalty crude oil and casinghead gasoline produced in naval oil reserve No. 2 of California under the lease granted the Honolulu Consolidated Oil Company.

While the quantity of oil and gasoline is not to be guaranteed by the government, it was said at the Navy Department today that for March, the royalty crude oil amounted to 26,735 barrels and the royalty gasoline 63,542 gallons.

The wells in this reserve have not been in controversy.

COTTON MARKET

NEW YORK, June 17. (Exclusive) The cotton market continues in a mixed two-sided trading position today with sentiment divided among important interests here as to whether prices are entitled to any important further rise from the current level. This is because it is principally a weather market and will remain so until the government's crop report of the season is announced about July 9.

This accounts for the alternating periods of strength and weakness the market is still showing. Prices advanced about 10 points from yesterday's closing in the early trading, principally on the circulation of boll-weevil reports from the Atlantic and East Gulf States encouraging some new buying by scattered commission houses and bullish traders.

On this rise July contracts sold at 16.77 cents; October of the new crop, 17.11 cents; December, 17.35 cents; January, 17.43 cents, and March, 17.58 cents. About an hour later the market had broken from the influence of scattered liquidation and further southern selling with two rather bearish private crop reports appearing. One was by the Giles bureau, making the condition as good as 75 per cent for the entire crop figured to the 10th inst. against 73.1 on May 22 and 75.3 last year and the other, the Fossick bureau of Memphis, which made the condition as high as 75.5 per cent with a prospective decrease in acreage of but 10.7 per cent.

These are the best of the private-crop estimates so far issued. In the decline from this pressure prices went off 20 to 24 points from the top; July selling at 16.56 cents; October, 16.92 cents; December, 17.14 cents; January, 17.19 cents, and March, 17.38 cents. There was a rally later to about yesterday's closing prices on some fresh local buying with the day's exports going up to 39,178 bales.

Bureau of Labor Statistics Index Shows Price Levels of Farm and Nonagriculturla Products Meet

NEW YORK, June 17. (Exclusive)—Like two streams brought together after a long separation the curves on agricultural and nonagricultural prices met again in May at 144. That is the story in brief told by the Bureau of Labor Statistics index of wholesale prices published today.

During 1925 agricultural and industrial commodities occupied about the same positions on the whole relative to their prewar levels. Late that year commodity prices began to fall and have been falling steadily ever since. In the decline agricultural values fell more rapidly than others, so that after the 1925 separation of the lines they got as far apart by late 1926 as 141 is from 154. Taking 1913 as 100, in other words, agricultural prices had fallen to 141 by November, 1926, whereas nonagricultural prices had fallen only to 154.

In the very next month, December, 1926, the gap began to close. After a long declining movement, agricultural values turned up. Nonagricultural prices began to fall even faster than before. And now, for the first time in going on two years the market for agricultural products is as good proportionately as that for industrial commodities. The improvement in agricultural prices during the last five months has been all the more spectacular since it was unexpected. Encouraged by smart gains in cotton, corn and wheat prices, the farmer has taken a new lease on life. How much further this improvement will go nobody can tell until more is known of weather conditions during the remaining crop months. Nevertheless, a new spirit and a new hope have been stirred in the hearts of those responsible for agriculture.

Except for this interesting fact, not much that is new appears in the May compilation of the wholesale index numbers. Even the bituminous coal strike to date has not been a powerful enough influence on prices to check a decline in the government's fuel and lighting group. Taken as a whole, commodity prices last month continue the downward movement begun the world over about two years ago, but the May drop was only fractional. Frequently, despite falling prices in this country, has been the outstanding puzzle to many of developments in the last two or three years, but there is an explanation. No ground for a declining price level can be found in credit conditions, which, as a matter of fact, in the last three years might have been expected to stimulate higher levels. Declining money rates in the past have helped to produce better commodity values, but a force stronger than money rates has been at work on commodity prices.

The chief reason why commodity prices have fallen so persistently in this country during the last two years is to be found in conditions elsewhere. Adoption of the gold standard over the world after long periods of currency inflation has brought commodity values sharply down in almost every European country. A return to hard money inevitably lowers prices in countries which have been basing on a paper basis, and this powerful declining influence, at work in other countries, has more than offset the firming tendencies of our own money position. Then, too, it must be admitted that even in this country the introduction of new efficient methods of production has enabled industry to turn out a larger volume of goods than before for each person employed.

EQUIPMENT EARNINGS UP

For the first quarter of 1927, eight building supplies and equipment manufacturers reported an increase of 29.75 per cent over the corresponding period of 1926, according to data compiled from published financial statements by Ernst & Ernst.

NEW YORK, June 17. (Exclusive)—As a result of the tremendous expansion of facilities of the Southeastern Power and Light Company and its subsidiaries, both by enlarging its existing plants and by purchasing additional properties, that system closed the year 1926 ranking seventh in size among the power and lighting companies of the United States in point of output. The exact amount of electricity distributed was 1,969,183 kilowatt hours.

MUCH ADDITIONAL GROWTH

From all indications, Southeastern has far from reached its zenith in growth. In fact, several large development projects are now contemplated or under construction. Thomas W. Martin, president of the company, is authority for the statement that:

"Preliminary surveys have been made on the Tallapoosa River above Martin dam to determine the power installation and elevation of dams to be erected under Federal and State licenses heretofore obtained by the company. The total head capable of economical development on that river will probably be in excess of 600 feet.

"An interesting feature of Martin dam, is the stilling pool formed by an auxiliary dam twenty-two feet high—twelve spillway gates, eighteen feet by thirty feet in size, discharge into this basin, where the energy of the waste waters is dissipated. Should an exceptional flood occur when the lake is full, eight additional gates may be opened, which discharge below the auxiliary dam. This water, flowing at right angles to the water pouring over the auxiliary dam, creates a second water cushion, where the energy is dissipated through internal friction. The flood waters consequently flow quietly away instead of scouring out the river channel below the dam. The usable storage amounts to 60,000,000,000 cubic feet of water and permits the plant to run at a maximum capacity throughout the dry season of the year.

"Following the completion of Martin dam, the next step in the development of the Tallapoosa River sites is to raise the two Tallassee dams below Martin dam and at the same time increase their power installation. When completed, all of the available head in the lower river will have been utilized, and what is of utmost importance, the regulated flow resulting from Martin dam will be utilized in the lower plants; thus the storage waters will perform a triple service during the dry season when the Coosa run of river plants will be operating at their minimum capacity.

IMPORTANT TO INVESTORS

"The first development undertaken is at the Upper Tallassee dam, the height of which is now being raised from thirty-six feet to fifty-seven feet and the generating capacity of the plant increased from 8500 horsepower to 30,000 horsepower in two units. Provision will be made for a third unit of 25,000 horsepower when it is found necessary. This dam is located about eight miles below Martin dam, and the construction program calls for its completion early in 1928. Following this project, the crest of the lower Tallassee dam will be raised from sixty feet to eighty-seven feet and the generating units installed increased from 10,000 horsepower to 67,000 horsepower. This station will probably be completed during 1929."

Several other important projects are also under construction, according to Mr. Martin. It is difficult for the average layman investor to grasp the importance of this work, but the continued rapid growth in the earnings of the company bear witness to the fact that it has had a decidedly favorable effect on the value of the company's securities in the past, and there is every reason to believe the same will prove true in the future.

Local Ad Club Delegates on Way to Parley

Headed by Harold J. Stonier, president of the club and vice-president of the University of Southern California, a large delegation from the Los Angeles Advertising Club is on its way to Portland, Or., to attend the annual convention of the Pacific Coast Advertising Clubs, which opens on Sunday. The feature of the convention will be an address by Senator William E. Borah, chairman of the Senate Foreign Affairs Committee.

Senator Borah will take as his subject, "The Pacific." Because of the nature of his subject it is expected that the address will attract wide attention. He is expected to touch upon the many recent developments in the Pacific area, including the Chinese revolution and the Russian influence in the Orient. Senator Borah has advocated recognition of the Russian soviet government, with which the British government recently severed relations.

QUOTATIONS POINT UP ON WOOL MART

BOSTON, June 17. (AP)—The Commercial Bulletin tomorrow will say:

There has been a fairly good movement in wool in the local market during the last week and prices are showing a distinct tendency to rise; in fact, some descriptions have been marked up a half cent to a cent a pound and the fractional advance has been paid. The fact that the mills are buying more freely and that there are wider inquiries for tops and yarns is indicative of a better situation in the goods market. The woolen mills are finding a fair volume of business on the whole, although it is not so well distributed.

The foreign markets are all against the buyer, East India sales in Liverpool being up par to 5 per cent. In the West, buying continues steadily and values are showing an upward tendency, although no marked changes are reported for the week.

Mohair is steady on moderate trading.

The rail and water shipments of wool from Boston from January 1, 1927, to June 15, 1927, inclusive, were 85,972,000 pounds, against 90,906,000 pounds for the same period last year. The receipts from January 1, 1927, to June 15, 1927, inclusive, were 156,-965,300 pounds, against 186,076,097 pounds for the same period last year.

NEW YORK CURB STOCKS

NEW YORK, June 17. (AP)—Prices regained strength on the curb market today after an early period of uncertainty. Buying, which was on a comparatively limited scale, was of a highly selective character, centering for the most part on industrial and specialty shares of medium price.

Tidal Osage Oil nonvoting shares were the most active, nearly 30,000 of them changing hands, while the company's common stock also was purchased in large volume, prices of both improving fractionally. Other oils were mixed in tone, Vacuum selling down 1 3-8, while Prairie Pipe Line jumped 4 points to 183, a new high record.

Horn and Hardart advanced 2 1-4 points and the preferred 1, but Childs Company preferred was under pressure. Pillsbury Flour was in brisk demand, while other food shares displayed irregularity. American Road Machine, Fulton Syphon, New York Merchandise and Bucyrus Company (new) were among the diversified stocks which scored gains of 2 to 4 points or more.

Goodyear Tire received good support on the announcement that the $40,000,000 American rubber pool will not be dissolved, spurting ahead nearly 4 points to 80 7-8. Motor shares were quiet, but Yellow Taxi of New York advanced 3 points. Curtiss Airplane again reflected the recently stimulated interest in aviation. Richmond Radiator was strong on reports that a foreign banking group had purchased an interest in the company.

Merchandising shares were among the few soft spots, Dominion Stores and Neisner Brothers losing 2 and 1 points, respectively.

The 225,000 shares of cumulative 7 per cent preferred and 1,500,000 no-par common shares of Financial and Industrial Securities Corporation have been removed from unlisted trading privileges at the request of the corporation.

PROFIT-TAKING HALTS ADVANCE

Heavy short covering took place in the rubber shares, the Kelly-Springfield and United States Rubber issues closing 3 to nearly 4 points higher. Federal Mining and Smelting broke 10 points on a couple of sales. Substantial gains also were recorded by General Refractories, Pittsburgh Coal and some of the baking and amusement shares.

RAILS ACTIVE

Unusually heavy buying of New Haven common, which closed 2 1-8 points higher at 33 3-4, based on unconfirmed reports that a refunding of the road's debt to the government was being arranged through the issuance of notes or preferred stock, featured the railroad list. St. Louis and Southwestern had a quick run up to a new top at 98 on rumors that shareholders would be offered two shares of "Katy" common for one of St. Louis Southwestern in a merger plan reported to be pending, but it lated sold down to 90 7-8. New York, Ontario and Western and St. Paul preferred certificates also reached new high ground.

Time money and commercial paper rates were unchanged.

A drop of about 2 cents a bushel in wheat prices featured the commodity markets. Cotton sagged 10 to 16 points, but coffee and sugar prices were steady.

A sharp rise of about 25 points in Japanese yen to around 46 3-4 cents, believed to be due to Chinese short covering, was the only incident of note in the foreign exchange market. French francs and demand sterling ruled slightly easier, around 3.91½ cents and $4.85 1-4, respectively.

LOS ANGELES MARKET

CATTLE—Offering yesterday consisted largely of plain to fat steers, including cars that have held over from Thursday and only a few lots of the stock, these mostly common kinds. A fair clean-up was made at uneven prices, mostly steady to weak. No good grade the stock or steers were offered, but judging from inquiry concerning this kind they should meet a ready sale.

Only head and small lots of cows and heifers sold above 6.25, however, the bulk, common and no medium kinds, turned from 5.00@6.25, including a load of 844-pound weights at 6.25. The top was 11.35, paid for a load of 155-pound weights, while the other two loads, averaging 173 and 198 pounds, turned for 11.15 and 11.25. Grain Futures Off Following Early Upturn

CHICAGO, June 17. (Exclusive)—The grain markets were higher in the early dealings on overbought conditions, developed later, and in lack of aggressive support and heavy profit-taking declined 3¼@3½c from the high points. The finish was within a fraction of the lowest, with net losses of 1¾@2½c for July, 1.44¾ and September 1.07½@7.07½.

Corn at the high point showed gains of 2¼c, the inside figure of Monday, and 1¼@1½c above the low of the previous week, with July timber selling at 1.60. The market weakened on heavy profit-taking and a decline of 2¼@2½c from the top, with the close at or near the bottom, 1¾c lower. July being 1.56@1.56¼ and September 1.60¾@1.60¾. Oats lost ¾@¾c, with July 45¾ and September 43¾@43½. Rye was lower, with July 1.15½ and September 1.[illegible].

Forecasts were for better weather conditions with indication of clearing throughout the Northwest, with the temperature, however, favorable to inducing profit-taking in the wheat pit. Heavy rains fell in parts of Kansas and harvesting is somewhat delayed, but a few days of dry weather is expected to result in full resumption of cutting and the grain will ripen rapidly.

Reason with northwestern and southwestern receipts were good sellers early, and there was further general unloading by local longs. Pendleton were on the buying side most of the day and closed 1¼@1½c higher.

Buying of local bulls on wet weather in parts of Illinois, Iowa and Missouri carried prices up nearly 2c early, but when profit-taking by many recent buyers developed, there was a noticeable lack of demand and a decline was easily attained. Forecast for warmer weather attracted considerable attention. Nebraska Weekly report made conditions in that State 65% with the crop averaging eleven days late.

Cash demand remains slow, with the spot basis 1c higher to 1c lower, with choice dealing in most strength.

Oats were affected by the action of corn, and with local operators on the selling side, a decline was easily attained, although trade was not large. Duluth was reported to have sold 500,000 bushels to the seaboard for export.

Short covering was on in July oats, and futures selling at a new high for the week, with others about neutral, rye followed, and the late was easy. Export demand was reported at the seaboard.

Profit-taking in lard by recent buyers, on the break in corn and in the face of an advance of 30c in hogs, marked trading in all was late and closing sales were at net losses of 20@22½c. Ribs lost 10@12c and bellies 20c, with a moderate trade.

Oil Company of Long Beach, one of the five operators in the Dominguez district, went down 3,000 feet in his well two days ago, according to field reports. The well is down about 2,900 feet, according to field reports, and has been getting showings of oil and gas for the last fifty feet. The discovery is considered to be productive, but not to be with the first showings in the Long Beach field. Petroleum Exploration, Inc., of which Dominguez Oil Co. No. 1, at Compton, is a subsidiary, is the owner of the well. The difference in the two companies is the existence of a dome of structural deposit at Dominguez, while this surface deposit has been eroded away farther to the north. Berry's discovery is the possibility of getting a producing zone in another 700 feet.

Development, two and one-half miles from the original production of the Gold Indicates the true extension of the field that is still a matter of opinion. Berry has about sixty acres under lease with the Transcontinental Company covering the proper-ties to the south, and the Miley interests on the east, south and west.

Signal Hill

The Signal Oil Company began work in the Signal Hill of the town-lot field at Long Beach with the construction of a derrick on the Hamilton and Olive avenue. Test tanks of a derrick on the property of the Signal Oil Company are expected to have its No. 2 well in the Signal Hill field in production, according to field reports. The well originally was drilled to 1,000 feet, but was then shut down for a year, until a few weeks ago when it was put to work clean-ing out to return to production. It is in the Lovelady area, one of the most productive districts in the Signal Hill field.

Whittier

The Whittier Oil Company expects to begin to move its No. 2 well in its lease from production to storage, according to field reports. It is on the north side of the lease, adjoining the Hoover, and began swabbing last night.

Yorba Well

The Southern Petroleum Company, pioneer in the Yorba district, is preparing to drill deeper in its Yorba property in the Santa Ana field, according to field reports. The derrick is up, and machinery is being moved in for immediate drilling. The well is about 4000 feet in the Bastion and Hunter-Ranch line in about two months and is owned a flurry of excitement in Southern California oil circles in recent days.

yesterday completed the setting of casing in its Wasem No. 7 well in the southwestern part of the Alamitos Heights area at Seal Beach, according to field reports. The casing was set at about 2200 feet, where the third Seal Beach zone was found.

According to oil men who have examined the cores, the Wasem deep-test well penetrated about twelve feet of oil-bearing formation, of which about half was sand, and about half shale. This well is entirely off the edge of the Selover zone, and it is problematical whether it has enough of the new zone to make a producer.

O'Donnell Abandons Well

J. E. O'Donnell, pioneer of Ridge-cut Heights and Los Cerritos, who has not been doing much since the cessation of development in the latter field, has shut down his wildcat well east of the Torrance field, according to field reports. O'Donnell drilled this well to a total depth of 4850 feet, without a single encouraging showing, it is said.

To Resume Drilling

The Santa Fe Mutual Oil Syndicate will reconstruct its derrick in Boyle Heights on the Pasadena sewer farm, and resume drilling, it was unofficially reported yesterday. The derrick collapsed a few days ago, when the hole was down about 3700 feet. Good showings are supposed to have been penetrated.

Dail Eireann's Opening May be Trouble Signal

DUBLIN, July 17. (Exclusive)—Looking forward to trouble on the opening of the Dail Eireann Thursday the authorities have announced that the public galleries will be closed on that and the succeeding days.

President William T. Cosgrave's statement last night declaring his refusal to form a government is regarded merely as political fencing. When the Dail meets Mr. Cosgrave will be proposed for the presidency of the Council by members of a detached group and will be accepted unanimously.

Under these circumstances, it is believed, he cannot refuse the responsibility and, in any case, he really does not want to refuse, it is said.

STORM DREDGING ASKED

Property owners yesterday asked the City Council to dredge the Cologne street storm water channel so that the district bounded by Venice Boulevard, Washington Boulevard, Thurman avenue and the junction of Washington and Adams streets will not be damaged by storm waters this winter.

FRIDAY MORNING CLUB QUITS FOLD

Overwhelming Vote Favors Leaving Federation

State Association Accused of Forcing Action

President and Many Others Tell of Impositions

BY ALMA WHITAKER

The Friday Morning Club voted by an overwhelming majority to secede from the State Federation at its meeting yesterday morning. Mrs. Charles F. Turner, the president, presiding.

But at that, even after a meeting in which all the old exciting fighting spirit of the Friday Morning Club was revived after a long go of "harmony and co-operation," dear, old Mrs. E. B. Wakeman, 90 years of age this May, made the little keynote speech in a strong ringing voice, concluding with "Let's love 'em and leave 'em." (Mrs. Wakeman has lived in Hollywood thirty-four years, so that "Love 'em and Leave 'em" maxim came in for some naughty quips.

The preliminaries were dispensed with quickly, and Mrs. Turner took her presidential privilege of explaining the situation and informing the club on points of fact. Clearly, concisely and without acrimony, she related the events and controversies which had led to this denouement, culminating in the defeat of all the revisions offered to bring about equitable adjustment by the Los Angeles district at the recent convention at Sacramento.

OFFER TOO LATE

She pointed out how the olive branch, since tendered by Mrs. W. W. Green, new State president, was not only a belated but a futile endeavor, since Mrs. Green had made no move toward peaceful adjustment at the convention, and that anything she might do now would have to be indorsed by the admittedly antagonistic State Board. Delay, which was all opponents of the secession resolution asked, she said, would be fatal to justice. Delay was to be in all criminal trials to that end. (Loud applause.) Mrs. Turner traced events through twenty years of frustration on the part of the south, detailing incident after incident. And she told how the last-minute change of the registration time for delegates at the recent convention from noon to 9:45 a.m. (by which it later appeared some 100 delegates from San Francisco sympathetic to the southern cause were denied a vote) was the counterpart of a similar situation at the first State convention held here in the long ago.

At this point Mrs. William Read of the already seceded Ebell Club was asked to explain how she came to offer the unfortunate resolution to make the change in time. Mrs. Read explained that she had been asked to do so by the State Parliamentarian on the assurance that the change would exclude no delegates from voting, and thus asserted that her trust had been betrayed.

MANY SPEAKERS

Arguments from the floor were restricted to three minutes by a majority resolution—and the Friday Morning Club instantly became itself again. Not for many a day have so many speakers popped up from the floor or so keen an interest been evinced. It was expected that the "old timers" would be against withdrawal and for "peace at any price," but Mrs. Margaret Rice hastened to speak for immediate withdrawal, and later poked some dry sarcasm at Mrs. A. S. Lobingier, who was opposed to withdrawal and used the Pilgrims and the Puritans to point her argument.

Mrs. Lobingier had said that she was the only one who was getting any fun out of the situation, for, when she campaigned for suffrage in the long ago, women didn't care about "representation" and politicians didn't care about the women, and now both were caring all too ardently. Then she told about how the bad bishops in England had aroused a similar disruption, how the Pilgrims seceded and came over here and the Puritans stayed in and reformed the bad bishops. That was the point that gave Mrs. Rice her chance to mention—ahem—that the

HER TROUBLE WITH STUDIO TO BE AIRED

Colleen Moore

Long-threatened action over the break between First National Pictures Corporation and Colleen Moore, film actress, and her husband, John McCormick, former production manager at the local studio, was started in New York yesterday by the company in a $1,000,000 suit filed against the actress.

According to dispatches from the East, the company is suing Miss Moore to force her to arbitrate the terms of a contract under which she was scheduled to make twelve pictures.

In its complaint filed by the company's New York attorney, Nathan Burkon, the company asserts Miss Moore has been paid $945,000 of a $1,000,000 contract, and that by her refusal to appear in five additional pictures asserted to be due under the contract the company will lose $1,000,000.

Local officials yesterday announced they had received strict orders from their headquarters office in New York against issuing statements from the western studio and refused to make any comment on the suit.

Storm clouds have hovered over the McCormick-Moore-First National situation for several months, but the long-threatened break between the company and the actress and her husband did not materialize until May 26, when Mr. McCormick, then general production manager of all West Coast work, walked out of the studio following a stormy session with local and eastern officials.

The conference, which was held in the company's Burbank studio, was surrounded with the utmost secrecy, and even following McCormick's announcement that he had resigned, company officials refused to explain the circumstances.

Mr. McCormick immediately quit the studio and the following morning it was noticed his name had been removed from the door, although negotiations for his return were carried on for several days.

The morning following the conference Miss Moore failed to return to work, studio officials said, and added that she would not give them a definite understanding as to what her future attitude would be. However, studio employees were all aware of Miss Moore's sympathy for her husband's stand against a situation he had termed "intolerable." McCormick would not, however, give a detailed statement regarding his disagreement with the company.

Both Miss Moore and Mr. McCormick left for New York nearly three weeks ago, and had planned a European tour. The complaint was filed yesterday with Supreme Court Justice Mullan in New York in an effort to have the matter heard by the court before the couple start their tour.

Grand Jury Resumes Quiz in Stock Debacle

PARIS, June 18. (Exclusive) The trail of Jacob Berman, alias Jack Bennett, so-called $10,000,000 fugitive in the Julian Petroleum Corporation stock fiasco in Los Angeles, literally vanished in the air here today when French authorities, seeking to arrest him, discovered he had left Le Bourget Field in a specially chartered airplane for an undisclosed destination.

Attorney Fay Chew, his companion, recently located with Bennett in a luxurious suite in the Hotel Gaya, was said by the police to be in London, probably en route to the United States. All police efforts to obtain information on Bennett's proposed destination have failed. Bennett is said to be carrying approximately $10,000,000 in a chamois belt about his waist.

Reports that C. C. Julian had coldly quit the Julian Petroleum Corporation stockholders' committee, which was formed for protection after the stock debacle, although his resignation was not officially tendered, last night brought forth the statement from D. Spurlin, chairman, that the Spring-street promoter was piqued because he was thwarted in his desire "to be the whole show" in administering the shareholders' affairs.

Chairman Spurlin pointed out that Julian was elected to the position on the committee at a mass meeting of stockholders on the 10th inst., along with Attorney David B. Rubin, since disqualified, and that a resolution which was beneficial to the stockholders was adopted.

"The resolution was adopted continuing the committee in force and another resolution added Julian and Rubin to the committee," Spurlin said, "I was opposed to having Mr. Julian on the committee because I do not think that anyone who has had official control or connection with the corporation at any time ought to be on a stockholders' committee.

OPPOSED COMMITTEE

"You will remember also that Mr. Julian opposed at the meeting the appointment of any committee. We would like to have him say why he opposed it. Also, since that evening, I have learned that Mr. Rubin is not a stockholder and is, therefore not eligible to be on the committee.

"Mr. Julian at the meeting declined to be on the committee, but was elected nevertheless. After the meeting he informed the committee that he was to be chairman or he would not act, as he was accustomed to be at the head of any committee with which he was connected. He said he wanted "to be the whole show or nothing." The committee did not consent to this and he therefore has stated publicly that he resigned from it, but has not yet sent in his resignation."

"A list of questions had been prepared for Mr. Julian to answer and I presented this list to him at the meeting, but he ignored them at that time. While I was not the sole author of the questions, I did present them to him at the meeting because I thought the stockholders should be informed on every point suggested in them. These questions have been published in the newspapers and we are still waiting for Mr. Julian to answer them.

COLLECTED COMMISSION

"The fact of the case is that Mr. Julian, by his advertising methods, got a lot of people to invest their money in Julian Petroleum Corporation stock, and they never received any dividends from their investments while he was in control. He was allowed 20 per cent commission on the sale of the stock and he received from S. C. Lewis, when he sold the controlling interest in Julian

ARCHBISHOP AND BISHOPS ARRIVE HERE

Three Mexican church dignitaries, two bishops and an archbishop, were the quiet guests of Los Angeles yesterday.

They arrived here individually and one of them, the bishop of Sinaloa, residing at Culiacan, Mex., after a brief stay, departed for Riverside, where he will visit friends. Later, he intends to go to El Paso.

The Most Rev. Leopoldo Ruiz y Flores, archbishop of Morelia, Michoacan, Mex., at present is at the home of friends at 2726 Menlo avenue. He was in conference with local Mexican religious leaders yesterday but intends to leave soon for Chicago. He stated that he will return to Mexico, together with the other church dignitaries, as soon as conditions are propitious.

The Rt. Rev. Manuel Azpaitia Palomar, bishop of Tepic, is the last member of the group to visit Los Angeles, though his arrival, like that of the other church leaders of Mexico, was unannounced. At present he is making his home with friends at 2210 Raymond avenue.

CHAMBER FOR VAIL AIRPORT

Site Declared Superior to That at Bandini

Complete Survey of Subject Given Council

San Fernando Tracts Ruled Out by Distance

The Vail site was recommended as the municipal airport by the directors of the Chamber of Commerce, according to a letter dispatched to the City Council yesterday by Secretary Arnoll. At the same time the council received notification that the Dominguez site had been withdrawn, which leaves the Vail site, four sites in the San Fernando Valley and the Bandini property under consideration.

In the latter Mr. Arnoll discussed the entire airport situation, beginning with a relation of the fact that the Chamber inaugurated the matter by having a survey of the region made by Dr. Ford Carpenter.

The San Fernando Valley and the Dominguez sites were substantially disposed of, it was stated, by their distance from the city, which ranged from sixteen to twenty-seven miles. The Bandini site is six and the Vail eight miles from the Arcade station.

It was pointed out that the Vail site is a tried field, having been used by the Western Air Express for more than a year, of 976 acres, at $5280 an acre, with a long runway leading toward the prevailing wind. The Vail field is naturally well drained, it was stated, this fact having been proved as the field was in use during the rains of last winter.

BANDINI FACTORS

The Bandini property is 500 acres in area, and was offered at $6500 an acre. This land has never been used as an airport, is lower than the Vail property, and, according to experts, will be difficult to drain. The advantage of the Bandini site over the Vail site is its location two miles nearer the postoffice.

"The other factors in favor of the Vail field," the letter declared, "far outweigh the small advantage the difference in distance would give the Bandini field.

"At a meeting of the board of directors of the Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce I was requested to communicate with your Honorable Council, and in view of the fact the Vail property can be made to meet the needs of a Class I airport at an expense very substantially less than the Bandini field, respectfully to urge upon you the importance of selecting the Vail property for the municipal airport of the city."

FAIL OF DECISION

The Council Airport Committee majority, composed of Councilmen Hughes and Shaw, recently recommended the purchase of the Bandini field, despite the fact that aviation experts asserted there had been an inadequate investigation. Such a flurry was created by this recommendation that the matter was referred to the Finance Comittee, which conducted hearings on the matter last Wednesday and Thursday, without reaching a decision.

The Dominguez site dropped out of the municipal airport controversy when attorneys for the Dominguez estate withdrew their offer of $3500 an acre for the 750-acre tract. The attorneys said that the property had been tied up with the city for seven or eight months in connection with the airport matter and as there was no date set for a definite determination of the airport question, the offer for the land was withdrawn.

The attorneys said that if the city desired the Dominguez site for an airport any proposition the city might make would be submitted to the Dominguez estate trustees.

COAST AIR PLANS BOOSTED

Col. Lindbergh Will Be Urged to Become Chief of Transportation Board Developments

Formal recognition of the airplane as a coming factor in transportation was given by 400 men representing every branch of agriculture industry and business on the Pacific Coast at the quarterly meeting of the Pacific Coast Transportation Advisory Board yesterday.

The board voted to form a special committee on aeronautical transportation and Col. Lindbergh is to be asked to accept the honorary chairmanship. P. G. Spilsbury, president of the Arizona Industrial Congress, was named acting chairman of the committee and he appointed as vice-chairman Orville S. McPherson, executive manager of the San Diego Chamber of Commerce, who had an active part in getting Lindbergh safely started on his historic flight.

This committee will take steps to promote the use of the airplane in commercial transportation and avoid the mistakes that were made in not recognizing the utility of the motor truck as a transportation factor fifteen years ago, Mr. Spilsbury said.

DEMANDS INCREASE

There has been an increased demand for airplane express of late and the American Railway Express Company now has negotiations under way with several commercial airplane companies for contracts to carry such express, a representative of the express company told the board. He predicted that air express will be a reality on the Pacific Coast within the next few months.

Business conditions generally throughout the Pacific Coast States have been normal or better the past six months and an even greater improvement is in prospect for the next quarter, according to commodity committee reports to the board. Agricultural conditions are excellent with record crops anticipated in deciduous

Every time the train stops the town aldermen drag up their fat wives to be shaken by the hand. And when he finally arrives at the abode of peace that they promised him, they introduce him to the sylvan quietude with a cannon . . . and twenty-one explosions thereof.

In spite of all which it will no doubt be possible to persuade some one (perhaps even Mr. Coolidge) to be President in 1928.

Having been annoyed by a mob of staring fans, she made this deathless observation:

Should war break out along the Polish border, the powers of Europe are going to find themselves in a very ridiculous position.

They set up this little tin-pot world power because, at the time, they "had a mad" with Germany . . . and were so rash as to promise to uphold its power.

The only way they can possibly do this is to rush troops from Western Europe across German soil. And, in a melting moment at Locarno they specifically agreed never to do this.

It looks as though all that France and her sisters can do to help Poland is to send the Russian soviets some insulting telegrams—collect.

BRAINLESS

It would be impossible to imagine anything more stupid, wrong or ineffective than the administration of the automobile traffic laws.

For months the motorist goes as fast as he pleases; then some morning a police judge in search of a little easy publicity begins sending traffic violators to jail for cruel and unusual terms. In other words, on Monday what he did was all right; on Tuesday it was a crime carrying with it a punishment—almost like death to sensitive people.

I pass over without comment the political system whereby men of such enfeebled intellect that processes are allowed to sit on the bench and tinker with the machinery of justice.

SIX HURT AS JINX BREAKS LOOSE

Unusual Number of Freakish Accidents Reported in Day; Man Falls Two Stories and Lands on Fellow Worker, Avoiding Pile of Brick

Somebody's private jinx apparently broke loose yesterday and, in trying to find a new home, caused five men and one woman to be sent to the Receiving Hospital suffering from injuries received in half a dozen freak accidents.

Morris Weiner, 30 years of age, of 218 Daly street, was working on the second floor of a building under construction on Vendome street near Sunset Boulevard. He lost his balance and fell. On the ground below were cement blocks, bricks and other building material, but instead of striking any of these Weiner fell on the back of Hipolito Rodarte, 25, of 4316 Brooklyn avenue. Weiner was treated for a possible fracture of the left foot. Rodarte complained of a sprain of his left foot.

Mrs. J. S. Hildreth, 33, of 9805 Beach street, was walking quietly along in front of the Pacific Electric station at Sixth and Main streets when P. A. Bohn of 1235 Stevenson avenue, Pasadena, bumped into her, according to police, in a crowd of pedestrians. She fell, it was stated, and suffered a possible fracture of the left hip.

Julius Du Dois, 46, of 6403 Miramonte avenue, was working in a substation of the Los Angeles Gas and Electric Corporation at 1033 Santee street, according to another police report, when he came into contact with wires carrying 15,000 volts. Though suffering third-degree burns, Police Surgeon Saverien stated there is a good chance for his recovery.

For a reason not known to police a gas heater in the basement of the J. J. Drug Store at 409 South Main street exploded and caused Louis Jones, 36 years of age, of 1236 West Thirty-seventh street, an employee, to suffer second-degree burns of the hands and face.

Frank Cosentine, 36 years of age, of 1587 East Thirty-seventh street, a conduit worker, was working in a man hole at Sixth street and Oxford avenue when there was a sudden flash. Cosentine was treated for second and third-degree burns. It was believed a tool in his hand came in contact with an exposed wire heavily charged with electricity.

Stepping from the sidewalk at Towne avenue and Fifth street Frank Eddo, 54 years of age, a dishwasher, was struck down by an automobile and seriously injured. After being treated for several fractured ribs and internal injuries he was taken to the General Hospital. The automobile, according to police, was driven by Anthony Crisper of 8465 Stanford avenue.

OPERATION ON ROGERS SUCCESSFUL

Will Rogers, America's favorite humorist, came through a major operation for gall stones splendidly at the California Lutheran Hospital yesterday, according to his physician, Dr. P. G. White, and was resting well last evening. The operation was decided upon after a conference between Dr. White, Rogers's personal physician, and Dr. E. C. Moore, surgery specialist, and the Beverly Hills Mayor was placed on the operating table at 11 a.m.

Rogers had been indisposed since his return from a recent lecture tour, but was inclined to jest at his condition. His physician, however, ordered him to take a long rest. Within the last few days his suffering had increased and at Dr. White's orders, he submitted to an examination, following which the cause was diagnosed as gall stones.

The success of the operation is attributed largely to Rogers's rugged physique and constitution and unless complications develop a rapid recovery is anticipated. The humorist received many telegrams during the day and the telephone operator at the hospital was besieged with inquiries relative to his condition.

PAPA HAS HIS DAY TO SHINE

Fathers of This Country Will Be Honored Tomorrow on Fifth Occasion Set Aside Nationally for Rest of Family to Sing Their Praise

Tomorrow is Father's Day for the fifth year nationally. Time was, when ribald scoffers could haw-haw loudly and point out with much truth that "It doesn't mean anything." But that time has passed. Father's Day has acquired a permanence as a regular observation day which appreciably grows each year.

In the old days when this observance was struggling to gain a foothold in the affection of the public, it lent itself ready as a fine subject for "wise-cracking." It has been laid down as an oft-proven maxim that the popularity of certain movements can be judged by the volume of humorous comment and raillery they cause. And in this respect Father's Day increasingly shines.

Undoubtedly the very idea of getting sentimental over the Old Man has a certain comical slant. Mother was different—but to give a male rendering of her "day" seemed funny. For fathers are not the most idealistic objects in the world. Add the burden and problems of a growing family along with the lengthening years and the combined weight of responsibility will pretty much take the starch out of the average father.

Following the trend it looks as if this Father's Day will add greatly to the poetry already spilled on the subject. For last year witnessed a great jump in the rhyming crop. Most of these jingles echoed the sentiments expressed by Pierce Egan in his ode on "Father," published several years ago: "Who is it that wears last summer's hat, that his boy may make a sporty frat—and thinks it quite right at that? It's father!" Edgar A. Guest's "Daddies," in more serious vein, also was widely copied, and there was an eruption of limericks.

The 1926 crop of "wise-cracks" ran to large proportions. Pretty nearly every "column" printed one or more. One paper even had a contest of the kind, of which the following is a good example: "My father likes music—so's your old man-dolin!" Another paper printed a burlesque account of an asserted parade with various appropriate floats, one of which showed father taking his elegant ease on the family lawn while his family frantically mowed it all about him.

And not a bad hint, at that. For really, behind the funny side of the occasion tomorrow is the basic thought of showing honor, respect and love to the dear old boy. Wear a rose for him, give him some little gift, such as a tie, or tobacco. Fine! But for one day give him his own way in everything; give in to his every whim.

Cross-Examination Reveals New Development

Prosecution Scores as Negress Relates Phone Talk

Kelly Room-mate Furnishes Comedy Relief Again

A foundation for an entirely new theory as to the cause of the death of Ray Raymond, musical comedy actor, was laid yesterday by the defense at the trial of his widow, Dorothy Mackaye, stage actress, in Superior Judge Burnell's court on two felony charges. Defense Attorneys Jerry Geisler and Roger Marchetti formed the basis for this new defense through the cross-examination of two of the prosecution's important witnesses.

With the cause of death of Raymond the pivotal point of the entire case, Miss Mackaye's attorneys apparently are not going to dispute the assertion that a subdural hemorrhage proved fatal and that it was caused by violence. From questions they asked of Charlotte Ethel Lee, negress, who was housekeeper for the Raymonds, and County Autopsy Surgeon Wagner, it was indicated they will seek to show a fall and not a blow from the fists of Paul Kelly, avowed sweetheart of the actress, resulted in the fatal hemorrhage.

CONVERSATION TOLD

On the other hand, the State, through Dep. Dist.-Attys. Murray and Kemp, struck a blow when Miss Lee told of a telephone conversation she had with Dr. W. J. Sullivan, who had with Dr. W. J. Sullivan, who treated Raymond. She said the physician told her to tell Miss Mackaye to hurry to his office as he couldn't wait because "newspaper reporters are after me." She quoted the physician as saying that "it was a police case and I will have to report it" and that as a result Miss Mackaye's "name would be in the papers tomorrow." This occurred on the day preceding Raymond's death and was admitted when the witness said she repeated to Miss Mackaye.

Max Wagner, room-mate of Kelly, again assumed the role of comedy relief man in the court drama. Wagner brought the courtroom into a roar of laughter when he declared he had but a hazy memory of the gin parties at Kelly's apartment, which were attended by Miss Mackaye and Helen Wilkinson, her "girl friend."

Mr. Kemp was questioning Wagner about dancing and playing the phonograph at these parties and he responded with his customary "I don't remember."

GIN JUG REPLACED

"But you do remember drinking, don't you?" the court asked.

"I must have because I don't remember," was his response.

"The gin jug was filled up quite a number of times and there was plenty to drink?" Mr. Kemp inquired.

"I wouldn't say that. It was replaced," he said.

At the recent trial of Kelly before Judge Burnell his attorneys disputed the cause of Raymond's death along a different theory. They tried to show the subdural hemorrhage was caused, not by violence at Kelly's hands, but by a series of ailments and alcoholism from which the actor was suffering.

The strongest points in favor of the new defense against the cause of death was Miss Lee's testimony that Raymond fell out of bed the morning following his first fight with Kelly over Miss Mackaye's affections and that she saw him grope his way to bathroom during the early morning hours. It was also strengthened by Dr. Wagner, who asserted the hemorrhage might have been caused by a fall as well as from a fist blow or any other form of violence.

CONVERSATION MENTIONED

The telephone conversation between Dr. Sullivan, who was jointly indicted with Miss Mackaye but was granted a separate trial, was brought out in support of the prosecution's contention that an agreement existed between the actress and the physician to "cover up" the true facts of Raymond's death.

On the day of his arrival home from a theatrical tour with the "Castles in the Air" company, Raymond asked his wife if she was going to give up Kelly, according to Miss Lee's testimony.

"Miss Mackaye told him that everything was going to be all right," the witness said. "I heard him say: 'All right then, we'll draw down the curtain'." She said Miss Mackaye was evasive.

Miss Lee, the only eyewitness to the fist fight between Kelly and Raymond, reiterated how the young film actor attacked and beat his older adversary, raining blows on him and giving him one parting punch in the face before he left the Raymond home, where the fight took place. The court did not permit her to relate the conversations between Raymond and Kelly, but she did say she attempted to get Kelly to desist from beating Raymond, who was a sick man and had been drinking heavily.

STAYED ALL NIGHT

She also told of calling up Kelly's apartment on occasions when Miss Mackaye failed to return home at night and of finding her there in the morning. She said Dr. Sullivan came to the Raymond home on the day of his death and insisted on Miss Mackaye paying him his fee of $500. She said Miss Mackaye was indignant and could not understand why the doctor had asked for his money so soon after the death of her husband.

Dr. Wagner attributed the death of Raymond to a subdural hemorrhage. The blow which caused this hemorrhage, he opined, could have been caused either by a fist blow or a fall. Miss Lee also testified that once during the fight Raymond's head struck against a divan.

After telling of the gin parties at Kelly's apartment on the four days preceding the death of Raymond, Max Wagner told how Kelly had given him $600 to take to Miss Mackaye for "general expenses." He said he gave it to Miss Mackaye.

On the night of the fight, he said, Miss Mackaye visited Kelly's apartment and upbraided him for attacking her husband.

WAGNER STILL ON STAND

Wagner was still on the stand under cross-examination when adjournment was taken last evening. He will be the first witness called when the case is resumed again Monday at 2 p.m. He is to be followed by Perry Askom, an actor and friend of Raymond, and "Jungles" Teno Yobu, Japanese houseboy, who is to tell of visits Miss Mackaye made to Kelly's home and of occasions when, she asserts, she remained there all night.

In his opening remarks to the jury Mr. Geisler pointed out the State must prove that Miss Mackaye had knowledge of the fact that Raymond's death resulted from the fist fight and that it would be proven she relied on what Dr. Sullivan told her. His first diagnosis was that Raymond died from natural causes. He said the evidence would show Miss Mackaye had nothing to do with any arrangements for the burial of Raymond and that if any false information was given to the Coroner it was given before she saw Dr. Sullivan after her husband's death.

RECONCILIATION HINTED

He also said it would be shown that Miss Mackaye and her husband had a conversation at the hospital during one of his conscious moments when they discussed the future and she told him that his fight with Kelly had brought them close together and resulted in a reconciliation after an agreement to separate.

Mr. Murray said the State would prove there was an intimate acquaintance between Kelly and Miss Mackaye; that they had planned on getting married after they had disposed of Raymond; that Kelly killed Raymond; that there they was not one single extenuating circumstance for his attack, and that Miss Mackaye, through the influence of the $600 she received from Kelly, determined to shield him.

The trial yesterday was again the drawing card for an even larger crowd than the day before and the crowds are rivaling those which were on hand at Kelly's hearing in spite of the fact that nearly all of the testimony is a repetition. Rapid progress is being made and an early closing of the case predicted.

DEATH VALLEY MAN TAKEN AS FUGITIVE

John Kousch, wanted at San Bernardino on a charge of assault with intent to murder growing out of a pistol duel in Death Valley, was arrested last night by Deputy Sheriffs Jones and Higgins of the fugitive squad and will be returned to San Bernardino. He was taken in custody at Long Beach. The deputies also arrested Morris Roberts on a fugitive warrant from Ventura charging a felony. The details of the case are unknown here.

MRS. EDITOR

These girl twins who are editing a country paper in Santa Clara and getting a wallop out of being the town bosses . . .

I don't suppose there is any other occupation in the world in which there is so much genuine fun as editing a successful country paper. Or so much chance for brains and initiative. Especially out here in the West where the towns are full of lively activity.

NEW RULES TO GOVERN TAG CASES

Chief of Police Davis yesterday announced a set of new rules for motorists who receive pink citations for infractions of the various traffic ordinances.

Under these rules, worked out in collaboration with the clerks of the Municipal Courts, bail will be accepted by the bail clerk at Central Station for all offenses except speeding and reckless driving. Such bail, under the rules, can be deposited at any time prior to the date of trial.

The same rules will apply at San Pedro, San Fernando Valley and Venice. Bail money will be received by the police clerk at San Pedro, Van Nuys or Venice in traffic cases originating in those districts.

Later they obtained the services of Ranger, who, with an unnamed woman companion went to the ranch, dug up the plunder and started to Los Angeles and Hollywood with one share, while other shares were disposed of to about Santa Ana. This all according to the officials.

At this juncture of the investigation, the prohibition officers, under the direction of Maj. McReynolds, prohibition administrator for Southern California, began search for evidence surrounding a mysterious key to the liquor strongroom, which was said to have been in the possession of Williams.

WOMAN IN CASE

Dovetailing with that investigation, the officers also began looking into reports of asserted "wild parties" held in a Santa Ana hotel, where officially seized liquor was served the guests, the list of which was said to have included officials, prominent business men, rum-runners and bootleggers. In that connection, the officers said, the name of a woman, which they withheld pending further investigation, flitted in as "hostess."

With the release of the names of those indicted came the complete story of the asserted operations of the officials and rum-runners since 1923, an amazing and daring plot, the largest, officers said, ever unearthed in California.

Cornero, who fled from the United States before the liquor investigation was announced exclusively in The Times on the 8th inst., was credited with plotting the conspiracy. With him, the officers declared, was Finneback, a lieutenant, and the "man with the money."

Finneback was said to have approached the various officials with the conspiracy which was accepted under the terms that liquor could be brought ashore with safety, and that they would use their official capacities to divert the attention of government men at the proper times.

FURTHER INQUIRY

In 1925 the plot was in full swing. Scores of boatloads of liquor came over the Orange county beach sands, with the officers assertedly receiving $1 upward as their cut, while A. J. Allen, resort owner at Green Bay where the major operations were said to have centered, was asserted to have received 25 cents per case.

The bribes assertedly were passed by the rum-runners' agents tossing rolls of bills in an automobile, conveniently parked at Seal Beach. The bribes were said to have reached approximately $35,000—share and share alike among the officials.

On the 24th inst. the Federal grand jury will resume its investigation into the scandal, and authentic reports at the Federal Building indicated several prominent Santa Ana men, as well as other officials and bootleggers, face indictment.

Four Hurt, Two Feared Dying, in Auto Collision

Four persons were injured, two so seriously that they may die, when a small roadster driven by Harry Zorn, 20913 Sherman Way, Owensmouth, and a touring car rented by the Paramount Famous-Lasky Company collided on Lankershim Boulevard near Zelzah Thursday night.

Mrs. Zorn and her small son, Jerry, are in the San Fernando Hospital where hope for their recovery was said to be slight. Mrs. Zorn's arm was broken with possible skull fracture and severe lacerations, while the boy's arm was also broken and possible brain concussion. Mr. Zorn and small daughter suffered bruises and lacerations.

The Lasky car was returning from location at Zelzah where the company was filming scenes in "Tell It To Sweeney." The car was carrying George Bancroft and Director Gregory Lacava at the time of the crash.

The actors were uninjured.

GIRL AND ASSERTED ABDUCTOR RETURNED

Roberta Matot, 14 years of age, and her asserted abductor, Fred E. Fales, 24, were brought back to Los Angeles yesterday from San Diego by Detective Lieutenant Magness and Policewoman Arenberg. Fales was lodged in the County Jail on a charge of contributing to the girl's delinquency while the girl was placed in Juvenile Hall. She was supposedly abducted last Tuesday evening.

AUTOS STOLEN

The following cars were reported stolen in the past twenty-four hours from the streets of Los Angeles, by the theft bureau of the Automobile Club of Southern California:

Hudson coach, 857-520; Studebaker sedan, 726-863; Ford coupe, 1115-480; Essex coupe, 795-505; Marmon roadster, 1163-371; Ford touring, 958-966; Chevrolet touring, 894-443; Chevrolet roadster, 926-616; Ford coupe, 1021-844; Chevrolet roadster, 946-415; Ford coupe, 924-647.

AIR PLANS FOR COAST BOOSTED

fruits and other lines and this in turn means that there will be more buying and retailers, wholesalers and manufacturers will benefit. At present the manufacturers and wholesalers report a tendency on the part of the retailers to keep stocks down with a resulting low volume of business.

Prices of commodities generally have fallen 6 per cent in the past six months, which is equal to the entire decline for last year, and brings the price level very near to the low point reached in January, 1922, the report of the Jobber's Committee for the Southern division showed.

MONEY EASY

Money is easy and plenty is available to finance crop movements, most of the reports indicate. Some reluctance to finance crop movements was reported from one Los Angeles source and in the Yuma Valley there is money enough for crop movements but not for crop production, it was stated. In most districts the demand for money has been slightly heavier.

Volume of trade has increased from 5 to 15 per cent over the same period in the Los Angeles region and while there has been a slight seasonal contraction since the forepart of April it has not been as great as in other years, it was reported. Indications point to the best deciduous fruit crop in years and a walnut crop that will equal the 1925 record, it was said. The acreage planted to cotton and beans is somewhat below last year but the condition of these crops is good. Compresses reported 10,025 bales of cotton on their platforms and this small lot is approximately all that is left of the 1926 crop, it was stated. The estimated acreage of cotton this year is 402,500, a decrease of 80,000 acres and the estimated yield is 281,300 bales or a decrease of 72,000 bales from last year. The cotton market is advancing and is expected to be especially good this year because the flood in the Mississippi Valley halted much planting there.

OTHER CONDITIONS

In San Francisco large stores report increased business but smaller stores show a decrease. Oakland reported a healthy improvement with collections fair. Sacramento reported low prices for agricultural products with collections slow. Orange county was reported prosperous. Southern Oregon has had to carry over loans because of low prices for crops, principally fruits. The business outlook in Eureka and Humboldt counties is encouraging and in the Imperial Valley conditions are fair to good.

In Southeastern New Mexico conditions are slightly depressed due to the drought and indications are for a dull year. At Phoenix conditions are favorable with prospects better than was anticipated for cotton. At Yuma retail business is not up to last year but the general outlook is good.

Butter shows an increased turnover this year of 14.59 per cent above last year with cheese about normal and a falling off is reported for eggs and poultry because of a poor market.

Carloads of oranges and lemons shipped the past six months totalled 42,858 or an increase of 29 per cent over last year and it was estimated that 17,540 cars would be required in the next three months to ship the Valencia crop or an increase of 17 per cent. The lemon market has improved and returns for both oranges and lemons have been fairly satisfactory.

Conditions for petroleum have been good this year and it is estimated that 54,412 cars or an increase of 14 per cent over last year will be required to handle the output of the next quarter. The canned goods committee reported prospects of a light cherry crop this year with about the same apricot, peach and pear crop. Prospects are generally fair for the grape crop. Vegetables and melons will require 21,775 cars in the next three months. It was estimated that 15,000 cars would be required for deciduous fruits.

WILL DISCUSS WIDENING

Deputy City Attorney Delorey, assigned to handle the suit for the condemnation of land for the widening of Eighth street from Figueroa street to Windsor Boulevard, will discuss the proceedings at a meeting of the Eighth Street Improvement Association Monday at 7:30 p.m. at the Wilton school, Eighth street and Wilton Place. Champ Vance, first vice-president of the association, will preside. Others scheduled to talk are W. W. Bearman, Spencer Thorpe and Councilman Hall.

Despite the noise of hammering, a robin built a nest on the top of a joiner's bench in a carpenter shop in Strabane, Ireland, and is complacently rearing three young birds.

Grocery Robber, Declared Noted Bandit, Killed

Chris Nolan, 47 years of age, the asserted "lone wolf" whose criminal operations covered two continents, died yesterday at the General Hospital from bullet wounds received when trapped by police in a grocery early in the morning at 1132 West Manchester avenue.

The suspect's operations covered Europe and America, according to police records. He had served jail terms abroad as well as in British Columbia and the United States.

He was brought down by police early yesterday morning as he was trying to make his getaway from the grocery store into which he had broken. When he disregarded a command to halt the police opened fire. He was shot through the abdomen.

MEETING ANNOUNCED

The W.C.T.U. will conduct a meeting for members of congregations of negro churches Sunday at 3 p.m. in Yesley Chapel, 605 East Eighth street. The program will be under the direction of the peace department.

SPURLIN FLAYS JULIAN TACTICS

Petroleum Corporation to him, $700,000, as Mr. Lewis has said in the public press, representing that commission and not representing any money that he had invested in the corporation himself, while the stockholders received nothing except that they got into the hands of some unscrupulous speculators and probably have lost all they had in the company.

"I have no personal feeling against Mr. Julian, but rather was friendly with him, but I have received from certain friends of Mr. Julian sarcastic and insulting letters and deem it wise at this time to say why, apparently, I have opposed his being on this committee. I certainly do not believe that he is a fit person to serve on a stockholders' committee. He promotes everything for his own benefit and those who went with him on these transactions, like the proverbial turkey, 'got it in the neck'."

WILL NOT RESIGN

Mr. Spurlin declared he had been hampered in the committee work by "two or three of Julian's friends," who had sought to have Spurlin resign so they could put in some of his (Julian's) friends. Spurlin emphatically declared he would not resign, but would proceed with his plans and report officially within a few days.

In addition to advocating the organization of "an impartial committee" to assist the general committee, Spurlin announced he was preparing to broadcast proxy votes to the stockholders, by which he might be authorized to proceed, with the consent of the shareholders.

The county grand jury, which is investigating the stock debacle, resumed sessions yesterday and a review of the evidence already obtained was begun.

BENNETT REPORTED RETURNING

Jack Rosenberg, H. M. Haldeman and Jacob Farbstein are accused by City Prosecutor Lickley's of extracting usurious rates of interest from the Julian Petroleum Corporation, when it was in financial straits before the stock overissue was announced and the certificates barred from the market. They will plead next week.

Next Monday United States Judge McCormick is scheduled to rule on a petition before him asking that Joseph Scott and H. L. Carnahan be set aside as receivers for the affairs of A. C. Wagy & Co., Inc., a brokerage house which was a heavy dealer in Julian securities.

JUDGE CITED TO APPEAR

On the 27th inst., Judge McCormick also is ordered by the United States Circuit Court of Appeals to appear before that tribunal in San Francisco to show cause why he should not recognize the appointment of Samuel M. Shortridge, Jr., and B. H. Cochran as receivers for the Wagy firm.

United States Judge St. Sure in San Francisco appointed the latter men to the position, but when they applied for appointment as ancillary receivers before Judge McCormick he appointed in their stead Scott and Carnahan. Then Shortridge and Cochran appealed to the Circuit Court of Appeals for a hearing, which was granted.

Scott and Carnahan also are directed to appear with Judge McCormick and show cause why they should interfere with the appointment of Shortridge and Cochran by not accepting the receivership of the Wagy firm.

Although Brazil has an area as great as the United States, exclusive of Alaska, there are only 52,600 motor vehicles there.

This Church, organized under the leadership of Annie C. Bill, has for its mission the introduction and establishment in world consciousness of the Science of organization as taught by Mary Baker Eddy. It advances true Christian Science; in no way disrupts it nor rejects a single fact in Mrs. Eddy's teachings, immeasurably increasing appreciation of her life work; never distracting from her achievements. It is demonstrating her discovery of the great system of mental power, the common consent of the governed to spiritual leadership, which will change the whole of human consciousness from a pathway of death unto a living unfoldment of Life.

DEFERENCE FOR LAW

Things must be getting better. This week a gang of Chicago gunmen went to all the bother of putting on masks.

HOPS

It's quite the common thing to call a dance a hop. And some of them do make one think of aviation stunts, don't they?

STARTERS AND COMMENCERS

This season reminds us that college students who are most given to starting something often do not reach commencement.

STRONG FLYING

The American eagle is quite a bird when his pinions are spread for trans-Atlantic flight. Wonder when Henry Ford will hop off for Vienna?

SHE HELPED

"Elinor Glyn Reconciled to Girl of Today."—Headline. Will the orchestra kindly strike up, "You Made Me What I Am Today, I Hope You're Satisfied"?

EXTRA QUALITY

There doesn't seem any great public demand for an extra session, but there is a great and growing desire for something extra in the form of Congress itself.

MATTER OF INTEREST

They say that a lot of capitalists took a great deal of interest in the various Julian flotations—some of them as high as 100 per cent. But they were not the real stockholders.

REDUCING RENTS

The Italian Cabinet makes a decree by which rents in Rome are substantially reduced. If Mussolini can get away with this he is in a fair way to become the patron saint of the flatdwellers.

THE PROBATIONERS

What's the big idea of convicting people of their crimes and then immediately putting them on probation? Why not start everybody on probation and then when a guy goes wrong lock him up and save the cost of a trial?

ARE THERE OTHERS?

We don't ever like to be cynical. But an awful hubbub is on because some persons in official positions in Orange county are alleged to have sold confiscated liquor. If that is true they should be nabbed, of course. But the question naturally arises, why pick especially on Orange county?

BETTER HURRY

Van Nuys chicken ranchers are using vacuum cleaners to clean chicken houses. And the chicken houses, by the way, are electric lighted. By George, when some of us who are always talking about it finally do get around to going back to nature there won't be any nature left to go back to.

THIS FREEDOM

According to testimony in a local court a wife paid her husband $2000 to secure her freedom. The question is can the husband be indicted for usury? In most cases the wife is not so considerate of her partner. If the women are going to establish an upset price of $2000 for their freedom a lot of husbands would like to know it.

MEMORY TESTS

After all, if you can remember back that far you'll observe that there isn't any really great spiritual difference between the girls of today and the "fin de siecle" girls of the latter nineties. And if you can remember back still farther, while you're at it, our flaming youths are quite suggestive of "les incroyables," who flourished just after the French revolution.

THE SUN SIFTER

Now the doctors have found that they can filter the rays of the sun—pick out the nice little ones they want and discard the fiery ones. In this way the value of the great orb as a curative agency is greatly extended. The sun is nature's remedy, but sometimes he blisters in the fervor of his caress. In sifting and filtering the rays the tenderest pelt is made safe against damage.

PERPETUAL YOUTH

Colleges are apparently good for the body as well as the mind. The head of the Los Angeles school system has just returned from a reunion of the Vassar class of 1877. There were but forty-five graduates at that time. That was fifty years ago. Nevertheless, thirty-five of them are still alive and few of these are willing to be listed as old and useless. There was a day when a woman was thought to be old at 50. Now she adds twenty years to that and then adorns herself for her club. She remains a live wire to the last. All of which is a fine thing for America.

THE LAST RAID

Lame ducks, it appears, have their uses. They still can hurl eagles to the four winds; the eagles on dollars. With only a little less than two weeks left for the defeated Los Angeles City Councilmen to retain office the loud-spoken "champions of union labor" are attempting to push through their most flagrant raid on an already-shrunken treasury. Pay increases totalling $385,800 annually for city employees comprise the latest demands of the Central Labor Council.

So subservient has the retiring Council been to the orders of the unions that all caution has been laid aside in the final scramble for further spoils. Salary boosts reaching into the hundreds of thousands of dollars already have been obtained. That was easy, despite protests on the part of an overburdened citizenry. But it seems that in their unseemly haste to make the most of a vanishing opportunity the itching-palm fraternity has overreached itself. Not only is the sum now sought larger in itself than any previously granted, but public opposition has been redoubled by the tactics employed.

Public sentiment has been expressed already very clearly. Nine members of the City Council will walk out of chambers on July 1 relieved of the responsibility of government—by request. The vote at the primaries and the June 7 election demonstrated the extent of public displeasure at the manner in which the city's affairs had been bungled. It is not to be tolerated now, with that rebuff in mind, that the ousted politicians dispense with more large sums of money entrusted to the municipality after collection as taxes. In effect they already are out of office; it merely is a formality that they hold their seats until the first of the month. Public trust in them is gone and they should act accordingly.

However, no such scruples hamper the over-grasping unionite spokesmen. Their slogan is "Get all you can while the getting's good." How that is accomplished is of no moment to them. The money counts. And, of course, it is expected that the grateful beneficiaries of pay rises will rush to join the fold—and aid in the purpose of unionizing all other municipal employees. Such schemes have proved effective in the past.

Whether the expiring Council will dare attempt any coup of this nature remains to be seen. But the people should be on the alert. It is a direct slap at the voters who have chosen their own representatives if their wishes directly are flouted by an effort to chuck more funds into the never-appeased maw of the unions. Stringent steps should be taken if the scheme really threatens to materialize. It is the people's money and they should have a say about what is done with it.

The coffer raiders have gotten in the habit. Now is the best time in the world to cure them of an obnoxious complex.

SALVATION ARMY SUMMER CAMP

Always alert in the service of others and practical in its Christian office, the Salvation Army for nearly half a century has endeavored to follow literally in the footsteps of the Master. The number of times it has used its organization as a help and refuge for the unfortunate and the erring has made that half-century of work a shining example of Christianity in action. That it has succeeded not only as a charitable but also as a business institution—that it has grown by giving—is a visible proof of the sound philosophy contained in the Sermon on the Mount.

On the shores of the Pacific at Redondo Beach the Salvation Army has just added another number to its long list of good works. Last Tuesday Mr. and Mrs. Dabney and the Los Angeles Advisory Board, who contributed to the purchase of the land and the furnishings, intrusted the army with the care and management of a new summer camp for women and children. At this camp at least 2000 women and children will enjoy free vacation trips this summer and by next summer the army officials hope to have accommodation for more than double this number.

Both for the simple altruism of its ministry and the efficiency of its business management the Salvation Army has won its way into the hearts of all who are seeking means for helping the less fortunate and brightening the lot of the losers and the strugglers. Through the confidence their name inspires such true Christian activities as establishing this summer camp at Redondo for poor women and children are made possible.

Everyone knows that when the Salvation Army says free service it means free service. Everyone who makes gifts or bequests to the Salvation Army knows that the funds will not be frittered away in needless overhead expenses, but administered in a business-like way, in the spirit of Christian philanthropy. The army will need additional funds to give the summer camp for women and children the scope for further activities intended by the donors who handed over to it this charitable trust. The reputation the Salvation Army enjoys, no less than the object for which the Redondo camp was founded, is sufficient surety for this necessary provision.

THE IRISH ELECTION

An analysis of the complete returns in the Irish Free State election shows a close shave for the Cosgrove government and an indorsement of its policies, though by a reduced majority. Eamonn De Valera professes to see in this the triumph of his principles and points out that the anti-treaty forces have gained four or five seats, or advanced from forty-six to fifty or fifty-one members. But since the Dail has a membership of 153 it is evident that the treaty upholders have a majority numbering about three to one. By treaty is meant that agreement with Great Britain by which the present status of the Irish Free State was determined as a self-governing dominion of the British Commonwealth of Nations.

The De Valeraites alone are unalterably opposed to the upholders of the treaty and the present policies of the government. That leaves to be considered three other groups of representatives—the National League, the Farmers' Union and the Independents. Their combined strength controls thirty-four seats of a conservative leaning. These parties uphold the treaty and will support the government on many questions, but they differ from the government and among themselves on minor issues. They are a force the Cosgrove government will have to reckon with.

The treaty adopted compels the members of the Dail to take an oath of allegiance to the King and a penalty is prescribed for refusing to do so. Since the De Valera adherents declare that they will never take this oath, they are not apt to form a dangerous opposition group in the next Dail Eireann. The prospects for steady government in Ireland along conservative lines have not been dimmed by the national temper shown at this last election.

The World: "And They Thought They Could Scare Me"

LINES OF STEEL

How much human progress and culture owe to the men who build railroads, highways, bridges and otherwise facilitate communications between distant communities is dramatically set forth in a recent Saturday Evening Post editorial. As that editorial points out, however strained the relations between two countries may become, direct railroad communication forms a geographical and commercial tie of paramount value for the maintenance of peace.

The part played by the railroads and highways of America in developing the resources of our own domain—and especially in "the winning of the West"—has been emphasized so often and so fully in story and picture that it has made a permanent impression on our national consciousness. The equally important part rail extension is playing for the cause of Pan-Americanism has not been so generally considered.

An achievement deserving a place in the historical records of world-famous events is seen in the completion a few weeks ago of the last gap in the line of the Southern Pacific of Mexico directly connecting the immensely rich west coast territory of that country with the industrial centers of the United States.

From an engineering standpoint the feat equals any in the long list of railroad triumphs over natural barriers and obstacles. As an example of the vision and confidence of American railroad builders it refutes conclusively the too-prevalent idea that American business thinks chiefly in terms of immediate profit. On this phase of the issue the Saturday Evening Post article says:

> The expenditures upon this lengthy railroad, the delays encountered and the immense losses sustained cannot be recompensed by any immediate or early profits in proportion. But the nearly 20,000 miles of the company's lines in the United States have been tied in with the heart of Mexico and its great consuming centers. . . . Certainly American capital and enterprise have not exploited Mexico in any attempt to provide markets for this country's products. There is machinery ready for its future economic growth; life lines for its processes of wealth production when peace and stability are more assured.

The writer of the article might have gone a step farther. He might have added that the assurance of peace and stability is advanced a hundredfold by the link of steel now bringing the products of rich but undeveloped Mexican lands into direct communication with markets of the United States. Indeed, in undertaking this vast enterprise the Southern Pacific deserves a fixed position of honor among the organizations working for better understanding among the nations of the world.

SUGAR AND SMOKE

Rebecca Latimer Felton, 92, only woman who ever sat in the United States Senate, says modern girls are as sweet as their mothers, and, if that is so, bless them, they are certainly sweet. She says concerning smokes for women, "Their great-grandmothers smoked, why can't they if they want to?" Darn it, they do.

STRONG-ARMED JUSTICE

A justice of the peace of Escalon was challenged by a disputant in his court to step outside. He did so. The challenger swung with his right and the justice knocked him for a row of Boulder dams. Score one for the strong arm of the law.

BUT NOT BLACKMAIL

An eastern sport writer who criticised the style of a boxer received a pair of boxing gloves by mail with the boxer's card inclosed. That's a startling example of the mailed fist.

MORE USEFUL THAN GOLD

Judging from government reports the United States possesses deposits of potash in New Mexico of unmeasured extent and richness. It is almost impossible to estimate their value.

Experts tell us that the greatest menace to our country's prosperity is that of soil exhaustion; and one of our most pressing problems is how to build up soil fertility. The Department of Agriculture is well aware of the gravity of the situation and so are agricultural experts, but the mass of the people scarcely realise it. Agriculture remains the corner-stone of our country's prosperity. Every man, woman and child in the United States is concerned in this question, since the price of food depends on its solution.

Potash is a first aid to agricultural prosperity. It exists sparingly in soil. Every crop taken from the earth, like a check drawn on a bank, draws out a part of that deposit. The result is productivity slowly decreases until the discouraged owner of the farm abandons or sells the land and moves to a near-by town to swell the ranks of labor. Nature in her leisurely way is doing what she can to restore the balance, but she cannot compete with continual croppings, especially of such crops as corn, wheat, potatoes and cotton.

We have been importing about $10,000,000 worth of potash a year. We need a great deal more. Such facts show us the importance of the discovery just announced from New Mexico. It means more than the discovery of rich gold mines or flowing wells of oil. An abundant supply of potash at reasonable rates promises renewed agricultural prosperity to large sections of our country and comes as a great conserving force to agriculture generally.

HARD ON THE TREE

Col. Lindbergh's grandfather was originally named Mansson, but changed to Lindbergh after coming to the United States from Sweden. That is all right with us, but it certainly is hard on our hero's ancestors.

UNDER SUSPICION

There are not enough prisons in Russia to hold those who are under suspicion. In most cases nobody seems to know what they are suspected of, but the Commune is founded on suspicion.

THE TOUCAN

By James J. Montague

The toucan is a solemn bird
Of which you frequently have heard.

He flaunts about the tropic zone,
A beard that's built of solid bone;

Behind which gleam two piercing eyes
Which makes him look extremely wise.

If you perchance should gaze on him
You'd think him dour and stern and grim.

Great strength of character you'd trace
Behind that large imposing face,

In every lineament you'd find
The mark of a tremendous mind.

Deducing from his haughty stare
An Elder Stateseman of the air.

And yet the toucan's not so much;
He lives on bugs and fruits and such—

In craven fear he takes to flight
When owls or eagles heave in sight.

His beak a caitiff's nature cloaks,
For birds are very much like folks—

Despite a proud and pompous air
They may be, so to speak, not there.

Nor can we learn from men or books

BY SUZANNE PEMKOFF

A desperate British parent has sent out a frantic appeal to the general public, via the "agony column" of the London Times, for advice in the rearing of his fractious offspring. He plaintively states, "A parent would appreciate advice from any with successful experience in correcting naughty boys." Unsuccessful contestants with the stubborn young are ruled out, but anyone who has coped successfully with them was invited to communicate with all haste.

One wonders if he received many answers. Newspaper readers are accustomed to perusing the pathetic queries of distressed females who want the editor to tell them how to hold their husbands. But it is something new for a parent to broadcast his grief and despair, and the situation must be urgent when a proud father is willing to admit that junior does not hearken to commands in the way he should.

Our memory does not go back to the good old days so frequently written of, when the barefoot boy was up with the sun pitching hay or cutting wood and hence had no chance to get into the mischief that allures the youngster of today. But looking over some of the young imps who grace our neighborhood we feel competent to offer the British father and any others who desire it some gratis advice. Cutting down on the ice-cream cones and movies and refusing to let 14-year-olders dash around the streets in the family car might have a salutary effect on juvenile character. Evening shows at the corner movie always have a preponderance of children in the audience, when they should be at home studying their lessons or in bed. But this, of course, gives the parents a little free time as well. Many of these youngsters come home alone and let themselves into an empty house, the parents returning from an evening soiree in the wee small hours. Nevertheless, they would be the first to raise their voices in dismay if their unfortunate boys and girls turned out wrong.

What the modern parent needs is not advice on how to train his child, but some information on the proper training for himself. It isn't the poor children who are wrong, but their fathers and mothers, who have no time for them and follow the lines of least resistance. Then some day, when they have a lucid moment and take a good look at what they have on their hands the welkin rings with their indignant cries over the fate that has handed them such erratic, unappreciative offspring.

ANCIENT PANACEA

In Italy the most famous poisoner of the seventeenth century was a woman named Toffana, who sold and used for the purpose a liquid preparation called "Aqua Toffana, Aquetta di Napoli," or "Manna of St. Nicholas di Bari."

This was a colorless, tasteless liquid preparation of arsenic, which was ostensibly sold as a cosmetic, but concerning the toxic uses of which confidential information was given at the time of purchase. Wives who purchased and used this "cosmetic" could get rid of undesirable husbands with little or no difficulty, and for a long time no suspicion attached to this harmless-looking preparation which stood on the lady's dressing table.

Toffana is said to have had more than 600 victims to her credit, before she was finally apprehended and put to death. Nothing is said of the fate of her accomplices, the wives who administered the poison.—["Four Thousand Years of Pharmacy," by Charles H. La Wall.

Army and Navy Fliers

SAN DIEGO, June 14.—[To the Editor of The Times:] The paragraph, "Fatal Stunts," from the Los Angeles Times of June 13, leads me to believe that you have been misinformed in regard to stunt flying in the Army and Navy.

Stunt flying is prohibited only in certain type airplanes which have not been designed for the severe stresses set up in stunting. In the other types of airplanes stunting is not only permitted, but is encouraged and taught as a part of an aviator's training for aerial combat flying. There is no case on record of a naval aviator being killed while stunting in disobedience to orders.

It is not entirely fair to compare air-mail aviators to Army and Navy aviators on the basis of miles flown per fatality. The natural hazards of flying, which as yet have not been entirely eliminated, account for a certain number of deaths both in commercial and military flying. The Army and Navy flyers incur an additional risk in their training which includes stunting, formation flying, aerial combats, tactical maneuvers, catapulting and deck landings on airplane carriers. This kind of flying carried on in rather small areas over the flying fields is what accounts for the extra large number of fatalities in the Army and Navy.

My idea in writing is not with the idea of starting any controversy as to the relative abilities of air mail and military aviators, but just to give you a viewpoint on military flying which you have evidently forgotten.

"Communist Freedom"

LOS ANGELES, June 15.—[To the Editor of The Times:] Reacting to what appear to be their normal instincts the Communist leaders in Moscow have condemned to death and executed in bloody fashion twenty unfortunates who were under suspicion of having "conspired" against the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics. One of the charges against these victims of "Socialist liberty" was that they had conspired with the British government to blow up the Kremlin.

According to the announcement issued by the Bolshevists themselves the victims were reactionaries not in accord with Communist principles, consequently they were executed. It seems to be an established principle of Bolshevism that a Communist has a right to kill anyone who is not a Communist with impunity, but that no one has a right to punish a Communist, even for murder.

The latest reports from proletariat Russia is that a group of men and women in Odessa have been condemned to death for espionage, whatever that may mean. They are probably dead by this time. No seven years' delay for the Communist executioners.

Apparently these latest executions in Russia are in conformity with the Bolshevik scheme of terrorism; also to give notice, following the assassination of the soviet Minister to Poland by a Russian youth, that one Communist life is worth at least twenty lives of Christians.

Moscow seeks to further a world revolution. If by some strange miracle the Socialists secured control in this country and followed the Russian Socialist principle of "repressing" all reactionaries they would probably proceed to "eliminate" all the Republican and Democratic committeemen, or leaders, and prohibit anyone from voting the Republican or Democratic ticket, under penalty of imprisonment or death.

As for a newspaper being allowed to print the truth! The editor would have to function by long-distance telephone to save his life.

But, then, that is the Soviet Socialist Republic's idea of freedom for the "sacred proletariat."

Bull Snakes Only

WHIPPLE (Ariz.) June 13.—[To the Editor of The Times:] In the Sunday Times of June 12 was a story about the Smoki dance at Prescott.

The paragraph referring to the use of rattlesnakes in this dance is very inaccurate and the Associated Press should be held to account for it. The dancers have never used any rattlesnakes in these dances and never will—they use the harmless bull snake, which can neither bite, poison nor sting.

VICTOR'S REACTIONS

How does a general feel when his armies have just won a great victory? The Duke of Wellington answered the question shortly after the battle of Waterloo with poignancy.

"I hope to God that I have fought my last battle," he cried. "It is a bad thing to be always fighting. While in the thick of it I am too much occupied to feel anything; but it is wretched just after. It is quite impossible to think of glory. Both mind and feeling are exhausted. I am wretched even at the moment of victory. I always say that next to a battle lost the greatest misery is a battle gained. Not only do you lose those dear friends with whom you have been living, but you are forced to leave the wounded behind you. To be sure, one tries to do the best for them, but how little that is! At such moments every feeling in your breast is deadened. I am just beginning to regain my natural spirits and I never wish for any more fighting."—[Kansas City Star.

VON STERNBERG TO DIRECT

Will Put Esther Ralston Through Paces in Next Film; New Warner Beauty to Be George Jessel's Lead; Universal Team to Repeat

BY GRACE KINGSLEY

Josef von Sternberg, and not Dorothy Arzner, will be the director behind the megaphone when Esther Ralston starts work on her new Paramount production. This assignment was made yesterday by B. P. Fineman, Paramount studio executive, in the absence of B. P. Schulberg, now vacationing in the Orient.

Miss Ralston's next starring vehicle will be from a story by Owen Davis, in which the star plays the hostess in a fashionable roadhouse, after which she becomes an evangelist. Von Sternberg has been very keen about the story for some time, and it is for this reason, along with the fact that it is not the Paramount policy to permit a star to be directed by the same director for more than two pictures in succession, that Miss Arzner gave place to Von Sternberg as director.

Miss Arzner's latest picture, with Miss Ralston in the meantime is being previewed, and is pronounced very excellent. It is "Ten Modern Commandments."

Von Sternberg first sprang into fame through his production of "The Salvation Hunters," which proved an overnight sensation. Georgia Hale and George K. Arthur were the stars. His first prominent work for Paramount was "Underworld," the crook story by Ben Hecht, soon to be released. "Underworld" has been heralded as one of the important pictures of the season and resulted in a starring contract for one of the players, George Bancroft.

Universal's New Team

Teams of film players seem to be becoming more and more popular. The newest team is that of Patsy Ruth Miller and Glenn Tryon, who did so well for Universal in William Craft's picture, "Painting the Town,"—so renamed from "Hot Heels"—the story of which was written by Harry Hoyt, that they are signed to co-star in another story by the same writer.

PATSY RUTH MILLER

The story concerns the subject of aviation, and once again William Craft will direct.

Rumor has it that Miss Miller may later sign a long-term contract with Universal, but so far the agreement has not been arrived at.

Georgie Jessel's Leading Lady

They have decided, out at Warner Brothers, what to do with Audrey Ferris, the new discovery, just signed on a long-term contract.

AUDREY FERRIS

This is very quick advancement for an unknown player, but we are assured that once the Warners were induced to make a screen test of the young woman, her startling beauty and charm registered so well on film that they were immediately impressed.

As though the above assignment were not luck enough, Miss Ferris has also been assigned to the ingenue lead in "Slightly Used," which will have May McAvoy and Conrad Nagel in the leading roles, with Robert Agnew playing the juvenile.

Al Martin With F. B. O.

Al Martin, former newspaper man, but who lately has been lending the light of his talents to the movies, has been signed by F.B.O. on a contract to write titles, his first job being to title "Helen of Troy, New York."

Tony's Castle in Spain

After all, in spite of all their enviable possessions, few stars really own any castles in Spain. But that is just what Antonio Moreno is likely to do.

While on his recent trip to his native land, after finishing work in Dorothy Gish's latest production for British National Pictures, Moreno sighted a castle near Barcelona which caught his fancy. Or maybe it was just a villa. Anyhow, it suited Tony. It is not the star's purpose to take up his permanent abode in the land of his birth. He merely wishes to use the place for a few months every year or so. In the meantime he plans to lease the residence for a considerable profit.

If his picture work permits, Tony plans to make a short visit to Spain every year to visit his mother, who resides in the little town of Algeciras.

Evelyn Brent's Nice Role

Beautiful Evelyn Brent, who has been in so many crook plays that one imagines she cannot possibly feel at home in a picture unless there is a string of pearls in the plot, has been cast for a different part.

Evelyn Brent.

The Paramount star has drawn the leading woman role in the desert melodrama, "Beau Sabreur," the "Beau Geste" companion story to be produced by the above organization.

B. P. Fineman, studio executive in the absence of B. P. Schulberg, is making the announcement.

Gary Cooper will be the French legionnaire, while others selected for important roles are Noah Beery, Rose Karns, William Powell, Beery and Karns will play Hank and Buddy, the characters introduced by "Beau Geste," and who proved so popular in that picture.

Miss Brent's beauty and intelligence, as well as her success in past roles, have placed her high in the popular affections.

Claire De Lorez Returns

That fascinating young screen actress, Claire De Lorez, who had to go to Europe to win real recognition on the screen, and who has been working of late in French pictures, is to return to Hollywood.

CLAIRE DE LOREZ

Miss De Lorez will leave Paris the middle of July, arriving here early in August.

The new European star went to the French capital two and a half years ago after a three-years' attempt to break down the barriers at the studio gates in her home town. After playing a number of second leads, heavy roles and a few less important parts, Miss De Lorez migrated to the foreign country.

The actress appeared on the stage in Paris, and later attracted the attention of Leonce Perret, Europe's most important director, to whom goes the credit of directing Gloria Swanson in "Madame Sans Gene."

The director gave Miss De Lorez a part in one of his productions, after which she was signed for a series directed by Perret.

Following the making of these pictures, Maurice Tourneur, who is at present in Paris, engaged the star for his first screen drama since leaving the United States.

F.B.O.'s New Directors

William Le Baron, vice-president of F.B.O., announces that he has just signed three new directors for that organization.

They are Phil Carle, Louis King and Wally Fox. Carle has been acting as Robert Vignola's assistant during the past eight years; Louis King has acted as assistant in Goldwyn's "The Winning of Barbara Worth" and "The Magic Flame," and Fox has been assistant to Edwin Carewe and Ralph Ince during the past several years.

Wally and Ray Go Fishing

If ever, as report had it, these two comics, Raymond Hatton and Wallace Beery, had any trouble, it must have entirely blown over, for they are on the best of terms now.

RAYMOND HATTON

At least you have to like a fellow pretty well to go on a fishing trip with him, and that is what these two have done. The day following the completion of Paramount's "Firemen Save My Child," Hatton and Beery, accompanied by their wives, packed up their fishing paraphernalia and started for Silver Lake, near Bishop, Cal.

The party will return to Hollywood within a month, when Wally and Ray are scheduled to begin their next Paramount picture, "We're In the Air Now."

Gregory LaCava Signs

One director lately come from New York who should be a California booster is Gregory LaCava. With his first Paramount picture under way less than a week, LaCava has been signed on a long-term contract by the above organization.

B. P. Schulberg arranged for the contract before he left. Although LaCava has been directing in New York for more than two years and made his greatest success there, he is not new to Hollywood. His first megaphone work was here, when he directed Lloyd Hamilton, Jack White and Johnny Hines in short comedies and made features for Warner Brothers.

"Wings" New York Opening

"Wings," Paramount's epic of the air, is to be given its New York premiere at the Criterion Theater on August 1, according to word received at the Hollywood studio yesterday by B. P. Fineman. The London premiere will follow shortly after.

Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, hero of the Paris flight, to whom the production has been dedicated, will be extended an invitation to be the guest of honor, and high-ranking officials of the United States army and navy air service and military attaches of other nations, also will be present.

"Callahans and Murphys" Laugh Riot at Loew's State; Marie Dressler Hit

BY EDWIN SCHALLERT

We have had Jewish-Irish and Scotch-Irish and Italian-Irish and German-Irish pictures on the screen, until almost nothing remains except possibly Pekingese-Irish. But at any rate there seems always room for one more good old Irish-something-or-other comedy on the screen.

This time it's "The Callahans and the Murphys." And it's all Irish.

You can see "The Callahans and the Murphys" at Loew's State Theater, and even if you have laughed before you will laugh again. A Donnybrook Fair, which is supposed to be something akin to a riot, isn't in it with this one, although "The Callahans and the Murphys" is really a riot of laughter.

Personally I don't rate this picture as all high and free from hokum. There is enough of it, however, that is so good, sound and amusing, that its virtues outweight its foults. And even though some of it is pretty cheap fun, and some of it pretty rough slapstick, with a very trite plot in the bargain, there is everything in this production to make it a ten-strike at the box office.

I wonder why Marie Dressler has been away from the screen for so long. She plays Mrs. Callahan, and she is really the star. She is an immensely capable and very human actress in this part. It is her first appearance in more than a decade, I believe, the last time having been in "Tillie's Punctured Romance." She is a great type, and can convey more meanings to the audience with the expression around her mouth than almost any character actress who might be named. She is really 50 per cent of the show.

It is good to see Polly Moran once again—Sheriff Nell of the old days. Polly keeps pace very nicely as the foil in the comedy with Miss Dressler. She made a great hit upon her personal appearance, for Polly always has a clever line of talk. She achieves a very restful characterization on the screen, and is responsible for many laughs.

The things that many people will laugh at in "The Callahans and the Murphys" are the boisterous things, like the beer-drinking contest of the two principals during the Irish picnic. Some of this is crudely vulgar, but it is unroarious.

The fights between Mrs. Murphy and Mrs. Callahan are as recurrent as the hives in summer time. They call each other names from the windows of their homes across the tenement court, until the Murphys grown rich on their son's profitings in bootlegging move uptown. Then Mrs. Murphy acquires manners, along with massages, facials and other things, and Ritzes Mrs. Callahan to the extent where that worthy feels much like clouting her with the potato masher. The war is over when later the Murphys lose their fortune and Mrs. Callahan brings Mrs. Murphy to live with her. There are romantic complications involving the daughter of the Callahans and the son of the Murphys.

In large part the cast of the picture seems like the map of Dublin—what with Miss Moran and Miss Dressler and Sally O'Neil and Eddie Gribbon doing heavy duty in behalf of Erin Go Bragh.

Miss O'Neil is exceptionally sympathetic in this picture. Possibly it's the shamrock atmosphere that brought this about. Eddie Gribbon is also genuinely funny, and good in the serious moments where he brings his sister's baby home, because "he believed all the Callahans should be together." Owing to circumstances of the youngster's birth, there appeared some doubt.

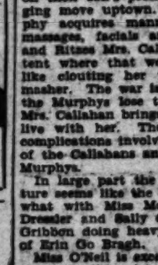
Lawrence Gray and Gertrude Olmstead may or may not be Irish, but they are good. Gray evidences considerable increase of screen personality since I saw him the last time, which was quite a while ago. That veteran, Frank Currier, is in the picture as the deaf grandfather.

"The Callahans and the Murphys" is largely made up of amusing incidental comedy—gags chiefly, although they are tied up with the story better than most gags are. Frances Marion adapted the picture from a Kathleen Norris story, and George Hill directed. They have met the popular, if not the discriminating demand, and that's perhaps as it should be.

Jane Green and Lynn Cowan principally provide entertainment in the stage show, although there are some very pleasing tableau effects at the finish, showing the evolution of romance from the cave man days on. Miss Green starts a little slowly with numbers that don't register very big, but the act picks up briskly toward the close. Cowan and she match their style acceptably, and the act achieves humor that is not altogether as sad as such humor is in stage acts in picture theaters.

Revival to be Sung for Last Time Tonight

Tonight's performance of "Robin Hood" in Hollywood Bowl will bring to a close the successful revival of the Reginald De Koven light opera sponsored by the Art Theater of Hollywood and proceeds from the three performances are expected to go far toward making possible beginning of construction of the little theater in the film capital, a project that has been the prime purpose of this organization, and which gained a nucleus for this project last year when the Art Theater of Hollywood sponsored the successful season of "Julius Caesar" in the Bowl.



LESLIE BRIGHAM

Warm days and evenings have contributed largely to the attendance of "Robin Hood." Notwithstanding the prolonged cool nights, the two previous evenings on which the opera has been sung have been such that patrons have felt no discomfort. All the varied forms of art expressed in this production of "Robin Hood" have come in for their meed of praise.

TO SETTLE DOWN

"Actors and actresses like to get into the movies because picture people can live in one place long enough to have a real home," according to Esther Ralston, Paramount star. She comes from a family of show people and traveled all over the country as a girl.

RAILROAD DRAMA OPENS

In the old days it used to be the dastardly villain who hissed the fair heroine's name in the handsome hero's ear; but no longer. Now it is the driving pistons of a locomotive which perform that little function. It is, at any rate, in at least two pictures now being flashed on local screens. One of them is "The Black Diamond Express," a Warner Brothers production with Monte Blue, which went into the Uptown yesterday.

This railroad melodrama is really better than it sounds—up to the climax, anyway, at which point it rather runs wild. It might be mentioned that, just as the title was projected on the parting curtains yesterday afternoon, a bunch of young fellows clattered into their seats in gleeful anticipation of what may best be described as the rassling they were going to give the picture.

In less than five minutes they subsided quite completely.

Monte Blue is probably the only leading man in movies who can play the part of a ninety-nine-and-forty four-hundredths-per-cent-pure young hero without being razzed. He is always sincere and, by the same token, likable. In the current photoplay he is helped by able and understanding direction, a factor that was sorely lacking in his last vehicle. Howard Bretherton has handled his scenes in direct fashion throughout, wisely refraining from indulgence in newfangled camera tricks which would do more harm than good to a story of this kind. Except, of course, for the talkative pistons.

In the story there is nothing particularly new, and the long arm of coincidence reaches in rather clumsily to set the stage for the last act, as it were. A situation is brought about whereby Blue is made the engineer of the Black Diamond Express on the very day that the girl he loves boards it for her honeymoon trip with her newly acquired husband. Sitting up in the cab as the locomotive hurtles on, he imagines all sorts of perfectly terrible things, including a head-on collision which is dragged in for no other reason, apparently, than that there must be a railroad wreck somewhere in a railroad picture.

Edna Murphy makes an appealing heroine. She is a bit too heavily made up in some shots. Carroll Nye, as the engineer's brother, drops out of the story suddenly and leaves the spectator uncertain as to his fate. J. W. Johnston is the other man whom the girl marries. Also in the cast are Claire McDowell and Myrtle Stedman, and a little boy, Austin Jewell, in a convincing bit. All of these players, as may be expected, do good work.

There is an amusing comedy on the Uptown bill, "Wild Wallops," with Billy Dooley. Col. Lindbergh's reception in New York occupies most of the newsreel.

Dave Good's Revelers offer "Magnolia," "Red Lips," and the classical "Caprice Viennois" in an arrangement borrowed from Grofe-Whiteman. Oscar Taylor, baritone, in his last week at the theater, sings "If You See Sally." There are also several specialty acts.

NAVAL HERO GUEST AT ORANGE GROVE

Capt. Karl Kircheiss, naval hero of the World War, who has created international interest in his semicompleted circumnavigation of the globe in the tiny sixty-five-foot lugger Hamburg, will be the guest of honor at the 8 o'clock performance tonight at the Orange Grove Theater, where "Slums of Berlin" is now playing. Kircheiss, who anchored at San Pedro earlier in the week, was to leave port this morning, but has postponed his departure to attend the showing of the imported German production. The German Consul will be a member of the captain's party.

"MISSING LINK" OPENS AT FORUM

Syd Chaplin

Described as hilarious from the first scene, Syd Chaplin's newest Warner Brothers feature comedy, which opens at the Forum Theater this afternoon, marks the peak of his rib-tickling career.

As a London derelict forced to become an African lion hunter, Syd displays mimic ability beyond the bounds of description in "The Missing Link." His sudden acceptance of conditions when he is taken for a nobleman is one of the few comedy scenes which film fans will refer to as a criterion for comic perfection, it is said.

Directed by Charles (Chuck) Reisner, who also directed "The Man on the Box," "Oh, What a Nurse" and "The Better 'Ole," "The Missing Link" takes its characters from the docks of London to the interior of darkest Africa, with its jungles, lions, savages and its "missing link."

Hardeen Tops Bill Tomorrow at Hillstreet

Hardeen, brother of the famous Houdini, will head the Hillstreet bill next week with his amazing array of illusion and magical feats. Hardeen will not only offer his own feats of magic, but has combined those of his brother with his own. Hardeen is said to present his act with the same rapidity and dexterity that characterised Houdini's performances.

Others featured on this bill include Tom Smith, fresh from Broadway with a new act. The Four Clovelly Girls offer an athletic novelty in which they perform many feats with Indian clubs. Charles Althoff, known as the "Yankee Fiddler," will be seen in his his "rube" musical novelty. The LeGrohs will have an acrobatic act. Marie Cavanaugh and Bud Cooper present their musical tidbit that is filled with melodies and smart steps.

Warner Brothers will offer for the screen feature "Irish Hearts," starring May McAvoy, who is supported by Jason Robards and Kathleen Key. "Irish Hearts" is a comedy of an Irish colleen who comes to America to become a "grand lady."

COMES WEST FOR ROLE

Ian Maclaren Will Enact Christus in Pilgrimage Play

Ian Maclaren has arrived in Hollywood to assume the role of the Christus in the 1927 production of the Pilgrimage Play, coming direct from a long association with the Neighborhood Playhouse in New York. This playhouse has added much to the history of the stage with its quixotic and unique policy of giving only certain artistic dramas.

July 11 has been set to usher in the eighth annual season of this drama of the Life of Christ and preparations are well under way to make this the finest presentation ever given. Many improvements are being made in the beautiful Pilgrimage Theater, among the flower-decked hills of Hollywood, one block north of the junction of Highland and Cahuenga avenues.

"BETTER 'OLE" SHOWS CHAPLIN AS SOLDIER

After having established himself as filmland's greatest female impersonator, Syd Chaplin has forsaken that role and swung to the opposite kind of characterization in "The Better 'Ole," which opens a three-day run at the West Coast Boulevard Theater, tomorrow.

In several of his other pictures he impersonated successively a prim old aunt, a kittenish lady's maid, a newspaper woman and a more or less irresistible nurse.

As Old Bill in "The Better 'Ole," Syd Chaplin portrays the gruff old soldier, set in habits and endearing eccentricities, with walrus mustache, stubby pipe, fingerless mittens.

On the stage in conjunction with the presentation of this picture will be a novel offering featuring Frank Jenks and the Boulevard Band.

"CAKE" DIGESTED

Pasadena Players Offer Choice Morsel for Consumption

The Pasadena Players must have indulged in a lot of sly chuckles as they rehearsed and prepared for the presentation of "Cake" from the pen of Witter Bynner, well-known modern poet, which they gave this week before an audience composed chiefly of the Players' Association members gathered in annual meeting.

For "Cake," which exemplifies modernism of the moderns and is positively and unadulteratedly "highbrow," is brimful of whimsical nonsense. Officially described as "a morality play which hides its seriousness under ribald laughter and cloaks its symbolism in satiric jazz," it pokes sharp-edged fun at anything and everything.

Its moral, for all the futurism, if there really is a moral, is an old-fashioned one, "You cannot have your cake and eat it, too!"

The lines of the play are in rhymed couplets of conversational verse, and veil in absurd nonsense what serious thought is intended. The players, a greater part of the time, jazz on and off the stage in rhythmic dance steps to orchestral music from the pit.

A constructivist setting, first time used by the Pasadena Players and probably first time in the West, is seen. It is a so-called "space" stage composed of many platforms and levels to provide as varied action as possible for the players. It is explained that "instead of representing a definite place in a conventional way, it serves by a grouping of abstract forms on the bare stage to create a structure which will express the psychological content of the play."

Most of the action in "Cake" takes place on "the Height," the topmost platform, and on the lowest level, or stage floor, and the lighting is so focused that only the platform or level in use is visible to the audience.

There is this one constructivist set for the entire action of the play. Passage of time is indicated by flashing on and off of the lights.

Clare Grant Bay as the Lady, has the bulk of the work of the play upon her shoulders, and she has risen to the occasion beautifully. Ralph Freud as the Unicorn endows his role with considerable poise and restraint. Gilmor Brown directed.

Among the other members of the cast are Earl Eby, Dwight Newton, Nell Wilson, Charles Bruins, Byron Harvey, Paul Fort, Mayfair Freud, Finlay McDermid, Maurice Wells, Herbert X. Sollars, Charles Bruins, Robert Griffin, James Bexley and Jerome Coray.

Dramatic Act Vies With Film for Amusement

"The Tender Hour," featuring Billie Dove and Ben Lyon, and a dramatic vaudeville act, "The Devil, Servant and Man," were the highlights of the new show that opened at the Figueroa Theater yesterday.

This is the first time since the theater has made vaudeville an important part of the program that such an act has been presented and, judging from the reception, it is a most welcome deviation. Charles Gill, well-known actor and for so long a headliner on the Orpheum, has the role of the husband who neglects his wife and knows no law for himself. Claude Peytore is the servant representing good, and Theodore Adams typifies the devil. There are no women in the cast.

The other acts offer much contrast and variety, including Ines and De Wyn in "An Art Classic," Tommy Wonder and Sister, "Bluebirds of California," Edward Moore and Emil Shy, J. Wesley Lord's original organlogue, a cartoon comedy and a Fox newsreel are the short subjects.

Philosophy Has "Look Up" as Its Foundation

"Always look up; never down; and you will never be afraid."

That is the simple philosophy of Chico, the courageous hero of the modern romance, "Seventh Heaven," now in its seventh week at the Carthay Circle Theater.

His outlook on life; his belief in his own importance and his unbounded faith, uplifts and encourages all who come in contact with him. He admits that he is "a most remarkable fellow" and this creed even drags from the depths little Diane, a waif of the streets, and makes her also into a "most remarkable fellow."

"Seventh Heaven," which is only to be shown here in Los Angeles and in New York City until late in the fall, has been acclaimed by press and public alike one of the most entertaining pictures of the year and it has made Charles Farrell, who plays Chico, and Janet Gaynor, who enacts the role of Diane, stars "overnight."

PLAY'S PROBLEM IS TO FIND MURDERER

The periodical public guessing game is on. In fact, it started nearly three weeks ago. The question this time is: "Who killed Mrs. Carruthers?" The intriguing question for discussion emanates from "The Creaking Chair," the Allene Tupper Wilkes mystery play, now in its third week at the Morosco Theater.

The plot of "The Creaking Chair" is said to be unusually intricate, with the elements of mystery cleverly worked out.

In addition to holding the ever-popular mystery interest, "The Creaking Chair" touches upon another subject, the opening of the tombs of Egyptian kings.

SCREEN PLAYERS TO VISIT "PEGGY ANN"

Preparations have been completed for the celebration at the second midnight matinee performance tonight of "Peggy Ann," musical-comedy success at the Hollywood Music Box. William Fairbanks will be master of ceremonies. Among the host of screen celebrities who will be present are Sally O'Neil, Louise Fazenda, Hoot Gibson, Bobby Vernon, Billy Dooley, Jack Duffy, Jimmy Adams and Douglas MacLean.

GEN. CHEATHAM HONORED HERE

Quartermaster Department Chief Luncheon Guest

Plans for Outfitting Soldiers Described in Talk

March Field Improvement Program Cited

Ranking members of the local Quartermaster Reserve Corps yesterday entertained at luncheon at the Athletic Club Maj.-Gen. B. F. Cheatham, quartermaster-general of the United States Army. The occasion was to give the general an opportunity to meet prominent business leaders of the community.

In a short address Gen. Cheatham described the plans whereby his department, in the event of war, will bring into action the business interests of the nation in outfitting and providing for the Army. He said that Congress, recognizing the need of repairing the cantonments, has appropriated $10,000,000 for their rehabilitation, with an additional $30,000,000 forthcoming soon. Secretary of War Davis, he said, favors the policy of permanent construction for the garrison posts and cantonments. March Field, near Riverside, he said, will be developed as a permanent air field on a large scale.

NOTABLES PRESENT

Those present included Lieut.-Gov. Fitts, Charles F. Stern, Col. D. H. Turner, Col. Perry Weidner, Lieut.-Col. Washburn, Brig.-Gen. Walter P. Story, Lieut.-Col. O. C. Wyman, Lieut.-Col. Howard, Col. George F. Hamilton, Louis B. Mayer, Lieut.-Col. Irving Hellman, Lieut.-Col. Albert E. Barnes, Maj. Walter K. Tuller, Lieut.-Col. J. B. Chaffee and Col. A. M. Graham.

Riverside will have one of the most attractive army posts in the West, equal in beauty to any in the country, Maj.-Gen. Cheatham said.

"Plans are being completed for March Field, Riverside, that will make it a real gem architecturally," he added. The general completed inspection of March Field Thursday and consulted with a civilian architect who has offered his services in designing the field buildings as a patriotic contribution to the government.

NEW POLICY LAID DOWN

"Under the new policy laid down by the Secretary of War, we are for the first time permitted a little leeway for architecture and beautification," the general said. "Heretofore it had been a case of the cheapest possible construction consistent with service. But now we are permitted to provide that army posts will fit in with the community and be attractive.

"Plans for development of March Field are for a group of buildings, one-story, thick-walled, tile-roofed structures of the character particularly suitable to the community. This is the modified Mediterranean type of architecture, more commonly known as mission."

Gen. Cheatham made his first inspection in three years of the coast defenses of Los Angeles at Fort MacArthur yesterday morning. As the army's commissary chief arrived on the lower reservation a thirteen-gun salute was fired in his honor.

He was taken on a tour of inspection by Lieut.-Col. Willis G. Peace, commandant at Fort MacArthur, and declared himself highly pleased with the excellent material condition of the post. He left at 6 o'clock last night for San Francisco.

Hindu Arraigned on New Charge of Dual Murder

With the filing of a new complaint by Dep. Dist.-Atty. Fisher yesterday and the arraignment of Mohammed Jakh, a Hindu, on a charge of murder, the defendant entered the second battle for his life. The complaint charges the murder on March 18, last, of Mohammed Baksh and Mohammed Salaam, also known as Gulen, while they slept in a ranch house near Azusa.

Jakh was arraigned before Municipal Judge Westover and the hearing was set for July 26. He had previously been discharged on a similar charge because of lack of evidence.

According to statements said to have been made to four other Hindus and told to deputy sheriffs, Jakh said that he went to the ranch house, waited until all were asleep and then entered the house and shot the two. He is also credited with the statement that he later returned to see if they were dead. He told his countryman, according to the deputies, that he had shot the two because of a dispute over a fertilizer contract.

Mexican Held Here Believed Chinese Slayer

Efforts were being made yesterday by the offices of the sheriffs of Los Angeles and Imperial counties to establish whether Juan Vasquez, arrested here by deputy sheriffs, is the man wanted at El Centro for the murder on January 3 of Quon Jack Gee, a Chinese of that city.

Vasquez was arrested by Deputies Pruitt and Moffat on a charge of driving an automobile without the owner's consent. He was turned over to the police department at Newton street station. Later it was learned that a man answering the same description as that of Vasquez was wanted in El Centro for murder. Two other Mexicans are wanted for the same offense. Vasquez was placed in the County Jail.

The identity of Vasquez in connection with the Imperial county charge had not been established yesterday.

Officers Find Her Hidden at Last in Folding Bed

Husband Taken Into Custody for Bay City Police

Displaying nothing more serious than a bruised left knee, though she leaped from a third-floor window in a hotel at 231 West Twenty-seventh street, according to the police, to escape arrest, Mrs. Beatrice McCarthy, 22 years of age, was taken to the County Jail late yesterday to await transportation to San Francisco, where she and her husband George, 27, are said to be wanted on charges of burglary.

The husband, police stated, is an ex-convict and a parole violator from San Quentin. He is said to have escaped twice from San Francisco police.

FAIR LOCATED

Although Mrs. McCarthy leaped from a third-floor window straight down to the sidewalk below, she acquired but a small amount of salve for the bruised knee when taken to Receiving Hospital. She was without shoes and stockings at the time, police stated, and before being taken into custody led two detectives an exciting chase for more than thirty blocks.

Armed with warrants from San Francisco, Detective Lieutenants Malina, O'Connor and Powell visited the hotel on West Twenty-seventh street where they had learned that McCarthy and his wife were staying. The detectives stated they found the pair still in bed. Mrs. McCarthy was allowed to go into the bathroom to dress. A few moments later they heard her open the window. As Detective O'Connor stepped into the room the woman leaped from the window sill.

HIDES IN BED

Having suffered no serious injury Mrs. McCarthy scrambled to her feet after her leap, ran for a block and succeeded in getting a motorist to drive her to 243 East Thirtieth street. Having left Detective Powell to guard the husband, O'Connor and Malina were but a short distance behind in a police car when the woman reached the address.

On entering the house the detectives stated they were told by a man, who later gave his name as Terrence Cronin, that the woman was not there. A search was conducted and Mrs. McCarthy, the detectives said, was found folded up in a folding bed.

McCarthy was booked at the City Jail as a fugitive. Cronin also was taken into custody and booked on suspicion of burglary. The McCarthys will be held here, the detectives said, pending further advices from San Francisco police. McCarthy is suspected of having broken into a number of homes here, the detectives stated.

Sinai Temple Rabbi Takes Citizen Oath

Dr. Mayer Winkler, director of the southwest branch of the United Synagogues of America and rabbi of Sinai Temple, yesterday took the oath which makes him a citizen of the United States.

A native of Hungary, Dr. Winkler came to America five and a half years ago and for the last five years has been head of Sinai Temple, the congregation of which synagogue he has directed in the building of a beautiful new temple costing $350,000.

Dr. Winkler, who is recognized as one of the eloquent and scholarly rabbis of America, is one of the popular KHJ lecturers. He will speak at Temple Sinai tomorrow morning on "American Ideals."

Carelessness Jails Suspect in Bank Theft

Two successful bank robberies caused Gustaf J. Palavac to become so careless that he attempted to escape after the third one on a street car instead of the speedy automobile he formerly had used, and that carelessness was his downfall, according to testimony before Municipal Judge Baird yesterday, when Palavac was bound over to the Superior Court for trial on the three counts.

Palavac is accused of robbing the Commercial National Bank at 1572 Sunset Boulevard, and to have tried to hold up the California Branch Bank at 3900 Sunset Boulevard. He ran out of the bank and started to board a street car, it was testified. Three shots from the gun of Deputy Marshal Duarte whizzed past his head and he stopped.

TONY FUENTE SCORES LEGAL BOUT DECISION

Tony Fuente, heavyweight boxer, yesterday won the decision in a legal bout promoted by Russell Cater, 7 years of age, who, through his guardian, sued the fighter for $10,175 for injuries declared to have been received when Fuente's car hit the boy in an accident at Temple and Olive streets. The decision was in the form of a motion for nonsuit granted by Superior Judge Bowron in favor of the defendant.

TEMPLE STREET ACTION DELAYED

The City Council yesterday continued until the 29th inst consideration of the $49,415 assessments for the proposed lowering of grade and paving of Temple street from Robinson street to Hoover street. In cases of lowering of grade, the assessments are collected in advance to pay the damages to property awarded by the Board of Public Works for the cutting down of the street grade.

Husband States Wife Finds Him Old-Fashioned

Earl Lincoln is too old-fashioned for his wife, who craves the social whirl, dancing and gin parties more than his company, according to a complaint which the husband filed yesterday asking for a divorce.

Mrs. Sivilla Wall Lincoln, the wife, although provided with $60 a week for household and personal expenses, was unable to keep out of debt, the complaint asserts, because she spent most of the money for liquor and went in debt for necessities.

Lincoln also charges that his wife once called him too old-fashioned when he wished to dance with her at a party and she continued to dance with another and younger man. On another occasion, according to the husband, his wife ran away and remained for more than three weeks. On February 17, last, she ran away again and her whereabouts still is unknown, he declared.

EDUCATION BOARD WINS CLUB PRAISE

Breakfast Group Told of Teaching Program Here; Noted Guests Introduced

Dr. Rufus B. Von Kleinsmid, president of University of Southern California, yesterday morning voiced the approval of the Breakfast Club in commending the work done by the Board of Education for the last two years in "handling the greatest program of any educational center in Western America." It was "Board of Education Morning," and the board was present in full force. Royal A. Dixon, naturalist and author, was speaker of the morning, his subject being "The Breakfast Table of Mr. and Mrs. Insect." G. Allison Phelps, "radio philosopher," delivered an address on "Detractors."

FORMER GOVERNOR BRANDON.

Frank Hagney, winner of the Long Beach-Catalina rowboat marathon, was presented with a gold medal by President Maurice DeMond. Maj. Warren Bovard, chairman of the meeting, introduced a brilliant array of guests, starting with twenty-seven members of the Masquers Club of motion-picture directors, actors and producers including United States Senator Morris Sheppard of Texas; former Governor W. W. Brandon of Alabama; Tom West of Oakland, Tallant Tubbs of San Francisco and Charles W. Lyons of Los Angeles; Keith Carlin, secretary to Gov. Young, and Howard Davis, newly elected City Councilman.

SENATOR SHEPPARD.

Hosts for the party were Joseph Goldsmith, Jr., and J. J. (Jack) Doyle. Comedy monologues by Tom Lewis and Richard Carle; tenor solos by Vernon Rickard, and a finale by Harry Carroll and his array of vaudeville girl singers and dancers comprised the entertainment program.

MARY ISN'T AFRAID OF KIDNAPERS

Serenity of Pickfair Life Undisturbed by Threats, But Police Send Guards

Both Mary Pickford and Douglas Fairbanks yesterday scoffed at the latest "kidnaping" plot threatening the serenity of "Pickfair," the Beverly Hills home of the two motion-picture actors, but said they would abide by the demands made to give them added protection.

For the first time since Miss Pickford was the central figure in a kidnaping plot a year ago, for which two men were sent to the penitentiary, the actress yesterday was protected by a personal bodyguard.

"Chief of Police Blair of Beverly Hills has detailed two extra guards to my house, and orders precaution, so I am abiding by his advice." Doug declared yesterday, "but I am not worried. I don't think there is anything to it."

Miss Pickford's brief statement was to the same effect.

However, as an added precaution, when the couple work late at night on their sets at the United Artists' studio, they will remain in the bungalows set aside for their use on the studio grounds, they announced yesterday.

United Artists officials were also inclined to scoff at the asserted plot.

BANDIT PAIR GET $2000 IN HOLD-UP

Office of Cheese Company on Crocker Street Scene of Daylight Raid

Two gunmen invaded the Angelus City Cheese Company plant at 928 Crocker street late yesterday afternoon, drove a half-dozen employees and customers to a rear room at the points of their guns and escaped with some $2000 in cash and checks.

The gunmen forced A. J. Margolin, president of the company, to open the office safe, which they ransacked thoroughly, carrying away bags of silver and small change. They got away in an automobile.

UNIVERSITY WOMEN MEET

American Association Convention in Session at Occidental College Campus

The American Association of University Women opened its California convention at Occidental College yesterday afternoon with an informal tea in the Orr Hall gardens on the campus. There were approximately 300 members present. Miss Ethel Richardson, with the Department of Education in Sacramento, gave a brief talk. Otherwise the gathering was purely social in character.

Assisting the Occidental College members of the association with the tea were representatives from the Los Angeles branch of the Association of University Women who have taken up their headquarters in a sorority house on the campus.

Among those who attended the gathering were Dr. Aurelia Henry Reinhardt, national president; Mrs. Robert A. Millikan, Mrs. James Bancroft Robinson, one of the founders of the association; Mrs. C. M. Vanderburg, State president; Miss Belle Coolidge, dean of women of the State Teachers' College at Fresno, and Mrs. Michael Creamer, president of the Women's University Club of Los Angeles.

Last evening the visiting delegates were guests of the Santa Monica branch of the association at dinner in Santa Monica.

This morning there will be a business session at which Dr. Reinhardt will address the delegates with an election of officers, reading of reports and consideration of resolutions. The afternoon session will consist of a series of round-table discussions on psychology, education, women's part in the business world, and similar topics.

The convention will close tonight with a banquet at the Men's University Club, at which international relations will be the chief topic under consideration.

Water Walking Shoe Inventor Stopping Here

The time may not be far distant when walking on the water with specially devised water shoes will be as popular as skating and boating, declared Paul Reinwald, San Francisco inventor, who recently arrived here with plans for introducing a pair of water shoes he invented.

Reinwald, who is stopping at the Van Nuys, said he has applied for a patent on his invention, which consists of four types of water shoes, and that the idea is practical. He has been experimenting for the last two years and has demonstrated their usefulness in a specially constructed water tank in San Francisco, he said.

The water shoes are about four feet in length and are of several different shapes and compositions, including wood and aluminum. Each shoe contains an air-inflated bag, capable of sustaining a person on top of the water. Other features of the shoes provide for the safety and comfort of the person using them. Reinwald plans to return to San Francisco within the next two weeks and said that shortly after he will announce his intention to walk across the Golden Gate with his invention.

Honor Degree Conferred on Educator Here

Dr. Karl T. Waugh, dean of the college of liberal arts at University of Southern California, received the degree of LL.D. this week from Ohio Wesleyan University, given "in recognition of his attainments as a psychologist and his service as an educator."

He was chief psychological examiner for the American Army during the World War and devised intelligence tests in use in several colleges. He had a Ph.D. from Harvard and has been a member of the faculty at University of Chicago, Beloit College, Northwestern University and the University of Chicago.

His portrait, by E. Hodgson Smart, was unveiled the 3rd inst. at the Fine Arts Building and will be hung by the Artland Club of which he is president.

Worker Killed While Repairing City Aqueduct

John H. Coon, a carpenter employed by the water department at No Name Canyon in making repairs to the Aqueduct, was killed yesterday in a fall from a scaffolding, according to telephonic reports to the department here. The message gave no particulars, but said the fall was accidental. Coon's address was given as 5059 Linfield avenue.

No Name Canyon was the scene of the first of the three recent Aqueduct dynamitings. A large siphon there was blown in two and the rush of the water wrecked about 350 feet of heavy steel piping. No Name Canyon is a short distance above the Haiwee Reservoir.

Woman and Son Seriously Hurt in Auto Wreck

Mrs. Maude Schallengerber, about 45 years of age, 1215 Tremaine street, and her 19-year-old son, Robert, were injured seriously yesterday in a traffic accident at the intersection of Tenth street and Magnolia avenue. The car in which they were riding was struck by another machine driven by S. Hanby of 857 South Normandie avenue.

Mrs. Schallengerber suffered a broken arm and concussion of the brain. Her son also was stated by police surgeons at Receiving Hospital to be suffering from concussion and other injuries. Both were transferred later to the California Lutheran Hospital.

Gen. Hammond Planning Visit to Los Angeles

Word has just been received here that Gen. Creed C. Hammond, chief of the National Guard Bureau at Washington, D. C., will visit Los Angeles on July 13, next, when he will review the One Hundred and Sixtieth Infantry of the California National Guard, "Los Angeles' Own" regiment, in the State Armory at Exposition Park.

MAJ.-GEN. CREED C. HAMMOND.

Special honors will be accorded the distinguished visitor at a reception in the officers' clubrooms after the review, to be followed by a ball in the armory with the public taking part. Dance music will be supplied by the One Hundred and Sixtieth Infantry Band.

The campaign for recruits inaugurated this week already has brought results in that the May Company has undertaken to sponsor I Company of "Los Angeles's Own" and already twenty-one members of the big department store have enlisted in that unit of the One Hundred and Sixtieth.

Recruiting headquarters have been established in a storeroom of the Terminal Building through the courtesy of the Liggett Drug Company and the W. M. Garland Company.

SALARY ASKED FOR MORE INSPECTORS

In order to maintain speed on the construction of public improvements, City Engineer Shaw and the Board of Public Works have asked the City Council to appropriate $17,308 to pay the salaries of thirty-five public works inspectors during the next three months. Paving, sewers, storm drains and other public improvements are built by contractors under the supervision of public works inspectors, and construction work stops unless there is an inspector on the job.

DR. MILLER CHOSEN AS NEW DEAN

Southern California to See Law School Change Hands on July 1

A new dean of the school of law, University of Southern California, will be installed on July 1, with the beginning of the academic year, according to Dr. R. B. Von KleinSmid, who stated yesterday that Dr. Justin Miller, professor of law at the University of Minnesota, has been selected for the post. Dr. Miller will succeed as active dean Dr. Frank Monroe Porter, who has resigned after twenty-three years in that capacity. Dr. Porter has been made dean emeritus, and the auditorium of the school of law at 3660 University avenue named Porter Hall in his honor.

Although Dr. Miller has served as professor of law both at the University of Oregon and the University of Minnesota, he is a native of California. A graduate of the school of jurisprudence of Stanford University, he has engaged in actual law practice in San Francisco and served as attorney and executive officer of the California State Commission of Immigration and Housing, 1919-1921.

A Phi Beta Kappa, Dr. Miller also is a member of the American Bar Association, of Delta Sigma Rho, national debating fraternity, of Alpha Pi Zeta, professional fraternity, and of Delta Chi, law fraternity. He is a member of the council of the Association of American Law Schools, and a member of the Minnesota State Bar Association.

Jewish Aid Fund Drive Classified by Professions

Grouping scores of campaign workers into classifications as to their professions or vocations, executives of the United Jewish Appeal propose to expedite the work of raising the $225,000 quota by having the classified teams canvass among prospective donors of their own trades or professions. By this means it is proposed to speed up the work of reaching every prospective contributor and to reduce duplication.

The second rally of workers will be conducted Monday at Paulaia's Broadway Cafe, at which time all subscriptions up to date will be consolidated and an announcement made of the total obtained. Owing to the fact that many more canvassers have been in the field the latter part of this week, an amount substantially greater than that reported by the workers last Thursday is expected.

A flying squadron of film people, headed by Jack Warner and Sam Behrendt, began a tour of the studios yesterday for the purpose of thoroughly canvassing the motion-picture industry. Every studio from Burbank to Culver City will be visited and an opportunity for players and executives to subscribe will be extended.

Bonds Reduced for Policemen in Perjury Case

J. S. Brown and Bruford Bewley, negro police officers accused of perjury in connection with the grand jury investigation of the slaying of Sam Faulkner, a negro youth, in his sister's home, gained the first victory in their legal battle yesterday in Superior Judge Craig's office when they were granted a motion for a reduction of bail from $10,000 each to $1500 each.

The two defendants were recalled to testify before the grand jury yesterday by Dep. Dist. Atty. Dennison, who later appeared before Judge Craig and said he had no objection to a reduction in bail. It was understood that important evidence was obtained at the grand jury session.

M. B. Sheffield and Frank Randolph, also negro policemen, are accused of the murder of Faulkner, who was shot and killed during a raid on the home of Faulkner's sister, Mrs. Clara Harris. Brown and Bewley are accused of falsely testifying before the grand jury that they found a revolver under Faulkner.

In addition Glasker Givens is accused of attempting to induce false testimony by planting narcotics in Mrs. Harris's house. Brown and Bewley pleaded not guilty before Judge Craig and their case was set for trial on July 15.

MRS. JENNIE ARNOLD SUCCUMBS TO BURNS

Mrs. Jennie Arnold, 68 years of age, of 2021 Rosebud avenue, died yesterday in the General Hospital from burns received May 27. On that day a curtain caught fire in her home and Mrs. Arnold was fatally burned in attempting to extinguish the flames.

POMONA SLAYER REMANDED

Juvenile Court Orders Young Wittenmeyer Tried for Murder in Mrs. Weigel Death

Durward E. Wittenmeyer, 16-year-old former inmate of Whittier State School, yesterday was remanded by Judge Archbald of Juvenile Court to the criminal division of Superior Court for trial on a charge of murder placed against the boy in connection with the death May 28, last, of Mrs. Fannie L. Weigle of Pomona.

Judge Archbald took this action on the ground that the boy is an unfit subject for Juvenile Court. The order cleared the way for the arraignment of the youth before Judge Burnell in Superior Court on a formal complaint accusing him of murder.

Young Wittenmeyer is asserted to have struck Mrs. Weigle over the head with an automobile spring the night of May 28, last, two days after he had been released from the Whittier State School.

Records in the case disclosed that the boy had no apparent motive for striking Mrs. Weigle. He told investigating officers, according to their report, that he was on his way home from a theater in Pomona when he picked up the automobile spring. "I got a funny notion to hit somebody," the report quoted him as saying, adding that he walked up behind Mrs. Weigle and struck her twice over the head.

The report discloses that the boy had been in trouble at various times for the past nine years, he having been a subject for supervision at the California Junior Republic before he was transferred to Whittier State School.

Psychiatrists who examined the boy declared their findings indicated he was emotionally unstable but not insane. Mentally, he was said to have the aspects of brilliancy. The boy is the son of George H. Wittenmeyer, Pomona decorator and painter.

The report in the case showed that previous to the asserted attack on Mrs. Weigle, yound Wittemeyer had been in trouble resulting from his asserted striking of a woman with a stone.

City Council Refuses Fund for Sewer Aid

The City Council majority yesterday refused to approve an appropriation of $543,600 to construct six main relief sewers in districts where the engineering department said the sewers are overtaxed and in some cases overflowing into the streets.

The Council majority took the position that while the relief sewers should be built they should not be paid for from general funds, but should be financed by a bond issue or by assessment districts.

PAVING ADVANCED

City Engineer Shaw has been instructed by the City Council to present the ordinance of intention for the paving of Sherman Way from Lamke Drive to Van Nuys Boulevard, the pavement to be eight-inch cement concrete.

NEGRO PAIR SPIRITED TO COUNTY JAIL

Asserted Gangster Thugs Brought Back at Night to Face Attack Charges

Slipping quietly into the city under cover of darkness, Detective Lieutenants Green and McDuff, accompanied by Deputy Sheriff Guasti, early yesterday morning brought back to Los Angeles two negroes, asserted members of a gang of colored thugs that preyed on white women. The prisoners were lodged in the County Jail.

The prisoners are Frank Wallace and Robert Collins, arrested in Sacramento after Howard Hart, another negro, was taken into custody here and, according to the police, made a full confession naming Wallace and other negroes as among the men the police sought.

Following Hart's confession, which told the details of various attacks on white women, some fear was expressed the negroes might be endangered if seen before they were lodged in jail here and extra precautions were taken to spirit them into the city. Two other negroes named by Hart as accomplices are being hunted.

Five Detectives to Strengthen Robbery Squad

Transfer of five detective lieutenants and one acting captain of detectives to the robbery squad was made to strengthen that unit, it was announced yesterday by Chief of Police Davis.

Acting Captain of Detectives Evans, in charge of the detective bureau of the Sawtelle division, heads the list of those transferred to the augmented squad. Detective Lieutenants Chitwood, Vannice, Lennen, Bergeron and Driscoll also are transferred to the robbery squad under the new orders.

NO PARKING SIGNS PLANNED

The Board of Police Commissioners yesterday asked authority of the City Council to post no parking signs on streets that are too narrow to permit parking and at the same time be safe for traffic.

DIET and HEALTH by Lulu Hunt Peters, M.D.

ANSWERS TO CORRESPONDENTS

MAYBE!

"Dear Dr. Lulu:
There is a song of recent date
I find of no appeal;
The author surely has it wrong,
My thoughts he does not feel.
All this because I read your book
On calories and diet.
I feel so very glad and gay,
I really can't keep quiet.
For every day I slimmer grow
And soon I shall be able To sit down with the other folk
Around a well-filled table.
And when I plan to celebrate
To show, from fat I'm free,
The 'Don't Bring Lulu' won't be sung—
She's all the world to me!

F."

Thanks, F., for your little poetic burst.

One who has been self-conscious from being conspicuously overweight, does get tremendous psychological relief, as well as physical relief, from a weight reduction. Naturally gladness and happiness, as well as greater efficiency in all lines, result.

It is not alone, however, the relief from the physical burden that causes that happiness. Those who are overweight are always more or less toxic from the unbalanced diet that has brought on the condition, and a scientific reducing diet causes the loss of that toxicity and the regaining of health. A healthy person naturally is joyous.

I see you are still thinking of that well-filled table, F.! By the time you are down to normal weight, there is no doubt that your tastes will be changed considerably and the well-filled table won't mean quite what it did before. You'll have to remember, if it does, that you are very liable to accumulate weight again.

P. S.—By the way, you and the song author are not so much in discord, for if I remember that song correctly, the last words are "Don't bring Lulu, because I want to bring her myself!"

Those who want the instructions that made F. happy, may have our booklet on the subject by sending a fully self-addressed, stamped envelope and 10 cents in stamps.

UNDIAGNOSED COUGH

At the recent convention of the American Medical Association in Washington, D. C., there was read a paper on Undiagnosed Cough by Drs. Voorsanger and Firestone of San Francisco. I will give you some points from this paper. Over a period of two years, an intensive study was made of all patients with a cough persisting for three months or more. These cases were ostensibly nontuberculosis. Routine examinations were made in all instances, including physical examinations, X-Ray studies, sputum examination and culture and guinea-pig inoculation. There were several classifications made, but the two main groups were, first: Infectious asthma and bronchitis, representing 34 per cent of the series; and second: 32 per cent undiagnosed group, most of which were potentially tuberculous or bronchiectatic, though not proved so. (Bronchiectasis means a dilation of one or more of the bronchi—the tubes in the lungs. It is marked by a fetid breath and paroxymal coughing, with the expectoration of muco-purulent matter.)

I am giving you this little digest to show you how important it is, if you have a cough which extends over any period of time, to have a thorough physical examination, X-Ray and other tests made, both to get relief and diagnosis, especially if the cough is tuberculous, for tuberculosis is curable if taken in time. You will notice that while all of the cases were apparently nontuberculous, 32 per cent were potentially so—that is, there was a possibility of tuberculosis.

My Dear Followers: When sending for material which we offer you, please remember to inclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope bearing your full name and address. The pamphlet on reducing and gaining is the only one for which you must inclose 10 cents in stamps or coin. Address your letters to me in care of this paper. Make them as brief as possible, not over 200 words, and type or write them legibly with ink. Please sign your name as evidence of good faith—you will not see it in any way. Remember it is impossible for me to diagnose for you or to answer you personally. I appreciate very much the beautiful letters you send me and regret it is impossible to give you individual advice. CAVIARE A LA REINE

Cut six rounds of soft toasts and spread with four tablespoonfuls of caviare mixed with the strained juice of one lemon. Finely chop one tablespoonful of onion and place a tiny mound of it in the center of each round. Chop fine two hard-boiled eggs and sprinkle over all. Place a round on a small lettuce-covered plate and serve.

CHICKEN SAUTE

Clean and truss a nice fat pullet weighing about six pounds and tie on the breast two slices of fat ham. Place in a saute pan four tablespoonfuls of butter, two teaspoonfuls of chopped parsley, two chopped cloves of garlic, two tablespoonfuls of chopped onion, one-quarter of a teaspoonful of powered thyme, one bay leaf, a seasoning of salt and pepper, and the prepared chicken. Turn and cook until the chicken is half-done, then add two slices of chopped bacon, half a sliced lemon and one cupful of cider. Saute until the chicken is tender, lift onto a hot platter and strain the sauce into a clean saucepan, add to the sauce one tablespoonful of flour, stir and cook seven minutes, strain around the chicken and serve.

BUTTERSCOTCH SAUCE

Place in a saucepan one cupful of brown sugar, four tablespoonfuls of butter, one tablespoonfuls of vinegar, half a cupful of water and a few grains of salt. Stir and cook until a little dropped in cold water will form a soft ball. Beat in one teaspoonful of lemon extract. Serve hot over slices of brick ice cream.

CLUB SANDWICH

For six servings cut nine slices of bread from a day-old loaf of bread, the long way. Toast, trim off the crusts and cut diagonally, long way. Lay a lettuce leaf on six slices, cover with mayonnaise, cover with sliced tomatoes, cover with lettuce, cover with slice of toast, cover the second slice of toast with mayonnaise spread lettuce leaf, cover with slices of cooked chicken or turkey, cover with broiled ham or bacon, cover with mayonnaise covered lettuce leaf, cover with a third slice of toast and pin together with toothpicks, garnish with ripe olives and pickles.

Add half a cupful of mint leaves and two-thirds of a cupful of sugar and cook five minutes. Add four cupfuls of milk and stir and bring to a boil. Strain through a fine sieve or cheese cloth, cool, add one teaspoonful of vanilla and pour into glasses half-filled with fine ice.

YOUR BABY and MINE

By Myrtle Meyer Eldred

Mrs. Eldred will be glad to answer all questions pertaining to babies and children. A stamped and self-addressed envelope, forwarded to this office, will bring a personal reply.

WOOL OR NO WOOL DURING THE SUMMER

Mrs. B. writes: "My little girl is 3 years of age, should she have long-sleeved woolen shirts on her or nainsook union suits and bloomers? Should she have little woolen bands and separate bloomers? Or do you think it necessary to still keep wool on her this summer? She and my boy, 5, still have cod liver oil and orange juice daily. Is this necessary?"

Answer: There is no necessity for the child over 2 years of age wearing wool of any kind in the summer. Up to this time it is quite all right for a child to wear the part-wool bands in the summer, but after the teething period is past there is no reason for them to be continued. Use a woolen "panty" waist and thin panties on the child or else a romper and cotton underwear; a union suit is fine.

Neither child needs cod liver oil now unless there is some degree of undernourishment for which this has been advised. The orange juice can be given indefinitely.

DON'T HURRY THE BABY TOO MUCH

Mrs. E. B. G. writes: "My baby is 4½ months of age, weighed eight pounds at birth and now weighs fourteen and one-half. He is breast-fed, and I wonder if this is a satisfactory gain. He sleeps from 10 until 6 o'clock without a feeding. He has an ounce of orange juice and fifteen drops of cod liver oil daily. Is this too much?

What makes a small baby perspire so when nursing? At what age can a baby sit in a high chair?"

Answer: The gain is good and the orange juice and cod liver oil likewise, though you need not give as much as an ounce of juice yet. If it does not cause unusual bowel activity there is no harm in it.

All babies perspire when nursing. Why not? They are usually very warmly dressed and when actively engaged in taking a warm food huddled next to a warm body it is quite natural that they would grow warm and perspire. At 6 months of age a well baby can support his back and can then be put in a chair for short periods. Ordinarily I do not believe in propping babies up in high chairs and forcing them to sit erect, they have quite enough of this when sitting on the mother's lap or on the bed and can then fall backward when they grow tired.

Criminal Court Not Collection Aid, Says Judge

Criminal-court actions should not be brought to aid collection of civil damages, Municipal Judge Russill declared yesterday after a defendant said he had been promised leniency if he paid monetary damages to the complaining witness.

Judge Russill advised the defendant to plead not guilty and, if acquitted, to sue the prosecuting witness for false arrest in addition to the amount paid for damages.

J. R. Allen, the defendant, appeared before the court on a charge of reckless driving. He was arrested on a complaint signed by E. J. Wilson after a collision between the cars belonging to the two men.

Wilson was not present when Allen appeared and he said he understood that he was not to be punished since he had paid for the damage done to Wilson's car. Then Judge Russill explained the criminal courts are not to intimidate defendants in civil cases.

COURT "SHOW" WINS ENCORE

Asserted Histrionics for Jury's Benefit in Damage Suit Induce Judge's Order for Retrial of Case; Boasts of Artistry Related

Asserted "courtroom antics" said to have been performed by Mrs. Mary Alice Bloomer for the purpose of influencing a jury to vote in her favor yesterday resulted in Judge Bishop of Superior Court granting a new trial of a suit in which Mrs. Bloomer had obtained a verdict for $2500 damages against L. M. Dornberg, proprietor of an apartment house at 823 South Union avenue.

The verdict was returned May 23, last, at the conclusion of the trial of Mrs. Bloomer's suit, in which she charged Dornberg with attempting to attack her in her apartment.

In support of the motion for a new trial, Harold Nusem and Lorrin Andrews, attorneys for Dornberg, introduced affidavits of John Stevens and Mrs. N. H. Wible of La Crescenta in which the asserted acting of Mrs. Bloomer was brought to light.

Stevens recited in his affidavit that immediately after the trial Mrs. Bloomer told him:

"I put a good one over on the jury—I cried at the right time. Do you think I fainted at the right time? I cried for an effect on the jury."

The affidavit added that as soon as the verdict in her favor had been returned, Mrs. Bloomer "ceased to act sick and laughed and scuffled with the affiant and appeared to be in the best of health."

The affidavit of Mrs. Wible supported that given by Stevens.

Affidavits and counter-affidavits also were introduced tending to show there had been some dissension among the jurors in their views on the case, two of the jurors charging that others had been influenced by things entirely outside the case in arriving at a verdict for Mrs. Bloomer.

Dornberg flatly denied at the trial that he had attempted to attack Mrs. Bloomer, and stated he had merely gone to her apartment to admonish her not to drive nails and tacks in the walls. He said she followed him from the apartment, shouting "You tried to attack me."

SURPRISE TO GREET MATE ON ARRIVAL

When John Robert Whelan, son of one of the executives of the United Cigar Stores, Inc., arrives in Los Angeles today to rejoin his wife and two children after a separation of more than six months, he will find that his wife has taken steps to obtain custody of the children and has announced her intention of obtaining a divorce as soon as she will have established her legal residence in California.

Mrs. Bertha Hutchinson Whelan's plans for a divorce were revealed yesterday when she filed an application for a court order granting her the custody and control of her two children, John Robert Whelan, Jr., 5 years of age, and Bertha Hutchinson Whelan, 3.

In the application, which was filed through Attorney Franklin W. Peck, Mrs. Whelan has announced her intention of filing an action for divorce on grounds of extreme cruelty. Fearing that her husband will endeavor to gain control of the children when he learns of her plans, Mrs. Whelan asks that the court issue a restraining order to prevent him from taking them from her custody.

According to the application, the Whelans were married at Mt. Vernon, N. Y., October 27, 1920, and separated in New York October 18, last, when Mrs. Whelan with the two children came to California.

REALTY BOARD HAILS PRODIGAL

Return of Los Angeles Body Cause of Jubilation

State Association Directors to Act Today

Local Organization Seceded Three Years Ago

Affiliation of the Los Angeles Realty Board with the California Real Estate Association makes the State organization the strongest in the United States, Harry B. Allen, president of the State organization, declared on his arrival here last night from San Francisco.

Allen will preside at a directors' meeting of the California Real Estate Association in the Biltmore today when the board will be welcomed formally into the State-wide realty body.

"The California Real Estate Association will be almost invincible in the aims it has set out to accomplish for betterment of the realty business in this State with all boards co-operating toward the same aims," Allen said. "Entrance of the Los Angeles board completed the list of larger cities in California affiliating with the California Real Estate Association, San Francisco and Oakland having entered some time ago."

California realty dealers have the largest number of boards and members in the national roster recently issued at Chicago. More than 100 local boards are affiliated with the State association, extending from Eureka and Redding in the north to El Centro and San Diego in the south, according to President Allen. In the educational field the State association and University of Southern California joint program, which soon will enter its fifth year, has already attracted nearly 5000 brokers and salesmen, a large percentage of whom have graduated and received their university certificates.

The Los Angeles Realty Board seceded from the State association November 20, 1924, as a result of an asserted breach on the part of the State organization of the rule allowing but one realty board to a city.

ILL-WISHES ACT AS BOOMERANG

Woman Sentenced to Jail as Result of Remark to Jury Member

Wishing a juror a lot of hard luck did not affect the verdict brought in against Helen Hort yesterday in Municipal Judge Frederickson's court, but it did affect the sentence imposed later by the court.

The woman was convicted on a vagrancy charge After she left the courtroom she encountered Mrs. Ada Huffman, one of the jurors.

"I hope you go to San Quentin some day," said the prisoner. Mrs. Huffman reported the matter to Judge Frederickson When the Hort woman appeared later for sentence she was given thirty days in jail instead of the usual $30 fine. Judge Frederickson also censured her for attempting to intimidate members of the jury.

"THE MUSTARD SEED"

"Of all parables uttered by Christ Jesus, Mrs. Eddy draws special attention to the comprehensive nature of His teaching as contained in those illustrations He used of the mustard seed and the prodigal. Besides the significant contrast between the extremes of material substances presented by the minute proportions of a grain of mustard seed and the mountain in the parable, a study of its meaning in the light of Christian Science unfolds the significance of the fact that with the mustard seed rests all the available power of action and progressive self-development, while the mountain must remain an inert mass subject to final disintegration."

These sentiments will form part of the lesson-sermon on "The Mustard Seed" as explained by Annie C. Bill, leader of the Christian Science Parent Church. Local services of that church will be conducted at 11 a.m. tomorrow at the Friday Morning Club building. AMMUNITION TRUCK HELD BY DEPUTIES

Capture Made North of Santa Barbara and Federal Operatives Investigate

Report that a truckload of ammunition had been captured in the vicinity of Buellton, forty-four miles north of Santa Barbara, reached Los Angeles late yesterday afternoon and two operatives from the Department of Justice were sent to investigate. They were joined by members of the Sheriff's staff at Santa Barbara and, according to information from that point, at a late hour last night, the seized ammunition and its custodians were being held at Buellton.

But meager information was obtainable from the Sheriff of Santa Barbara county, who stated over the telephone that he had heard nothing from his men aside from the early report that the ammunition was being conveyed in an automobile truck and trailer and was proceeding south. Two men accompanied the cargo, according to the Sheriff's information.

Buellton was cut off from communication after 8 o'clock last night, at which hour the telephone office closed down for the night. The Sheriff stated that the entire party would return to Santa Barbara early this morning.

FLOOD REFUGEE PROBLEMS HERE

Mississippi River Sufferers Reach Los Angeles

Negro Student of Sociology Tells of Findings

Degree Man Seeking Material for Yale Thesis

Los Angeles and the Southwest may expect quite an influx of negroes from the flood districts of the Mississippi Valley, according to Frederick W. Wells, who is in Los Angeles to make a survey of conditions among the negroes here.

Already, Mr. Wells said, a number of negro families have arrived in Los Angeles from the flood district and daily arrivals are adding to the numbers. Others will come as the opportunity presents, but Mr. Wells does not think that the influx will reach any great proportions. The negro, of course, has been among those hardest hit by the flood.

PROBLEM FOR CITY

Los Angeles will undoubtedly have her share of the refugee problem to handle, in the opinion of Mr. Wells. He ran across this refugee problem among the local negroes while making some preliminary investigation of sociological and industrial conditions here. It is the subject that will be his thesis for the Ph.D. degree which he is taking from Yale University. Being a negro himself, he is enabled to make this study in a thorough and intimate manner not available to others.

Mr. Wells took his bachelor's degree at Ohio State in 1920. He followed that with a master's degree from Yale and then a bachelor of laws degree from Columbia University His investigation into the negro problem, upon which he will write his thesis will cover not only the United States, but also Mexico and certain portions of Central and South America.

STUDIES SUBJECT LONG

The study of the problem is not a new one to him, he having pursued it in his past university work, and he has some very interesting observations to make upon the negro problem. One of the first observations he made upon coming west was the comparatively small employments of the negro in domestic work out here. In hotels, clubs and the more pretentious private homes, the negro is peculiarly adapted to domestic work, he observes, and should be used more extensively. He likes it and because he likes it, he does it well. In discussing this matter, Mr. Wells's study revealed to him that many white people do not get the right kind of work out of the negro because they do not expect it.

negro boy to do the porter work. around a store," said Mr. Wells. "Here is a drug store that hires a egro boy to do the porter work. They pay him little and expect little. The result is that your porter shuffles in, fools around on the job and shuffles out again at the end of the day. That is all the druggist expected and that's all he gets. The attitude is wrong on both sides."

WORKING THROUGH COLLEGE

Being practically without funds, Mr. Wells is forced to work as he studies. Working his way through college, he used his jobs as laboratories in which to make his observations on the negro problem from the industrial standpoint. He himself has built up one solution of the part-time porter problem by taking on a chain of stores and shops and doing the porter work far better and at less cost to the employer who hires a porter for little pay on full time and expects nothing. He did it in New York and Syracuse and upon landing at San Pedro he established such a system there. The employers are highly pleased with it and the porter, when he is taught how, goes from place to place doing the job with a snap and a vim.

While making his survey in Los Angeles, Mr. Wells will confer with employers there and get their points of view. He is at the Twenty-eighth street branch of the Y.M.C.A., and hopes to establish headquarters at one of the community centers. He will address local organizations at intervals.

Fair Swimmers to Give Fairy Tales in Water

The swimming club of the Y.W.C.A. has invited all the Blue Triangle clubs of Los Angeles to a swimming demonstration and pageant on the 21st inst.

The pageant, "The Enchanted Seal," is a combination of difficult and spectacular group swimming stunts woven into a story of the Hans Christian Andersen type. The seal who helps to rescue the Hansel and Gretel of fairy lore from the wicked, wicked frogs, is in turn saved from his enchantment by a kiss from the grateful Gretel.

A unique maypole dance executed in the water around the Queen of the River, a human bridge on which Hansel and Gretel cross the enchanted stream, and a romantic journey in a water chariot drawn by plenty of aquatic steeds are a few of the stunts that promise to thrill the audience from the business girls' clubs.

ACTRESS FILES SUIT FOR AUTO INJURIES

Eileen McCarthy

EILEEN McCARTHY, motion-picture actress, yesterday brought suit in Superior Court for $47,000 damages against Roy E. Parlee, whom she charged with being responsible for injuries she received in an automobile accident December 31, 1926.

Miss McCarthy, who said she was a passenger in Parlee's car, declared he drove at such a high rate of speed over her protest that the car overturned, pinning her beneath it. She asserted she suffered concussion of the brain and other injuries which will tend to ruin her career as an actress.

The complaint was prepared by Attorney H. William Hess.

MRS. VICTORIA MIX

While rumors of dissension in the Mix household have been current for several months the parties concerned as a rule Milton Cohen, attorney for both Mr. and Mrs. Mix, have denied a breach existed between the film cowboy and his wife.

Mix was in conference with Cohen for several hours yesterday, but denied that it pertained to marital affairs.

In reference to a property settlement made two months ago, Mix declared it was merely a business matter between himself and his wife, and in no way pertained to a separation.

The latest rumors of an impending separation are said to be based upon a letter Mrs. Mix sent to friends here. Mix, however, declared the letter was being misinterpreted by what he characterized as "Hollywood scandal m-o n-gers."

TOM MIX

"I have a letter here from Mrs. Mix, which I received today, and am answering it immediately," the actor said.

"At the same time I am writing the home office of my company asking permission to go east next month, following completion of my present picture, and meet Mrs. Mix when she lands in New York. I am writing her to that effect."

COUNTRY PROPERTY—For Sale

Attention Farmers

We are not in the real estate business and we are not subdividers, but selling our own lands direct to the public at prices way below other lands of the same characteristics. Pasture lands, high class farm lands, both wheat and alfalfa lands—lands suitable for every crop successfully grown in the United States and located in the very center of the State.

Good roads, good climate, good water and plenty of it.

Just think for a minute—finest of wheat land now in crops, only $35 per acre—call and buy anywhere, balance rent a period of ten years.

DAIRYMEN—Fine alfalfa land, now in alfalfa, with gravity water at a bargain as $150 per acre.

Don't close this with the average real estate advertisement. Come into the office—now—today, and talk things over and arrange to join one of our free transportation cars, a three-day trip up to the San Joaquin Valley.
